State Police said today that the car, in which the seven teenagers rode early Sunday morning, was "apparently traveling at a high rate of speed" when it smashed into a culvert support on Rt. 28 near Phoenicia in the Town of Shandaken about 1 a. m.

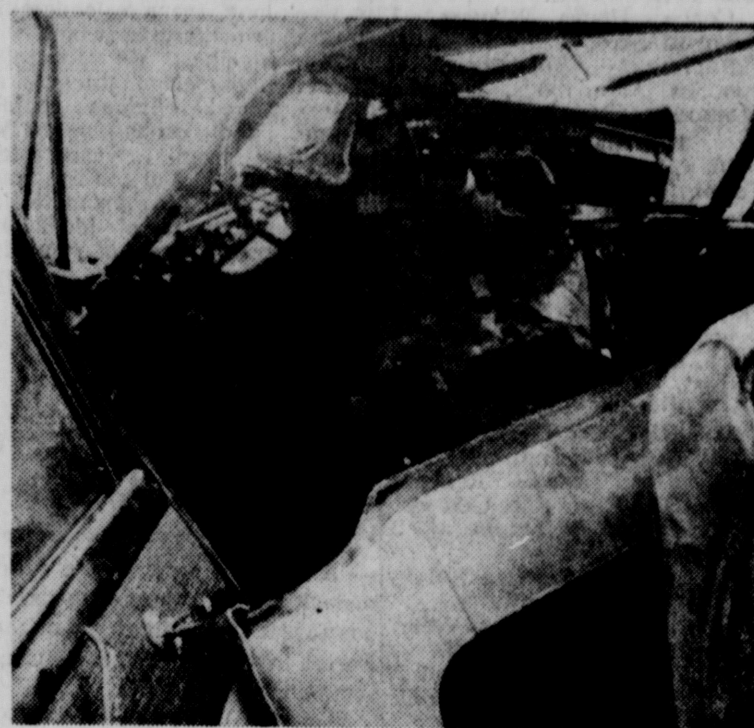

The dead were identified as David Aley, 18, of Big Indian, the driver; Berton Lee Maxim, 16, of Fleischmanns; Robert Duncan Wilson, 16, of Bearsville; Janice Merwin, 14, of Shandaken and Susan Helen Scarth, 16, of Phoenicia.

12th Ward Apartment Move Withdrawn by Contractor

By HUGH REYNOLDS

The petition asking for the rezoning of the 12th Ward to build garden-type apartments has been withdrawn.

The contractor, Louis J. Hess Inc. of New Jersey, told The Freeman this morning through his attorney, Hubert A. Richter, that "local public reluctance caused us to reevaluate our position."

May Reconsider

Richter said his client wanted to be a member of the Kingston community and wanted to be accepted by the community. He said the Hess Corporation may reconsider building in Kingston in the future.

Although Kingston, the 12th Ward, at any rate, doesn't appear to want the $1,500,000 project, other towns are definitely interested. Richter said this morning that the Towns of Ulster and New Paltz have been in contact with him and would "welcome Hess and his type of project with open arms."

Even with the outside offers, Richter said Hess still considers Kingston the ideal area for the 152-unit apartment complex.

The rezoning first hit the headlines the day after the Common Council meeting of Aug. 1. Upwards of 75 persons from the 12th Ward were present at that meeting, most of them, protesting the building of the apartment complex in their ward, specifically in the Merritt Avenue, Fairview Avenue area.

Machione Hits Rush

Alderman John Machione (R-12th Ward) claimed at that time that the proposal was "being jammed down the throats of the Council in an attempt to rush it through to approval."

Machione wanted floor debate on the proposition at that Council meeting but Council President Francis R. Koenig called a recess for further study of the matter.

Richter spoke at that meeting, presenting his client's case and said his client was also in favor of further discussion and reevaluation of the plans. Richter said that no attempt was being made to rush the proposal through.

Strong Opposition

Following the Common Council recess, a special meeting on the subject was held at the Edison School on Aug. 9. Once more, the residents of the 12th Ward, an estimated 200, voiced strong opposition to the apartments.

Meanwhile, charges were exchanged between Machione and Alderman Edward Norton (D-Seventh Ward). Norton claimed that Machione had plenty of time to alert his constituents to the plans for the apartments but had failed them in not doing so. Machione countered, saying Norton was trying to make political hay out of the whole issue.

Notes Big 'Take'

One of the points Richter brought out at the Common Council meeting was that the land his client wanted to build on was presently assessed as farm land and netted the city about $300 per year. If the apartments were built, Richter said then, the city could realize up to $25,000 in yearly assessments.

Many city officials, including, according to reports, Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan, were interested in the project for this reason.

22 Die in Mexican Shootout

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — A blazing gun battle between two rival factions at the 25th anniversary banquet of a copra growers union Sunday left 22 persons dead and an estimated 100 wounded in this Pacific Coast resort.

Police and soldiers rounded up 184 persons for questioning. Those involved are men who grow and harvest copra—dried coconut meat—either on their own or by hiring workers.

Claudio Monreal, Acapulco police watch commander, said one group of about 600 men was holding the banquet at the two-story building of the regional copra growers union. Another group of about 1,000 dissatisfied with a recent union election, gathered outside.

Cesar del Angel, a representative in the state government of Veracruz, was a leader of the unruly contingent said Mario Jaime Palacios, an agent of the Acapulco attorney general's office.

Del Angel was first reported killed in the shooting, then wounded, then fleeing to the hills with police and soldiers on his trail.

One witness reported that Del Angel entered the building during the celebration to negotiate for more representation for his faction in the union. He then left the building and a few minutes later reportedly ordered the door kicked down.

At that point shots were fired from the crowd outside, and persons inside the building returned the fire, some with machine guns.

When police and soldiers arrived, many of the dead and wounded were lying in the street. An eyewitness said order was restored quickly.

Within an hour the area, a slum district on the road to Acapulco's Pie de la Cuesta beach, had taken on a bizarre holiday air. Thousands milled around and tourists roamed the streets snapping pictures.

Sen. Gruening in Woodstock:

Terms Viet Involvement Illegal, Immoral

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

Speaking to an audience of about 600 persons in Woodstock Sunday afternoon, Senator Ernest Gruening (D-Alaska) said that U. S. involvement in Vietnam was "illegal, immoral . . . a venture in utterly senseless killing." He added that "unilateral withdrawal" would be "far better than what we are doing."

Cheered frequently by the capacity crowd in the Woodstock Playhouse, the Alaskan Senator and former governor of that state said it was tragic that "so many lives have been lost in vain" and, referring to "a land that is being laid to waste" said "nations in the future will hesitate to be 'liberated' by the United States."

The Senator's appearance was sponsored by the Ulster County Committee for Independent Senators, in cooperation with the National Committee for an Effective Congress (NCEC) based in Washington. The organization's purpose is to help raise campaign funds "for the reelection, in 1968, of independent leaders who have stood firmly against the trend toward a 'rubber stamp Congress' as they state in their brochures."

Along with Gruening, the other Senators to be helped by the organization are Frank Church of Idaho, J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, George S. McGovern of South Dakota and Wayne Morse of Oregon all Senate "doves" on the Vietnam War issue, and all considered to be facing difficult reelection battles.

One of the Wisest . . .

Referred to by Sen. McGovern as "one of the wisest, most courageous men ever to serve in the United States Senate" it was pointed out that Sen. Gruening was not a pacifist, that he himself fought in World War I, as his sons fought in World War II.

Gruening, speaking without affectation, claimed that "more and more people should learn the facts of how and why we got over there (in Vietnam)" because then "there would be far more against the war."

The 80-year-old statesman said that "this totally unjustifiable war" has, so far, "left 12,000 U. S. Soldiers killed on the battlefields" with "several thousand more killed incidental to their being there" and that, because of the "incredible cost of this Southeast Asian folly . . . long overdue programs, such as the war on poverty, air and water pollution elimination, slum clearance, all fine programs, are going down the drain."

"In Korea," the Senator said, "we fought under a United Nations mandate with 11 other nations fighting along side of us" and that the war was waged "because there was overt aggression from the North." Gruening added that, "None of these factors are present in this war."

Illegality

Gruening claimed that the United States "barged in alone" in Vietnam after the French had been "overwhelmingly defeated" in what was then French Indo-China (which included Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam) in support of a "corrupt military minority" which eventually, in 1956, stopped a nationwide election "that we had agreed to in 1954," an action "that the Eisenhower administration supported" because "the U. S. government" knew Ho Chi Minh (Premier of North Vietnam) would win.

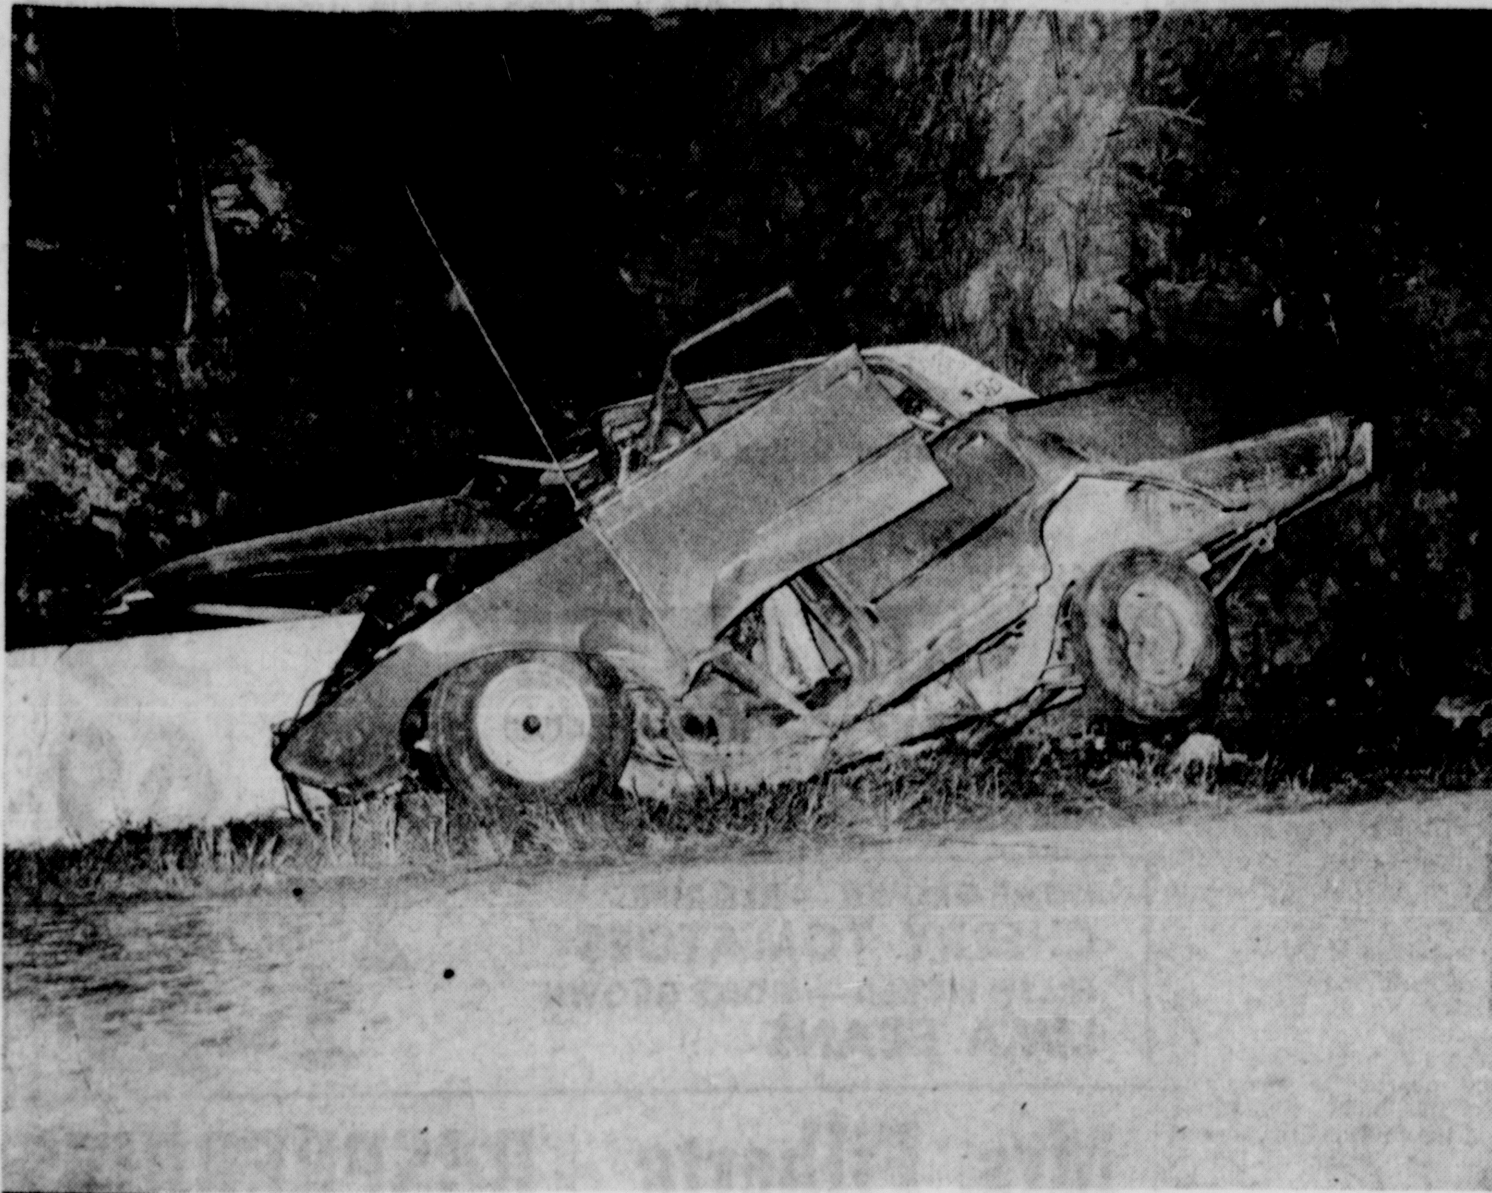

The Senator likened this to the Democrats in this country allowing elections to be held but stopping all Republicans from voting.

He also pointed out that, during World War I, the U. S. "fought with Ho Chi Minh" (Continued on Page 6, Col. 5)

State Council Opposes Park In Adirondacks

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — A national park in the Adirondacks would represent a "serious threat to the integrity of the Forest Preserve," the State Conservation Council says.

A proposal advanced by Lawrence Rockefeller, chairman of the State Council of Parks, would establish a 1.7-million-acre federal park in the heart of the Forest Preserve in the Adirondacks. It would require the federal government to acquire about 600,000 acres of land now privately owned.

The board of directors of the council, which claims to represent 350,000 sportsmen in New York State, issued its opposition after a special meeting Saturday.

The group said it opposed the park proposition because: —It would terminate the forever wild guarantee in the constitution, which protects the area from commercial use. Retention of the clause was approved recently by delegates to the Constitutional Convention.

—Present protection is more adequate than would be afforded by national park status.

—The people of the state would lose control because direction would shift from local and state officials to Washington.

—Hunting of all types would be prohibited.

—The economy of the northern part of the state would be affected adversely.

—An enlarged highway system could destroy the existing natural character of the region.

—Present opportunities to use the Forest Preserve will continue to expand under state control.

Business Week in Review

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The battle over the proposed income tax surcharge got under way in Congress this past week.

The Johnson administration rolled out its big guns to support the President's recommendation of a 10 per cent tax increase on corporations and individuals.

Rough Road Looms
Most members of the House Ways and Means Committee, which opened a hearing on the proposal, seemed cool to the idea and it appeared likely that a rough road was ahead for the tax program.

Appearing before the committee in behalf of the administration were Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, Budget Director Charles L. Schultze and Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

They subordinated the cost of the Vietnam war to the economic situation in arguing for the tax boost, which would raise an estimated $7.4 billion in the fiscal year that began July 1.

These officials contended that the surcharge would be the best way to avert a $29 billion federal budget deficit, to dampen inflationary pressures and to forestall an upward interest rate spiral without slowing the economy into a recession.

Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills D-Ark. asked Ackley: "You don't have a fear, then, that a tax increase would further decrease plant utilization? Can we expect the unemployment rate to go up if there's a tax increase? Can we be certain that we can enact a tax increase without depressing industrial production?"

Ackley replied that the softness in the economy during the first half of this year is abating, that businessmen will begin rebuilding inventories in the closing months of this year and that the outlook is for a "buoyant" economy.

The committee will hear witnesses from private groups next week.

Show Improvement
Meanwhile, statistics were released that showed improvement in some important sectors of the economy. These included increases in industrial production, housing starts, corporate profits and personal income.

Some sources said these advances provided the administration with further ammunition to back its tax increase proposal.

"There's no question the economy is expanding," commented George McKinney Jr., vice president and economist of Irving Trust Co. of New York. "The only question is whether it will expand sharply or very sharply."

The Federal Reserve Board reported that industrial output, in its first advance in six months, rose to 156.3 per cent of the 1957-59 average in July from 155.3 per cent in June. In July 1966 it stood at 157.2 per cent.

The Commerce Department announced that housing starts climbed 10.8 per cent in July to an annual rate of 1.36 million units from 1,227,000 in June.

The July rate was about 26 per cent ahead of the level of a year earlier and was at the highest rate since the 1,377,000 in April 1966.

Corporate profits rose in the second quarter to an annual rate of $79.2 billion from $79 billion in the first quarter, according to the Commerce Department.

Automobile production this past week rose to an estimated 44,400 cars from 34,043 last week as output of 1968 models picked up.

New car sales in the first 10 days of August declined to 181,660 from 189,778 a year earlier.

Steel output last week increased 4.5 per cent to 2,338,000 tons from 2,237,000 tons the previous week.

3 Appointed To MV Posts

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Robert S. Shelford of Albany is the new director of public information in the State Motor Vehicle Department.

He succeeds William R. Eckhof, newly appointed executive director of the Interdepartmental committee for Traffic Safety.

Vincent L. Tofany, commissioner of motor vehicles, also announced the appointments Sunday of two other public relations positions.

John F. McHale, former city editor of the Utica Daily Press and Sunday Observer-Dispatch, was named special assistant to the commissioner, a new position.

John W. Newhart, former senior public information assistant in the Conservation Department, was appointed director of the department's Learn and Live program to succeed Shelford.

E-K Official, Another Die In Plane Crash

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Warren Berry, 47, head of Eastman Kodak's Peruvian branch, and another man were killed Sunday when a private plane crashed into the sea near a beach just north of Lima.

Also killed was Frank Crosby, 39, an officer of an electrical supply company in Lima.

Lilly Punchin, Berry's secretary, was reported in serious condition in a hospital, and rescue planes were looking for a fourth person believed aboard, a Peruvian identified only as Flores.

Peruvian Air Force helicopters pulled the two men and the woman from the wreckage of the plane.

Fewer Measles
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Only 850 cases of measles were reported in the first six months of this year, in comparison with 10,306 cases at the same stage last year, the State Health Department said Sunday.

Gov. Rockefeller attributed the decline to free distribution of measles vaccine. He said that, since a free-vaccine law was enacted in 1965, the state has distributed 532,000 doses of vaccine in New York City and Upstate communities.

Business Week in Review

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The battle over the proposed income tax surcharge got under way in Congress this past week.

The Johnson administration rolled out its big guns to support the President's recommendation of a 10 per cent tax increase on corporations and individuals.

Rough Road Looms

Most members of the House Ways and Means Committee, which opened a hearing on the proposal, seemed cool to the idea and it appeared likely that a rough road was ahead for the tax program.

Appearing before the committee in behalf of the administration were Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, Budget Director Charles L. Schultze and Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

They substantiated the cost of the Vietnam war to the economy, arguing for the tax boost, which would raise an estimated $7.4 billion in the fiscal year that began July 1.

These officials contended that the surcharge would be the best way to avert a $29 billion federal budget deficit, to dampen inflationary pressures and to forestall an upward interest rate spiral without slowing the economy into a recession.

Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills D-Ark. asked Ackley: "You don't have a fear, then, that a tax increase would further decrease plant utilization? Can we expect the unemployment rate to go up if there's a tax increase? Can we be certain that we can enact a tax increase without depressing industrial production?"

Ackley replied that the softness in the economy during the first half of this year is abating, that businessmen will begin rebuilding inventories in the closing months of this year and that the outlook is for a "buoyant" economy.

The committee will hear witnesses from private groups next week.

Show Improvement

Meanwhile, statistics were released that showed improvement in some important sectors of the economy. These included increases in industrial production, housing starts, corporate profits and personal income.

Some sources said these advances provided the administration with further ammunition to back its tax increase proposal.

"There's no question the economy is expanding," commented George McKinney Jr., vice president and economist of Irving Trust Co. of New York.

"The only question is whether it will expand sharply or very sharply."

The Federal Reserve Board reported that industrial output, in its first advance in six months, rose to 156.3 per cent of the 1957-59 average in July from 153.3 per cent in June. In July 1966 it stood at 157.2 per cent.

The Commerce Department announced that housing starts climbed 10.8 per cent in July to an annual rate of 1.36 million units from 1,227,000 in June.

The July rate was about 26 per cent ahead of the level of a year earlier and was at the highest rate since the 1,377,000 in April 1966.

Corporate profits rose in the second quarter to an annual rate of $79.2 billion from $79 billion in the first quarter, according to the Commerce Department.

The latest profits rate lagged well behind the $89.6 billion in the 1966 second quarter but economists considered it significant that the quarter-to-quarter declines of the two preceding periods didn't continue. In its second consecutive monthly gain, personal income in July rose by $4.5 billion from June to a record annual rate of $627.1 billion, according to the Commerce Department.

Automobile production this past week rose to an estimated 44,400 cars from 34,043 last week as output of 1968 models picked up.

Second Confrontation Shaping Up

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The second major confrontation between the state's business community and the Constitutional Convention was shaping up today as delegates cleared the way for debate over fiscal matters.

At the head of the list was a proposal that would permit cities to impose any tax not specifically prohibited by the Legislature. Another proposal would change the method in computing local taxing and borrowing powers.

Both were under attack by the State Commerce and Industry Association, an organization of business firms.

In addition, the convention's top Republican, Minority Leader Earl W. Brydges, has said he will fight for retention of present system in which the Legislature spells out what taxes a locality may impose.

Convention President Anthony J. Travia said Sunday he had not yet adopted a formal position on the local tax plans. The ranking Democrat in the convention said he was awaiting further analysis from his staff.

Travia said the delegates, who worked four days last week as they approved a proposal to repeal the constitutional bar against state financial aid to parochial schools, would be in Albany for four days this week.

He said he hoped the convention would be able to take action on the fiscal questions during the week.

Hovering in back of Travia's desire for action on the controversial subject this week is an impending deadline of Sept. 26, just five weeks away.

If the proposed constitution is to be submitted to the voters for consideration in the November election, the delegates must complete their work by Sept. 26.

Having cleared a major hurdle in obtaining proposed repeal of the so-called Blaine Amendment, many observers see evidence that the convention will be able to complete its task.

The proposal on local taxing power represents the second time the state's business community has taken a stand urging rejection of a major item.

In the first instance, the business leaders insisted on no Constitutional change to permit taxing of so-called intangible assets, such as undistributed profits and bank accounts.

They were successful in that venture as the Committee on Taxation and Finance agreed to continue the present restriction against taxation of intangible property.

Sunday, Arnold Witte, general manager of the Commerce and Industry Association, said the power for cities to impose any tax would pose the "constant threat of destructive taxes at a local level."

In another development, Perry B. Duryea Jr., a GOP vice president of the convention and the Assembly's minority leader, labeled as "something-for-everyone" proposals advanced by Travia, who in addition to being president of the Convention is also Assembly Speaker.

Duryea criticized Travia's espousal of free college education for all New Yorkers as being prohibitively expensive. The comments came during a television broadcast on WRGB-TV, Schenectady.

Travia said Duryea was not correct in his charge because the cost of the proposal had not been worked out and would not be until the Legislature moved to implement.

"I would just like to see the Legislature have the power to do what it can, something we can't do now," Travia said.

New Law Seen as Handicap

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Speculation that the new penal law that goes into effect Sept. 1 would prevent police officers from using tear gas to quell civil disorders has been called "nonsense" by one of the law's authors.

Richard J. Bartlett, chairman of the Temporary Commission on Revision of the Penal Law and Criminal Code, also said "misreading" and "misunderstanding" had contributed to police and public complaints about provisions in the statute.

Many Critics

Police officials and private citizens, chiefly in Western New York, have criticized the law on the grounds it would handicap police in apprehending suspects and controlling civil disorders. They say the law also would strip householders of protection against criminals.

Their complaints are based on one section of the law dealing with amount of force justified in capturing a suspect or protecting oneself.

Bartlett said over the weekend that he had directed his staff to prepare a detailed analysis of the section and transmit it to police agencies in an effort to clear up the "apparent confusion." The study is expected to be available about the same time the law takes effect.

Some police officials have asserted that a provision limiting a policeman to the use of "deadly physical force" only when he believes a person has committed a crime involving physical force will handicap police in stopping a fleeing suspect.

In addition, some maintain the restriction could hamper control of civil disorders by preventing the use of tear gas.

Bartlett told the Associated Press Saturday that such fear was "nonsense." He said tear gas would not be considered a "deadly" weapon any more than a nightstick would fall in that category.

Bartlett agreed the new law would not allow a policeman to shoot a looter. He said the commission felt it did not make sense to permit the killing of a person suspected of a crime such as looting which, if he was caught and convicted, could result only in a sentence of seven years in prison.

The provision relating to householders, Bartlett said, would permit the use of force by the resident if he "reasonably believed" the intruder was going to cause him physical harm.

The new law is less restrictive in some cases than the one it will replace, Bartlett said.

For example, he said, the new law permits a police officer to act on "reasonable belief," whereas the old law requires law.

that the judgement be based on "actual" circumstances.

The New York City Police Department put the provisions into effect last March and, Bartlett said, there had been no complaints from ranking officers in the department.

He noted, however, that the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association of the city had complained that the law handcuffed police officers.

Bartlett, a Glens Falls Republican, is a former assemblyman now serving as a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention.

In addition to heading the temporary commission on revision, Bartlett recently was appointed chairman of the newly created State Crime Control Council. He is considered one of the state's leading experts on criminal law.

The temporary commission was appointed in 1964 to draft the new law. The 1965 session of the Legislature approved the commission's recommendations but delayed the effective date until this Sept. 1.

Upstairs, downstairs, on the main floor, a 2000-square-foot stock room all jammed full of shoes. Why so many? It seems that for the fifty-odd years we've been in business we have acquired the reputation of always having what you're looking for. We're just a bit anxious to protect that image.

For children we maintain four complete brand lines of shoes. Starting with MOTHER GOOSE SHOES at the lowest price of any good-quality, good-fitting, good-wearing shoe made in the world; to Jumping-Jacks and HUSH PUPPIES in the medium-price range; and finally CHILD-LIFE SHOES, the finest (and possibly the most expensive) children's shoes made.

Multiply four lines of shoes by a hundred styles, a couple dozen sizes, more widths than any other store has, add specialty footwear and that means no one is unfittable at Yallum's.

It sure is a lot of shoes though. On a slow day, we sometimes think it's more shoes than people. Don't hide.

One-Seventh of Nation

In the last depression, Franklin D. Roosevelt made political capital of his claim that one-third of the nation lacked the food and shelter and clothing for self-respect and made it a tenet of the New Deal to provide these necessities for all. Thirty-five years later, all but one-seventh of the nation are now above the poverty level in this country. That is better than a one-half cut in the poor in that time.

These estimates are based on the findings of the U.S. Census Bureau. Every March, the bureau collects data on income for the preceding year. It has just released the 1966 findings, confirming a steady decline of the poor from 1959 to the present.

The figures are: 1959, 22 per cent of the population was classed as poor and in 1966 it is 15 per cent. Total whites below the poverty level decreased from 28 million in 1959 to 20 million in 1966 — a drop from 18 per cent of the white population to 12 per cent. The number of poor nonwhites declined from about 11 million to 10 million, or from 55 per cent to 41 per cent of the nonwhite population in the same 7-year span.

There is a long way to go for both races to achieve the level for good living, but the progress in seven years is most encouraging, and for the 35 years since the emphasis on improving their status it is sensational.

Obvious obstacles have been encountered in educating and training individuals for the work force. Many are untrainable because they are too old to learn to acquire new skills. Many of these people came from the farms. A new Civil Conservation Corps tailored to their needs, where they can earn a comfortable living in rural areas beautifying the landscape, clearing forests, reclaiming swamp land and reforesting barren country is needed. They should have their families with them, too.

Such a corps now would also relieve the pressure on urban slums, where many gather in hopeless search of work. It would also relieve cities of the back-breaking burden of relief. It would provide self-supporting work for men who want the self-respect of supporting themselves in healthful surroundings. It would be superior to the stultifying social services now provided for them.

GI Personal Job Aid

The 750,000 young men and women who will be leaving the armed services this year after serving their country will be given personal service to make sure that every opportunity is extended them in finding civilian employment.

Under the law now, the U.S. Employment Service is required to give veterans priority in job placement, but nearly 100,000 veterans had difficulty last year finding work. Taking note of this, President Johnson has ordered the 2,200 employment offices in the country to make an extra effort in their behalf.

"These men and women have served their country well," the President said "It is only right that their country serve them as well."

A pilot program in Pennsylvania proved that jobs can be secured through personalized service. Each returning veteran is contacted either by telephone or in person by a visit from the employment office. He is offered individually tailored job finding assistance, employment, counseling and testing, and referral to training or any other service which will help him obtain employment quickly. This specialized service will be extended on a nationwide basis.

This is the least that a grateful nation should do for the returning veterans.

Foreign Aid

Since the United States has given $117 billion in foreign aid in the last 20 years to more than 100 nations, it is timely for the Republican high command to call for an overhaul of our extravagance.

The Republican Coordinating Committee, made up of party leaders including former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, urged that foreign aid to hostile nations be curbed and also denied to those who are aggressors, even to denouncing leaders of foreign nations who do not heed warnings to desist from abusing the United States or rattling swords.

Our investment in foreign aid amounts to one-third the national debt. It costs taxpayers about $4 billion a year in interest. It is time to make certain that it does not harm us, even though we may not be able to direct it toward helping us.

The Republicans would put more emphasis on self-help, give more technical assistance rather than large loans, extend agricultural knowledge and techniques to countries in need, put more reliance on private enterprise than on government aid, insist on projects to reach the masses, and concentrate aid to nations of special importance to this country.

These are all forward-looking changes. They should both reduce foreign aid and make it more useful to the recipients as well as to us.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
WASHINGTON — There's an old saying that "people who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones," and it might be applied to some of the criticism currently heard at the Capitol about the "rigging" of the forthcoming elections in South Vietnam. It points up the issues of "conflict of interest" which are being studied by congressional committees as they examine the way candidates for public office in this country obtain campaign funds from individuals or groups with a stake in pending or future legislation.

Despite all the hullabaloo, for instance, about the lack of ethics in American politics, there comes over the wires this item from United Press International: "Trenton, N. J.—Attorney General Ramsey Clark will deliver the featured address at New Jersey Democrats' 100-dollar-a-plate fund-raising gala August 24 in Sea Girt, N. J."

This, of course, isn't the first time a U. S. Attorney General has made a speech before political gatherings to raise campaign funds. Mr. Clark doubtless is under the same pressure as other cabinet members have been in this and in preceding administrations, irrespective of party.

The fact remains, however, that the Department of Justice, which includes the FBI, is virtually an arm of the courts and an integral part of the judicial system. Discretionary powers are vested in the department, as it determines who should or should not be prosecuted. There are vague and ambiguous phrases in many of the existing laws which afford an opportunity to withhold at will the prosecutions in certain cases. Often this choice is referred to the White House for final decision.

Does politics play a part in these matters? Instances can be cited when there has been a long delay before certain members of Congress have been prosecuted, even though their flagrant violations of the law have been widely publicized in the press.

Incidentally, the idea of making the U. S. Department of Justice an independent agency—just as is the office of the comptroller-general—has been advocated by Representative William Minshall of Ohio, Republican, who has proposed a bill to accomplish this purpose.

The studies being made in Congress today on ethics are directly related to principles of fundamental honesty in government. Do not the political dinners at a high price per plate collect money from many persons or groups with an axe to grind in legislative matters? Haven't those members of Congress who misused government funds been violating the law?

Is there enough emphasis on simple honesty? Commendable as are many of the projects for slum clearance and the war on poverty, they do not necessarily remove the causes of the vandalism, looting and violence which have emerged in recent riots.

Can it be truly said, moreover, that a person who decides to throw rocks at someone else's property has been taught respect for a neighbor's property? Have these same disturbers of the peace ever been imbued with a knowledge of any religion or taught the meaning of morality?

Not much is being said by "civil rights" groups or other organizations about the need for more intensive activity by negro and white pastors in the "ghettos" and crowded neighborhoods. Instead, too many clergymen—including Martin Luther King and Adam Clayton Powell—spend their time arguing about political and sociological problems.

There are doubtless some provocations in individual cases which have led to violence. But the operations of gangs which throw rocks and assault policemen who try to preserve order are unquestionably due to a breakdown of morality in community life.

Maybe the president's 11-member commission which is investigating the recent riots will emphasize this, but the chances are against it. For there has arisen in recent years a reluctance in government circles to do anything to encourage instruction in religious matters or morality in the public schools or elsewhere. It's supposed to be politically risky and indiscreet. On the contrary, it really would be universally acclaimed.

Every man has memories of his mother. Adoration fogs them. Mine was a short woman, completely ageless. In my mind, she was never young, never old. She was plump, fair of skin, and had bronze glints in her hair. She had more integrity than information, sharper instinct than sophistication.

She was born in June 1884 at Jersey Avenue and Eighth Street, Jersey City. Her father was a policeman. He earned $50 a month. They had flower boxes in the windows and there were 200 chickens to be fed before school each morning. Her name was Jenny Josephine Tier and she was raised to be a housekeeper. Her mother taught her nothing except the making of beds, cooking, virtue, "neatness of person" (whatever that is), duty to God, and how to back gently into the doorbell when a suit or became ardent.

It wasn't much. When I was twelve, I fell in love with her. It was a sudden and sad emotion. In the winter, I sat reading in the afternoons with my stockinged feet in the oven, watching her over the edge of the book. I knew then that she was everything I could never be.

She did the wash in the kitchen in a galvanized tub. The long underwear froze stiff on the clotheslines. She was the daughter of a cop, and she married one. The pay was never good enough. The Bishops were always in debt. Mr. Goldman, the grocer, kept a book with purchases marked on lined pages, and he kept telling my father to please not worry about the balance.

Jenny Tier Bishop took up collections for the old people in St. Ann's Home when she should have been taking up collections for us. She seldom got a new dress. Often, she saved the $2 a week my father gave her and bought bolt goods and made her own dresses. At night, when our homework was done, we helped her sew ruffles on garters for a piece-goods house. The pay was a penny apiece.

She baked her own bread, made pies and tea biscuits, could make a vegetable soup last two days. She made her husband the master of the house. It was her will, not his. When he imposed a law she could not abide, she would clench her little fist and argue into the early hours. The only luxury she asked of life was a pair of diamond earrings. She got them, and had to put them in a hook shop the following summer.

Sometimes, our family became extravagant and, instead of meat cakes, we had sirloin steak. It was a ceremony. On those occasions, my father put the apron on, and did the cooking. When guests came, my mother showed the ladies her china closet and cut glass. The men poured sherry and port and someone always played the piano and some lady with a big chest sang.

Jenny was my girl until I met one. Overnight, she became an older woman. There were edges of gray around the temples; a gold cap on one tooth; the china blue eyes were dull with fatigue. I kissed her perfunctorily, like a shaking hands. Two years later, she told me that it was proper to leave the nest when they matured. It had to be. But I knew she didn't like to see me go. Still, she smiled at the wedding and — a rare thing for her — drank a watery Manhattan.

For a long time, her marriage to my father was on the rocks, and the sunsets came swiftly. She watched her family diminish from five to four to three to two to one. She was an old lady and, when I couldn't postpone any longer, I went to see her. "What I have left," she said, palms up, "is my pride. Without it, son, I'm lost."

Then the marriage straightened itself out, and, when the sunrises came, she went blind. "What do I want to see?" she said to my father. "I've seen everything." She had seen nothing. She had been nowhere. She still got $2 a week for herself.

Some thought she was "cold," without feeling, because she held her chin high. Writing, she felt, was not work. It was a hobby, and she could never concede that I might be paid a few dollars for putting words on paper. "If this new book doesn't sell," she would say, "do you think you'll go out and look for a job?"

I became lucky with a book and bought diamond earrings for her. She broke down and hung her head. She could only feel them. I got a house for her and my father, and she said she felt like a "real millionaire." My father did all the cooking, and, in the final years, she became his baby.

One night ten years ago, she died nice and easy. No strain. In repose, she looked pretty again. And of course, she could see . . .

Remember MacArthur's Error

WASHINGTON — Scarcely 17 years ago, Gen. Douglas MacArthur began his confident thrust into North Korea. The story of what happened as his troops pushed toward the Chinese border is available in secret documents which no longer involve any military security.

The Supreme Commander didn't think the Chinese would enter the war. Although his intelligence had detected a Chinese troop build-up in Manchuria, he assured the Joint Chiefs this was "not an immediate index or warlike intentions."

Less assured, the Joint Chiefs flashed their concern to MacArthur by telegram across the Pacific. Their message, No. TT-3848, dated October 4, 1950, warned: "The potential exists for Chinese Communist forces to openly intervene in the Korean War if UN forces cross the 38th parallel."

But MacArthur, hard on the scent of victory, was driving northward. By October 7 he was in North Korea. By the month's end his forces were fanned out across the top of North Korea, approaching the Yalu.

He was mopping up the last pockets of resistance when the Chinese suddenly thundered down upon Korea. MacArthur at first refused to believe what was happening. Four days after the Eighth Army's northward push had been brought to a jolting halt, he advised the joint chiefs in message No. C-6825, dated November 3, 1950, against "hasty conclusions which might be premature."

But he became convinced as the Chinese drove a wedge between his Eighth Army and Tenth Corps, forcing retreats. On December 7, Pearl Harbor Day, a desperate MacArthur drew up plans for evacuating Korea. The plans were approved by the Joint Chiefs two days later, but never had to be carried out.

China Today
Today, as the air war against North Vietnam moves ever closer to the Chinese border, a few cautious generals are reviewing their military history.

The situation, of course, is not the same. Red China is not now menaced by American troops. The Russians, who backed the Chinese play in Korea, are now engaged in actual border clashes with their erstwhile allies. And the aging Red Chinese emperor, Mao Tse-tung, is unable to control the strife within his own borders.

Yet Chinese troops and planes are poised across the border for a move into North Vietnam. Like MacArthur 17 years ago, Gen. William Westmoreland, the American commander in Vietnam, does not believe they will intervene. The Joint Chiefs tend to agree with him. But some generals have not forgotten that the Chinese, if sufficiently agitated, will fight.

President Johnson is also under pressure, as was President Truman 17 years ago, to end the war quickly with a nuclear knockout.

In Korea the Eighth Army urged the use of atomic weapons to halt the Chinese advance, and the Fifth Air Force drew up targets for a nuclear strike. But military surveys produced no troops concentrations or supply depots large enough to justify nuclear weapons. The mountains and forests simply afforded too much natural camouflage.

The Army's brain trust, the Operations Research Office, conducted a study in early 1951 on the destructibility of atomic weapons in Korea. The conclusion was that atomic weapons might have taken a heavy toll of Chinese troops if the reaction could have been swifter. But every troop concentration that was located disappeared before bombers could have attacked.

There are even fewer nuclear opportunities in Vietnam, where the enemy troops are better camouflaged and dispersed. The strategic targets can also be knocked out more efficiently with conventional bombs.

Meanwhile our generals, with all too typical hindsight, prepared for a Korea-style war in South Vietnam. The South Vietnamese government pleaded for the United States to train and equip provincial militiamen to resist guerrilla warfare on their home grounds.

But U. S. generals, thinking they knew better, insisted upon building a conventional army to withstand a Korea-like invasion. For 12 years the South Vietnamese army has been trained to fight a conventional war along a defined front.

Our own forces, under Gen. Westmoreland's leadership, quickly adjusted to guerrilla warfare. But the South Vietnamese have stuck largely to the conventional tactics their American advisers taught them.

Twelve years too late, our generals have admitted their mistake, and now want to revamp the South Vietnamese army into a counterinsurgency force. The South Vietnamese will now receive the training and equipment that they originally requested.

More than a few generals, meanwhile, privately believe about Vietnam what Gen. Mark Clark said about Korea. After he took command of the American forces in Korea, he wrote: "Never again should we be mousetrapped into fighting another defensive war on that peninsula."

The Republicans' man on the Senate Small Business staff, Dan Coughlin, has resigned in the middle of the drug hearings. He will go to work for the Upjohn Company, one of the big drug companies he supposedly has been investigating. . . . One of the administrator's top troubleshooters is leaving government. He is Walter Posen, who handled White House and Congressional assignments for Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall. The 33-year-old Posen will take over as Washington partner for the Wall Street law firm of Stroock and Lavan.

Switzerland's Contribution

GENEVA, Switzerland — There is a touch of Switzerland in our Washington Monument, and this is how it got there.

When the great spire was erected the Swiss Confederation sent a beautifully polished granite block six feet long and four feet wide to be imbedded in it. The Swiss message: "To the memory of Washington."

Switzerland also prepared a sandstone fragment inscribed: "This block of stone is from the original chapel built to William Tell in 1338, Lake Lucerne."

But Switzerland exploded as if the mountains were split. The Historical Society of Switzerland led the protest against sending the block—on the grounds that William Tell never existed.

Swiss history and the intellectual life are not tampered with in this lovely land. And through the absence of wars and the serene atmosphere the uninterrupted cultural lineage has been an unbelievable beneficial, ever-flowing stream.

On Geneva's Restoration Monument you can see an excerpt from an Ordinance of 1536 proclaiming free compulsory education for all children. Most European countries did not have compulsory education for children until after World War I.

Go to the University of Basel and you can see in the library vaults the Erasmus

Papers. Erasmus of Rotterdam lived on one of Basel's narrow, twisting, medieval streets. And with his papers you will also find probably the world's greatest collection of monastery parchments on which civilization was so largely preserved through the Dark Ages.

The monks of St. Gall, even before the year 1000, started creating works of art. Chaucer relied for his life on the hospice established by St. Bernard of Menthon when he traveled all the way to Padua to see Plutarch. Early in the Renaissance, Hans Holbein the younger made his mark in Basel.

Geneva was the source, and actually the cause, of much of the mutual animosity between Jean Jacques Rousseau and Voltaire. Voltaire, born in Paris, stayed away from Paris for 28 years. And when royal France burned his books and sought his arrest, Rousseau gave him sanctuary. Rousseau, born in Geneva, was banished from Geneva—a son denied his own home.

Rousseau lived instead on the Lake of Geneva, to whose breezes and waters he owes so many of his happiest inspirations, relieved there from the desert that was his life.

He set his "Nouvelle Heloise" at the famous 9th Century Chillon Castle near Montreux and to this day you can see there Byron's name where the poet scratched it on a grim, grey dungeon pillar immortalized in his "The Prisoner of Chillon."

Napoleon's cultural favonities, such as sculptor David d'Angers, fared badly here, related in the public mind to 30,000 gold francs that Bonaparte liberated from the treasury in Bern and that were part of his equipment for the conquest of Egypt. But in the day of Napoleon's tyranny Mme. Germaine de Staël's Chatou de Coppet drew as pilgrims the intellectual leaders of all free Europe. Here was an interesting woman — mercurial, reflective, full of wonder.

The most romantic shade of all the romantic shades in the life of Balzac falls on the quay—a projected rock to be exact — at Neuchâtel. Like a pebble unloosed, this rock set in motion an avalanche of major troubles for him. It was there that Balzac finally saw for the first time in their long - arranged rendezvous Ukrainian Countess Evalina Hanska and began the great turbulent drama of the heart that lasted 16 years in a pursuit all over Europe and ended in his marriage to her. In this period Buckhardt and Woolfin of Basel opened new perspectives to art and culture and Swiss literature acceded to European status with Gotthold's novels of peasant life.

The presence of Switzerland in our intellectual world has made the good things better and the bad things less bad.

Bad Trip on LSD

By JOHN JUSTIN SMITH
Chicago Daily News Service

URBANA, Ill., Aug. 15 — Police noticed David Mikowski Sunday afternoon, as he wandered aimlessly down Main St. tall and gaunt, with long dark hair, he was obviously bewildered.

"Isn't this St. Louis?" he asked the policemen.

He began to talk about a bad trip and stumbling through a big hall that was really his mind, and the army and LSD and things in his subconscious too ugly to discuss.

He was sent to the psychiatric ward of Mercy Hospital here.

David, who is 20 and lives with his parents, in Lombard, Ill., was lucid as he began to recall the chaos in his mind since a bad LSD trip last December.

He was a student at the University of Arizona in Tucson, where he and some buddies were experimenting with marijuana and LSD, the mind-expanding drug.

David ran into trouble on his 12th experience, or trip, with LSD.

"The first trips were nice," he recalled. "And then I had a real bad one. I took a lot of the stuff and sat in a dark room and did a little mind walking."

He suddenly envisioned himself in a huge room.

"It was my mind," he said. "And in the hall was a door. It was marked subconscious. He opened the door and walked in."

"Things began pecking at me. Things in black. One of them landed on me and it had the feet of a bird. I saw some cards with writing on them and they were my subconscious thoughts."

"I discovered things that are better left unsaid."

The next thing about the experience that David recalls is waking up and struggling with his buddies. In his hand was a knife. He was trying to kill himself.

"It was a washout of a trip."

A failure. I want no more of LSD," he said at the time.

But LSD was apparently not through with him.

The dream of being in the big hall kept crowding into his thoughts. He left school. The thoughts stayed with him.

Last month David said good-bye to his parents—his father, Joseph, is a diesel engineer—and went off to the army. He had been drafted.

While standing at a train station in Chicago, waiting for a train to St. Louis, he saw a huge engine roaring down the tracks.

"The train scared me to death," he said. "I got sick and went to the washroom. When I came back the train was gone."

David started hitchhiking to Missouri. But again, things grew vague. Suddenly it was Aug. 14, and he was in a hospital bed in Urbana.

"I don't want anything to do with LSD," he said. "It scares me."

Mikowski has been turned over to army authorities.

One-Seventh of Nation

In the last depression, Franklin D. Roosevelt made political capital of his claim that one-third of the nation lacked the food and shelter and clothing for self-respect and made it a tenet of the New Deal to provide these necessities for all. Thirty-five years later, all but one-seventh of the nation are now above the poverty level in this country. That is better than a one-half cut in the poor in that time.

These estimates are based on the findings of the U.S. Census Bureau. Every March, the bureau collects data on income for the preceding year. It has just released the 1966 findings, confirming a steady decline of the poor from 1959 to the present.

The figures are: 1959, 22 per cent of the population was classed as poor and in 1966 it is 15 per cent. Total whites below the poverty level decreased from 28 million in 1959 to 20 million in 1966 — a drop from 18 per cent of the white population to 12 per cent. The number of poor nonwhites declined from about 11 million to 10 million, or from 55 per cent to 41 per cent of the nonwhite population in the same 7-year span.

There is a long way to go for both races to achieve the level for good living, but the progress in seven years is most encouraging, and for the 35 years since the emphasis on improving their status it is sensational.

Obvious obstacles have been encountered in educating and training individuals for the work force. Many are untrainable because they are too old to learn to acquire new skills. Many of these people came from the farms. A new Civil Conservation Corps tailored to their needs, where they can earn a comfortable living in rural areas beautifying the landscape, clearing forests, reclaiming swamp land and reforesting barren country is needed. They should have their families with them, too.

Such a corps now would also relieve the pressure on urban slums, where many gather in hopeless search of work. It would also relieve cities of the back-breaking burden of relief. It would provide self-supporting work for men who want the self-respect of supporting themselves in healthful surroundings. It would be superior to the stultifying social services now provided for them.

GI Personal Job Aid

The 750,000 young men and women who will be leaving the armed services this year after serving their country will be given personal service to make sure that every opportunity is extended them in finding civilian employment.

Under the law now, the U.S. Employment Service is required to give veterans priority in job placement, but nearly 100,000 veterans had difficulty last year finding work. Taking note of this, President Johnson has ordered the 2,200 employment offices in the country to make an extra effort in their behalf.

"These men and women have served their country well," the President said "It is only right that their country serve them as well."

A pilot program in Pennsylvania proved that jobs can be secured through personalized service. Each returning veteran is contacted either by telephone or in person by a visit from the employment office. He is offered individually tailored job finding assistance, employment, counseling and testing, and referral to training or any other service which will help him obtain employment quickly. This specialized service will be extended on a nationwide basis.

This is the least that a grateful nation should do for the returning veterans.

Foreign Aid

Since the United States has given $117 billion in foreign aid in the last 20 years to more than 100 nations, it is timely for the Republican high command to call for an overhaul of our extravagance.

The Republican Coordinating Committee, made up of party leaders including former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, urged that foreign aid to hostile nations be curbed and also denied to those who are aggressors, even to denouncing leaders of foreign nations who do not heed warnings to desist from abusing the United States or rattling swords.

Our investment in foreign aid amounts to one-third the national debt. It costs taxpayers about $4 billion a year in interest. It is time to make certain that it does not harm us, even though we may not be able to direct it toward helping us.

The Republicans would put more emphasis on self-help, give more technical assistance rather than large loans, extend agricultural knowledge and techniques to countries in need, put more reliance on private enterprise than on government aid, insist on projects to reach the masses, and concentrate aid to nations of special importance to this country.

These are all forward-looking changes. They should both reduce foreign aid and make it more useful to the recipients as well as to us.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — There's an old saying that "people who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones," and it might be applied to some of the criticism currently heard at the Capitol about the "rigging" of the forthcoming elections in South Vietnam. It points up the issues of "conflict of interest" which are being studied by congressional committees as they examine the way candidates for public office in this country obtain campaign funds from individuals or groups with a stake in pending or future legislation.

Despite all the hullabaloo, for instance, about the lack of ethics in American politics, there comes over the wires this item from United Press International:

Trenton, N. J.—Attorney General Ramsey Clark will deliver the featured address at New Jersey Democrats' 100-dollar-a-plate fund-raising gala August 24 in Sea Girt, N. J.

This, of course, isn't the first time a U. S. Attorney General has made a speech before political gatherings to raise campaign funds. Mr. Clark doubtless is under the same pressure as other cabinet members have been in this and in preceding administrations, irrespective of party.

The fact remains, however, that the Department of Justice, which includes the FBI, is virtually an arm of the courts and an integral part of the judicial system. Discretionary powers are vested in the department, as it determines who should or should not be prosecuted. There are vague and ambiguous phrases in many of the existing laws which afford an opportunity to withhold at will the prosecutions in certain cases. Often this choice is referred to the White House for final decision.

Does politics play a part in these matters? Instances can be cited when there has been a long delay before certain members of Congress have been prosecuted, even though their flagrant violations of the law have been widely publicized in the press.

Incidentally, the idea of making the U. S. Department of Justice an independent agency—just as is the office of the comptroller-general—has been advocated by Representative William Minshall of Ohio, Republican, who has proposed a bill to accomplish this purpose.

The studies being made in Congress today on ethics are directly related to principles of fundamental honesty in government. Do not the political dinners at a high price per plate collect money from many persons or groups with an ax to grind in legislative matters? Haven't those members of Congress who misused government funds been violating the law?

Is there enough emphasis on simple honesty? Commendable as are many of the projects for slum clearance and the war on poverty, they do not necessarily remove the causes of the vandalism, looting and violence which have emerged in recent riots.

Can it be truly said, moreover, that a person who decides to throw rocks at someone else's property has been taught respect for a neighbor's property? Have these same disturbers of the peace ever been imbued with a knowledge of any religion or taught the meaning of morality?

Yet Chinese troops and planes are poised across the border for a move into North Vietnam. Like MacArthur 17 years ago, Gen. William Westmoreland, the American commander in Vietnam, does not believe they will intervene. The Joint Chiefs tend to agree with him. But some generals have not forgotten that the Chinese, if sufficiently agitated, will fight.

President Johnson is also under pressure, as was President Truman 17 years ago, to end the war quickly with a nuclear knockout.

In Korea the Eighth Army urged the use of atomic weapons to halt the Chinese advance, and the Fifth Air Force drew up targets for a nuclear strike. But military surveys produced no troops concentrations or supply depots large enough to justify nuclear weapons. The mountains and forests simply afforded too much natural camouflage.

The Army's brain trust, the Operations Research Office, conducted a study in early 1951 on the destructibility of atomic weapons in Korea. The conclusion was that atomic weapons might have taken a heavy toll of Chinese troops if the reaction could have been swifter. But every troop concentration that was located disappeared before bombers could have attacked.

There are even fewer nuclear opportunities in Vietnam, where the enemy troops are better camouflaged and dispersed. The strategic targets can also be knocked out more efficiently with conventional bombs.

Meanwhile our generals, with all too typical hindsight, prepared for a Korea-style war in South Vietnam. The South Vietnamese government pleaded for the United States to train and equip provincial militiamen to resist guerrilla warfare on their home grounds.

But U. S. generals, thinking they knew better, insisted upon building a conventional army to withstand a Korea-like invasion. For 12 years the South Vietnamese army has been trained to fight a conventional war along a defined front.

Our own forces, under Gen. Westmoreland's leadership, quickly adjusted to guerrilla warfare. But the South Vietnamese have stuck largely to the conventional tactics their American advisers taught them.

Twelve years too late, our generals have admitted their mistake, and now want to revamp the South Vietnamese army into a counterinsurgency force. The South Vietnamese will now receive the training and equipment that they originally requested.

More than a few generals, meanwhile, privately believe about Vietnam what Gen. Mark Clark said about Korea. After he took command of the American forces in Korea, he wrote: "Never again should we be mouse-trapped into fighting another defensive war on that peninsula."

Headlines and Footnotes

The Republicans' man on the Senate Small Business staff, Dan Coughlin, has resigned in the middle of the drug hearings. He will go to work for the Upjohn Company, one of the big drug companies he supposedly has been investigating. . . . One of the administrator's top troubleshooters is leaving government. He is Walter Pozen, who handled White House and Congressional assignments for Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall. The 33-year-old Pozen will take over as Washington partner for the Wall Street law firm of Stroock and Lavan.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Switzerland's Contribution

GENEVA, Switzerland — There is a touch of Switzerland in our Washington Monument, and this is how it got there.

When the great spire was erected the Swiss Confederation sent a beautifully polished granite block six feet long and four feet wide to be imbedded in it. The Swiss message: "To the memory of Switzerland."

Switzerland also prepared a sandstone fragment inscribed: "This block of stone is from the original chapel built to William Tell in 1338, Lake Lucerne."

But Switzerland exploded as if the mountains were split. The Historical Society of Switzerland led the protest against sending the block — on the grounds that William Tell never existed.

Swiss history and the intellectual life are not tampered with in this lovely land. And through the absence of wars and the serene atmosphere the uninterrupted cultural lineage has been an unbelievable, beneficial, ever-flowing stream.

On Geneva's Restoration Monument you can see an excerpt from an Ordinance of 1536 proclaiming free compulsory education for all children. Most European countries did not have compulsory education for children until after World War I.

Go to the University of Basel and you can see in the library vaults the Erasmus

Papers. Erasmus of Rotterdam lived on one of Basel's narrow, twisting, medieval streets. And with his papers you will also find probably the world's greatest collection of monastery parchments on which civilization was so largely preserved through the Dark Ages.

The monks of St. Gall, even before the year 1000, started creating works of art. Chaucer relied for his life on the hospice established by St. Bernard of Menthon when he traveled all the way to Padua to see Plutarch. Early in the Renaissance, Hans Holbein the younger made his mark in Basel.

Geneva was the source, and actually the cause, of much of the mutual animosity between Jean Jacques Rousseau and Voltaire. Voltaire, born in Paris, stayed away from Paris for 28 years. And when royal France burned his books and sought his arrest Geneva gave him sanctuary. Rousseau, born in Geneva, was banned from Geneva — a son denied his own home.

Rousseau lived instead on the Lake of Biene to whose breezes and waters he owes so many of his happiest inspirations, relieved there from the desert that was his life.

He set his "Nouvelle Heloise" at the famous 9th Century Chillon Castle near Montreux and to this day you can see there Byron's name where the poet scratched it on a grim, grey dungeon pillar immortalized in his "The Prisoner of Chillon."

Napoleon's cultural favorites, such as sculptor David d'Angers, fared badly here, related in the public mind to 30,000 gold francs that Bonaparte liberated from the treasury in Bern and that were part of his equipment for the conquest of Egypt. But in the day of Napoleon's tyranny Mme. Germaine de Staël's Chateau de Coppet drew as pilgrims the intellectual leaders of all free Europe. Here was an interesting woman — mercurial, reflective, full of wonder.

The most romantic shade of all the romantic shades in the life of Balzac falls on the quay — a projected rock to be exact — at Neuchâtel. Like a pebble unloosed, this rock set in motion an avalanche of major troubles for him. It was there that Balzac finally saw for the first time in their long-arranged rendezvous Ukrainian Countess Evallina Hanksa and began the great turbulent drama of the heart that lasted 16 years in a pursuit all over Europe and ended in his marriage to her. In this period Buckhardt and Wolfflin of Basel opened new perspectives to art and culture and Swiss literature acceded to European status with Gotthold's novels of peasant life.

The presence of Switzerland in our intellectual world has made the good things better and the bad things less bad.

Bad Trip on LSD

By JOHN JUSTIN SMITH
Chicago Daily News Service

URBANA, Ill., Aug. 15 — Police noticed David Mikowski Sunday afternoon, as he wandered aimlessly down Main St. tall and gaunt, with long dark hair, he was obviously bewildered.

"Isn't this St. Louis?" he asked the policemen.

He began to talk about a bad trip and stumbling through a big hall that was really his mind, and the army and LSD and things in his subconscious too ugly to discuss.

He was sent to the psychiatric ward of Mercy Hospital here.

David, who is 20 and lives with his parents in Lombard, Ill., was lucid as he began to recall the chaos in his mind since a bad LSD trip last December.

He was a student at the University of Arizona in Tucson, where he and some buddies were experimenting with marijuana and LSD, the mind-expanding drug.

David ran into trouble on his 12th experience, or trip, with LSD.

"The first trips were nice," he recalled. "And then I had a real bad one. I took a lot of the stuff and sat in a dark room and did a little mind walking."

He suddenly envisioned himself in a huge room. "It was my mind," he said. And in the hall was a door. It was marked subconscious. He opened the door and walked in.

"Things began pecking at me. Things in black. One of them landed on me and it had the feet of a bird. I saw some cards with writing on them and they were my subconscious thoughts."

"I discovered things that are better left unsaid."

The next thing about the experience that David recalls is waking up and struggling with his buddies. In his hand was a knife. He was trying to kill himself.

"It was a washout of a trip. A failure. I want no more of LSD," he said at the time. But LSD was apparently not through with him.

The dream of being in the big hall kept crowding into his thoughts. He left school. The thoughts stayed with him.

Last month David said good-bye to his parents — his father, Joseph, is a diesel engineer — and went off to the army. He had been drafted.

While standing at a train station in Chicago, waiting for a train to St. Louis, he saw a huge engine come roaring down the tracks.

"The train scared me to death," he said. "I got sick and went to the washroom. When I came back the train was gone."

David started hitchhiking to Missouri. But again, things grew vague. Suddenly it was Aug. 14, and he was in a hospital bed in Urbana.

"I don't want anything to do with LSD," he said. "It scares me."

Mikowski has been turned over to army authorities.

Survey About Riots Show Some Very Disturbing Facts

BY VAN GORDON SAUTER
Chicago Daily News Service

The basic tragedy of the riots that have ripped America this summer is not reflected in the statistics of death and destruction, but in the fact these conflicts have not brought whites and Negroes closer to any real understanding of their respective problems.

The rubble of riot spread across several great cities seems to symbolize the massive areas of conflict between whites and Negroes as to why there are riots and how they can be prevented.

"Negroes and whites are operating on different wavelengths today," observed Terry Knope, a research associate at the Lemberg Center for the study of violence.

The Center, located at Brandeis University in suburban Waltham, surveyed whites and Negroes in six northern cities about riots and discovered these disturbing facts:

—Whites and Negroes are far from agreement over what is the correct pace of integration.

—Whites generally see outside agitators as the source of riots; Negroes place the blame on oppressive local conditions.

—An increasing number of Negroes are viewing riots as successful means of obtaining concessions from Whites.

"The gap between Negro and white attitudes concerning the pace of integration can only be described as enormous," according to a Lemberg Center report.

While Negroes are impatient for change, the report noted, whites tend to think integration is going "just about right" or "too fast."

"The attitudes of whites," the report continued, "seems to be based on ignorance or indifference to the factual basis of Negro resentment and bitterness."

"The discrepancy regarding rate of change . . . is of such proportions as to constitute a national problem of catastrophic dimensions."

The Center's survey also revealed that whites generally believe the major riot cause to be agitators "coming into the city."

The report says that "whites refuse to see riots as (provoked) by basic forces and real conditions within the Negro community.

"It is quite possible," the report continued, "that the gap in opinion . . . is a product of the ignorance among whites of the real conditions in the ghetto."

While whites seek to blame alien-agitators for riots, Negroes place the blame on poor job and housing opportunities, police brutality and broken promises by City Hall.

Dr. Thomas Pettigrew, a Harvard sociologist, said whites cling to the "agitator" theory "because they just don't want to believe that so many people could be so angry."

"They look for devils," he said the "agitator" theory is "just a slightly drawn but version of the belief in the Mississippi Delta that 'our Negroes are happy' and violence is to be blamed on outsiders."

"Guerrilla warfare is highly disciplined affair," the professor continued, "more so than a conventional war. There is no such level of organization in the riots. "It is a spontaneous sort of violence (like) a killing in a dice game or the stabbing of a wife. Riots such as in Detroit are aggregate versions of that kind of violence."

Miss Knopf said there is increasing agreement between whites and Negroes, however, that violence does advance the cause of Civil Rights.

"Negroes generally deplore violence," she declared, "but they increasingly are coming to the opinion that rioting does pay.

"Whites, though in fewer numbers, agree."

Half the Negroes, and about a third of the whites, interviewed by the Center agreed that "if it had not been for the riots in the past, Congress would not have passed Civil Rights laws."

Miss Knopf indicated that because of the lack of understanding from the white community, and the apparent gains resulting from violence, many Negroes are shifting their attitudes towards riots."

"It would appear," she said, "that moderates are becoming militants and militants are becoming extremists."

Intense Forms of Protest

The Center's report noted that "Negroes are shifting to the opinion that only intense forms of social protest can bring relief from social injustice."

Dr. Ralph Conant, associate director of the Center, said the Negro community is not seeking to develop a style of "organized aggressive protest."

"It will not be characterized by looting and burning," he added. "It will not be a violent civil war."

He said the Negro community is seeking a protest form that will "hurt the white power structure" to the extent that it will command the changes necessary to bring equality to Negroes.

Dr. Conant said the Negro community is now in the same predicament of American industrial workers before labor unions developed means of exacting just concessions from employers.

But until Negroes can develop a means of getting necessary concessions, Dr. Conant said there will be more "spontaneous riots" in the nation's cities.

As the Center's studies have revealed, there is little apparent recognition in the white community of the ghetto problems.

And in fact, the majority of whites seem to feel that whatever problems do exist are being resolved.

"Racial violence is our business," said Miss Knopf in describing the work of the Center.

It unfortunately appears the Center will have enough business to keep it occupied for years to come.

Vietnam War Takes Toll Of U.S. Strength in Europe

BY DONALD R. SHANOR
Chicago Daily News Foreign Service

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Aug. 17 — The green and brown relief maps at U. S. Army European Headquarters here have pins and symbols showing the development of Western and Soviet troops in Germany.

Vietnam, balance of payments problem and France's withdrawal from NATO have caused some of those symbols to disappear from the Western side. Others do not represent the strength and combat experience they once did.

Now there are new warnings from Washington, in President Johnson's talks with West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger, that if the Germans go through with the considerable troop cuts they are contemplating, 7th Army strength may have to be reduced, too.

What troubles the military men commanding the 225,000 American troops is that there is no indication that any pins are disappearing from the Soviet side of the map.

Since there is no Soviet Vietnam, the 20 Soviet divisions—10 armored, 10 mechanized—are believed to be at full strength, with veteran officers, a high level of training and the newest weapons.

By contrast, the 7th Army is thin in experienced officers of the middle grades, short of technicians such as helicopter mechanics, and very long on two-year men—for the most part draftees anxious to return home.

"It's an army of kids," one officer said. No one here questions the priority of Vietnam. But no one disguises a certain anxiety over the state of the six U. S. divisions that face the 20 Soviet divisions in a war that probably never will be fought.

This is only the military side of the complex question of troop reductions in Europe.

It is a question more and more under discussion in the NATO member countries. The Germans, faced with budget problems, talk of cuts between 20,000 and 60,000 men in the 460,000-man Bundeswehr. Britain and the smaller NATO members discuss similar thinning-out plans.

The belief is that Western troop cuts will not only save manpower and money but will be matched—formally or tactically—by the other side.

So far, there has been no indication whatever from the Russians that anything of the sort is contemplated.

But the Soviets made two good reasons for reducing their 300,000 men.

One is that they, too, are feeling the stresses and strains of a military alliance. Romania, playing the role of France in NATO, has objected to helping pay for Soviet troop support costs in East Germany.

It has also announced that henceforth Romanian troops will be less dependent on the arms delivery arrangements of the Warsaw Pact.

The other reason is that mutual cuts would be a good thing for the Soviets in the long run. One of their aims is to get U. S. troops out of Europe. A way to start would be to agree to division-by-division reductions.

The most important ingredient in the whole issue, as Washington discovered anew this week, is the Germans.

The West German leaders want the Americans to stay a while longer because they still fear the Russians. The East German leaders want a strong Soviet Army around because they fear their own people.

Senator Percy's Dilemma

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Republican Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois faces more tantalizing decisions than any professed noncandidate for president should have to confront. His only comfort is that he can put them off for several months.

He has to decide whether to try to be Illinois' favorite son, knowing that if he is not he will be somewhat weakened as a 1968 GOP presidential prospect.

He may have to decide, near the end of February, whether to allow his name to go into the all-candidate Wisconsin primary (and probably similar tests in Nebraska and Oregon), knowing that if he does some moderates will accuse him of a "wrecking operation" against Michigan's Gov. George Romney, moderate.

The senator's aides indicate that Percy does not intend to resolve his dilemma over the primaries until he must— which means when the Wisconsin filing deadline approaches at February's end.

The passage of time may or may not ease this problem. Since the New Hampshire primary, involving Romney, Richard Nixon and possibly Gov. John Volpe of Massachusetts, comes two weeks after the Wisconsin deadline, the senator will have to leap one way or the other without knowing how Romney has done on a real voting test.

If Percy acts on the basis of pregame polls in New Hampshire, he might regret it. Some polls in the 1964 primaries were far off the mark. The senator's puzzlement over the favorite son issue can hardly be less acute. Published reports notwithstanding, he is a long way from settling that matter. He has not even discussed it with the key man, Sen. Everett Dirksen, his senior colleague.

Right now, Illinois Republican professionals think Dirksen himself both needs and deserves favorite son status as a major boost to his 1968 re-election bid.

They expect Dirksen will have the stiffest Democratic opposition of his senatorial career. State Treasurer Adlai Stevenson III is typical of the name-value candidates the Democrats are considering.

The professionals argue further that Dirksen's move to support Percy for the Senate in 1966, though brought about by heavy party pressure, should be reciprocated by Percy next year through support for Dirksen as favorite son.

Talk of Percy for this rule is stirring some party hostility. If this talk persists, one Illinois professional believes it could widen what he terms the largely "sleeping" animosity between Percy and Dirksen forces in the state.

Percy forces say interest in their man as favorite son is coming from many party sources. Some party hardhats credit Illinois Rep. Paul Findley with sparking the talk.

Though these professionals are today firmly against the move, they recognize the predicament for Percy on the national scene.

It would be extremely awkward, they say, for the senator to be "getting the call" as a strong presidential prospect elsewhere in the country while not hearing it loud and clear from his own state.

The easy out Illinois Republicans dream of: a turn in the Democratic party which would cast up a weak opponent for Dirksen and permit him to defeat Percy as favorite son. No one, however, really thinks this is very likely.

Meantime, Percy keeps to his pace as the "available man," pressing and publicizing his legislative causes, making speeches here and there, letting party leaders in many places see him close up.

Most national party leaders think this is the wise course for him. But it cannot distract him indefinitely from the crucial choices that lie ahead.

Income Tax Merit Award

ALBANY, Aug. 21—State Tax Commissioner Joseph H. Murphy today presented Mrs. Gail Gardner, an employee in the Income Tax Bureau, with a check for $1,000 in recognition of a Merit Award suggestion that is estimated will save the State in excess of $18,000 annually.

Mrs. Gardner, who lives with her husband, William, at 1836 Osterlitz Avenue, Schenectady, is a key punch operator in the Income Tax Bureau. She entered State service in 1959.

Mrs. Gardner's idea, which earned the first $1,000 award since 1961 to any State employee—suggested revision of the alphabetic and numeric sequence for punching income tax record cards.

The change makes it possible for operators to commence punching numeric digits with their right hand while removing completed work from the work board with their left hand. The result is a more efficient and speedier operation.

Hunt Three Who Fired at U. S. Embassy

LONDON (AP) — Police throughout southeast England searched today for three well dressed men in a white car who machine gunned a side entrance of the U.S. Embassy in London and left a note attacking American racial and foreign policies.

The burst of fire at 11:35 p.m. Sunday drilled holes the size of tennis balls in and around the side door of the big concrete and glass building, smashed three glass door panels and punctured lamps on the steps.

"The attack was sudden and sharp—just like something from the prohibition era," said a Scotland Yard spokesman.

One of the two U.S. Marine guards in the building—Cpl. John McNamara, 23, of the Bronx, N.Y.—was about to pass the side door when the attack came. But no one was injured.

A British policeman on duty outside the main entrance threw himself to the ground when he heard the firing. McNamara and Staff Sgt. Francis McLaughlin of Wyncote, Pa., the other Marine on duty, rushed out in time to see a white Ford Cortina speed away.

The gunman left behind a foot-long sheet of paper. Scrawled on it in capital letters was this message: "STOP CRIMINAL MURDERS OF THE AMERICAN ARMY. SOLIDARITY WITH ALL PEOPLE BATTILING AGAINST YAN-KEE FASCISM ALL OVER THE WORLD. RACISM NO FREEDOM FOR AMERICAN NEGROES."

First Thrilling

New Jump Fatal

ROCKLEDGE, Fla. (AP) — A pretty young woman who described her first parachute jump as "the most thrilling thing" she had ever done plunged 1,200 feet to her death from an airplane Sunday.

Officials said Ricky Wasik, 22, plummeted to the earth when she caught her arm in the lines of a pilot chute causing her main parachute to stay closed.

Her husband, John, 26, space writer for the Melbourne Times and an amateur sky-diver, watched her body hurtle to the turf of Green Airport.

There are only a few members of the Narraganset Indian tribe remaining.

Dutchess Field Safe: FAA

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick's inquiry into the operations and safety conditions of the Dutchess County Airport recently received a reply from the Federal Aviation Administration which stated that, "With regard to Dutchess County Airport in general, we find no unsafe conditions."

In a letter sent to the Congressman by Oscar Bakke, director of the Eastern region of the Aviation Administration, it was pointed out that, "The Federal Aviation Administration is, of course, vitally concerned with airport safety as it is with safety in all aspects of aviation. We do object, whenever we have justification, to any airport condition which we believe might adversely affect aviation safety."

The Bakke letter went on to say, "With particular emphasis on the extension of runway 6-24 to the southwest (without Federal aid), we gave no objection to the proposed extension from a safety standpoint. The primary responsibility for airport development lies with Dutchess County and, while we recommended the construction of the extension to the northeast for financial reasons, this office interposes no objection to the current runway extension project."

against the Japanese and the French who, at that time, were controlled by Nazi Germany, and that, because of our support the present North Vietnamese Premier modeled the Vietnamese Declaration of Independence after the U. S. Declaration of 1776.

Greening said that the war was illegal because it broke the U. N. Charter and violated the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization agreement.

"Articles 1 and 2 of the U. N. Charter states that disputes will be settled only by peaceful means" with "Article 33 putting down the alternatives to war, etc." and that, in the case of aggression, "Article 37 (of the U. N. Charter, to which the United States is a signatory) says that the matter shall be referred to the Security Council."

As for the SEATO Treaty, "Article 4 states that in the event of a breach of the peace, the signatory members will consult" with one another, something "which was not done" when the U. S. became involved in the Vietnam War.

"We can see that we are in there illegally," the Senator concluded.

Greening stated that one justification given for the U. S. being involved in Vietnam "was the idea that we were stopping Communism," but "the fact is that we are helping Communism because neither the Russians nor the Chinese have committed any troops" to the conflict, whereas "we are bleeding badly" in an Asian land war that "Generals such as MacArthur, Ridgeway, and Bradley warned against."

The Alaskan claimed that the U. S. "cannot win militarily" in the Southeast Asian country, but that "we can only lay the country to waste."

He said that "even the South Vietnamese army will not fight" for their own cause, and that "in 1965 there were 96,900 desertions" in that army, which constituted "one-fourth of their fighting force" and in 1966 there were 110,000 desertions.

"Nothing We Can Win"

The Senator believed that had the U. S. not gone into Vietnam "the country would probably have gone Communist" but "a Communist country independent of China." He said that the Vietnamese had repelled a number of Chinese invasions years ago and that the mood of the people was "Nationalistic and traditionally anti-Chinese."

He claimed that we "gave two billion dollars to Tito, not that we liked him but because he was a Communist independent of Moscow."

Greening also stated that "there is nothing we can win in Southeast Asia" that "the Vietnamese people want their independence and we should be fighting on their side."

Hunt Three Who Fired at U. S. Embassy

LONDON (AP) — Police throughout southeast England searched today for three well dressed men in a white car who machine gunned a side entrance of the U. S. Embassy in London and left a note attacking American racial and foreign policies.

The burst of fire at 11:35 p.m. Sunday drilled holes the size of tennis balls in and around the side door of the big concrete and glass building, smashed three glass door panels and punctured lamps on the steps.

"The attack was sudden and sharp—just like something from the prohibition era," said a Scotland Yard spokesman.

One of the two U. S. Marine guards in the building—Cpl. John McNamara, 23, of the Bronx, N.Y.—was about to pass the side door when the attack came. But no one was injured.

A British policeman on duty outside the main entrance threw himself to the ground when he heard the firing. McNamara and Staff Sgt. Francis McLaughlin of Wyncote, Pa., the other Marine on duty, rushed out in time to see a white Ford Cortina speed away.

The gunman left behind a foot-long sheet of paper. Scrawled on it in capital letters was this message: "STOP CRIMINAL MURDERS OF THE AMERICAN ARMY. SOLIDARITY WITH ALL PEOPLE. BATTILING AGAINST YANKEE FASCISM ALL OVER THE WORLD. RACISM NO. FREEDOM FOR AMERICAN NEGROES."

First Thrilling New Jump Fatal

ROCKLEDGE, Fla. (AP) — A pretty young woman who described her first parachute jump as "the most thrilling thing" she had ever done plunged 1,200 feet to her death from an airplane Sunday.

Officials said Ricky Wasik, 22, plummeted to the earth when she caught her arm in the lines of a pilot chute causing her main parachute to stay closed.

Her husband, John, 26, space writer for the Melbourne Times and an amateur sky-diver, watched her body hurtle to the turf of Green Airport.

There are only a few members of the Narragansett Indian tribe remaining.

Terms Viet...

(Continued From Page One) against the Japanese and the French who, at that time, were controlled by Nazi Germany; and that, because of our support the present North Vietnamese Premier modeled the Vietnamese Declaration of Independence after the U. S. declaration of 1776.

Gruesing said that the war was illegal because it broke the U. N. Charter and violated the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization agreement.

Articles 1 and 2 of the U. N. Charter states that disputes will be settled only by peaceful means. "Article 33 putting down the alternatives to war, etc." and that, in the case of aggression, "Article 37 (of the U. N. charter, to which the United States is a signatory) says that the matter shall be referred to the Security Council."

As for the SEATO Treaty, "Article 4 states that in a breach of the peace, the signatory members will consult" with one another, something "which was not done" when the U. S. became involved in the Vietnam War.

"We can see that we are in there illegally," the Senator concluded.

Gruesing stated that one justification given for the U. S. being involved in Vietnam "was the idea that we were stopping Communism" but "the fact is that we are helping communism because neither the Russians nor the Chinese have committed any troops" to the conflict, whereas "we are bleeding badly" in an Asian land war that "Generals such as MacArthur, Ridgeway, and Bradley warned against."

The Alaskan claimed that the U. S. "cannot win militarily" in the Southeast Asian country, but that "we can only lay the country to waste."

He said that "even the South Vietnamese army will not fight" for their own cause, and that "in 1965 there were 96,900 desertions" in that army, which constituted "one-fourth of their fighting force," and in 1966 there were 110,000 desertions.

'Nothing We Can Win'

The Senator believed that had the U. S. not gone into Vietnam "the country would probably have gone Communist" but "a Communist country independent of China." He said that the Vietnamese had repelled a number of Chinese invasions years ago and that the mood of the people was "Nationalistic and traditionally anti-Chinese."

He claimed that we "gave two billion dollars to Tito, not that we liked him but because he was a Communist independent of Moscow."

Gruesing also stated that "there is nothing we can win in Southeast Asia" that "the Vietnamese people want their independence and we should be fighting on their side."

Resnick, Senators Telegrams — Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, unveiled to attend because "of previous commitments," sent a telegram which read in part that "the distinguished Senators and I are usually fighting for the same progressive legislation and goals here in Washington" and he further said that "the Senators you are assisting... are among the most able and valuable men in Washington."

Senators McGovern and Morse sent letters, as did New York City Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Dutchess Field Safe: FAA

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick's inquiry into the operations and safety conditions of the Dutchess County Airport recently received a reply from the Federal Aviation Administration which stated that, "With regard to Dutchess County Airport in general, we find no unsafe conditions."

In a letter sent to the Congressman by Oscar Bakke, director of the Eastern region of the Aviation Administration, it was pointed out that, "The Federal Aviation Administration is, of course, vitally concerned with airport safety as it is with safety in all aspects of aviation. We do object, whenever we have justification, to any airport condition which we believe might adversely affect aviation safety."

The Bakke letter went on to say, "With particular emphasis on the extension of runway 6-24 to the southwest (without Federal aid), we gave no objection to the proposed extension from a safety standpoint. The primary responsibility for airport development lies with Dutchess County and, while we recommended the construction of the extension to the northeast for financial reasons, this office interposes no objection to the current runway extension project."

Arab Refugees Return Slowly

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The return of Arab war refugees to their homes in Israel-occupied Jordan lagged for the second day Sunday, while in the Sinai Desert, Israeli troops scoured El Arish for Arab arms and organizers of a general strike.

In Baghdad, the Arab economic warfare convulse ended with indications of a continuing split on whether to continue the embargo on Arab oil exports to Britain, West Germany and the United States.

The International Red Cross reported that 1,876 Jordanian war refugees crossed the Jordan River Sunday to go back to their homes. Added to the 355 that crossed the Allenby Bridge and another bridge at Um Al-Jarrah Friday, 2,231 of about 170,000 refugees were repatriated in the first two days.

The Israelis stopped the refugee traffic Saturday, the Jewish Sabbath. If the repatriation is stopped for next Saturday, too, only nine days are left until the Israeli-set deadline of Aug. 31 to complete the massive repatriation. The Red Cross said 2,500 refugees were expected to cross the Jordan today, although Israel announced it would accept 3,000. The Israeli interior ministry said that 800 more Jordanians would have been accepted in Sunday's crossings, but Jordan appeared to have trouble rounding up refugees and taking them to the two bridges. The Red Cross says it will take until the end of October to get all the refugees back home and is negotiating with Israel to extend the deadline. But all Israeli newspapers are arguing against any extension, and Premier Levi Eshkol said Sunday that the Aug. 31 deadline still stands.

The Israelis appeared to be rejecting few refugees Sunday, in contrast with Friday when mostly women, children and old men were accepted and young men appeared to be regarded as security risks. Many in Israel have expressed fear that the refugees will become a fifth column in Israeli-controlled territory, fomenting violence against the war victors.

In the Sinai, a successful general strike closed every bar and business in El Arish, scene of bitter fighting between the Israelis and the Egyptians in the June 5-10 war. The strike was called to protest Israeli restrictions which the Arabs claim have resulted in total unemployment.

The final recommendations of the economic and oil ministers from 13 Arab states who met in Baghdad were not revealed. They are to be submitted to the Arab foreign ministers' conference opening Saturday in Khartoum, the Sudanese capital, to prepare for a summit meeting of their country's leaders on Aug. 29.

Baton Rouge Firebombing In Wake of Twin Rallies

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Roving Negro youths threw firebombs at buildings in a low-rent, Negro neighborhood early today after rallies Sunday by the Ku Klux Klan and by 600 Negroes who gathered on the Capitol steps.

The Negro rally climaxed a 106-mile civil rights march which brought out this state's greatest display of force for racial troubles.

Fires broke out before midnight in the Eden Park neighborhood of low-rent Negro housing. None were major and all were soon brought under control. State troopers and city police cordoned off the area for about one hour, stopping cars and searching the occupants. Ten Negroes and one white man were arrested.

Most of the firebombs fizzled. Fire fighting teams quickly snuffed the eight fires which broke out. They answered nine false alarms.

Mayor W. W. Dumas issued a plea that the 1,500 National Guardsmen who shielded the Klan and Negro gatherings be ordered back into the city. The guard, mobilized by Gov. John McKeithen, had been released when it appeared the danger of conflict was over.

"It's exactly the same pattern they had in Detroit," said Dumas.

"I don't care what anybody says, I think it was a planned deal. I am amazed the Guardsmen left. I think it was all right to pull some out, but I don't think it was wise to send them all home."

The mayor said, however, that city police were less than three minutes behind every incident reported.

One white man was arrested and handcuffed. Officers said they found an .38-caliber semiautomatic rifle, several pistols and eight or nine boxes of ammunition in his car.

Of the ten Negroes arrested—none identified—seven were booked with vagrancy, one with obscenity and disobeying police.

one with carrying a concealed weapon and the other with disorderly conduct.

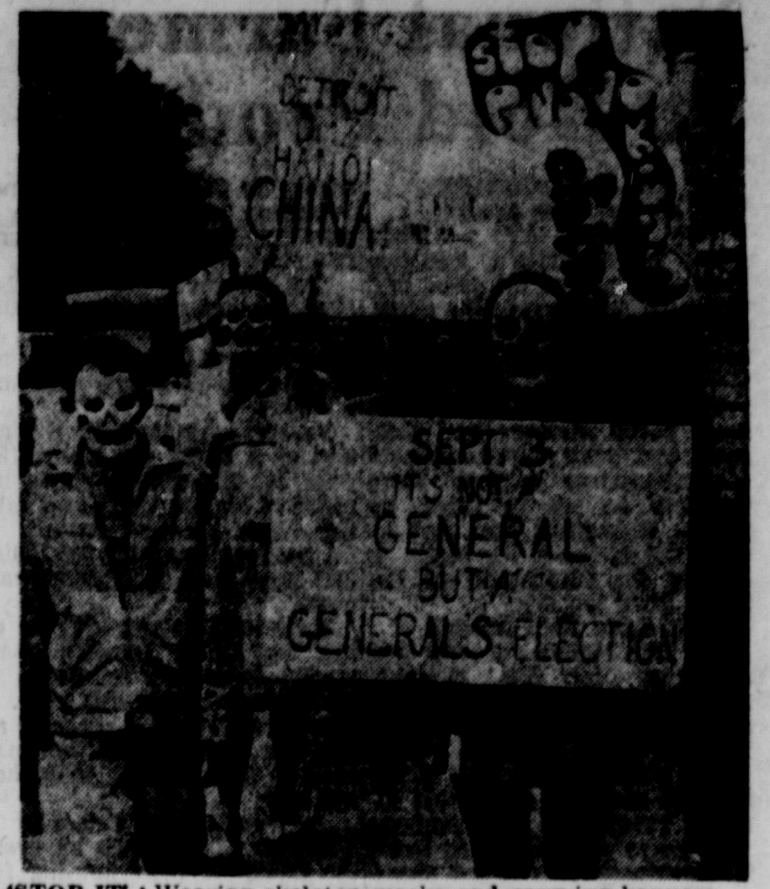

Earlier, two reporters for the Baton Rouge Advocate said Negroes threw firebombs at their car and at two other autos on an expressway south of the city.

Earlier, police used billy clubs and rifle butts to disperse a group of Negroes who jeered whites just before the start of the Klan rally. A few Negroes were knocked to the ground.

The Negro rally came off despite the absence of scheduled speaker H. Rap Brown. The Black Power advocate was jailed Saturday in New York on a charge of violating a federal firearms law.

The governor had told State Police Supt. Thomas Burbank: "If anyone makes any treasonous or seditious statements, arrest them on the spot, handcuff them and take them to jail."

McKeithen also issued orders to shoot quickly if a riot started.

The demonstration was organized by the "STOP IT" committee—Americans in Britain for United States withdrawal from Vietnam. The Red Cross says it will take until the end of October to get all the refugees back home and is negotiating with Israel to extend the deadline. But all Israeli newspapers are arguing against any extension, and Premier Levi Eshkol said Sunday that the Aug. 31 deadline still stands.

The Israelis appeared to be rejecting few refugees Sunday. In contrast with Friday when mostly women, children and old men were accepted and young men appeared to be regarded as security risks.

Many in Israel have expressed fear that the refugees will become a fifth column in Israeli-controlled territory, fomenting violence against the war victors.

In the Sinai, a successful general strike closed every bar and business in El Arish, scene of bitter fighting between the Israelis and the Egyptians in the June 5-10 war. The strike was called to protest Israeli restrictions which the Arabs claim have resulted in total unemployment.

The final recommendations of the economic and oil ministers from 13 Arab states who met in Baghdad were not revealed. They are to be submitted to the Arab foreign ministers' conference opening Saturday in Khartoum, the Sudanese capital, to prepare for a summit meeting of their country's leaders on Aug. 29.

Baton Rouge Firebombing In Wake of Twin Rallies

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Roving Negro youths threw firebombs at buildings in a low-rent, Negro neighborhood early today after rallies Sunday by the Ku Klux Klan and by 600 Negroes who gathered on the Capitol steps.

The Negro rally climaxed a 106-mile civil rights march which brought out this state's greatest display of force for racial troubles.

Fires broke out before midnight in the Eden Park neighborhood of low-rent Negro housing. None were major and all were soon brought under control.

State troopers and city police cordoned off the area for about one hour, stopping cars and searching the occupants. Ten Negroes and one white man were arrested.

Most of the firebombs fizzled. Fire fighting teams quickly snuffed the eight fires which did break out. They answered nine false alarms.

Mayor W. W. Dumas issued a plea that the 1,500 National Guardsmen who shielded the Klan and Negro gatherings be ordered back into the city. The guard, mobilized by Gov. John McKeithen, had been released when it appeared the danger of conflict was over.

"It's exactly the same pattern they had in Detroit," said Dumas.

"I don't care what anybody says, I think it was a planned deal."

"I am amazed the Guardsmen left. I think it was all right to pull some out, but I don't think it was wise to send them all home."

The mayor said, however, that city police were less than three minutes behind every incident reported.

One white man was arrested and handcuffed. Officers said they found an .m-16 semiautomatic rifle, several pistols and eight or nine boxes of ammunition in his car.

Of the ten Negroes arrested—none identified—seven were booked with vagrancy, one with obscenity and disobeying police, one with carrying a concealed weapon and the other with disorderly conduct.

Earlier, two reporters for the Baton Rouge Advocate said Negroes threw firebombs at their car and at two other autos on an expressway south of the city.

Earlier, police used billy clubs and rifle butts to disperse a group of Negroes who jeered whites just before the start of the Klan rally. A few Negroes were knocked to the ground.

The Negro rally came off despite the absence of scheduled speaker H. Rap Brown, The Black Power advocate, who was jailed Saturday in New York on a charge of violating a federal firearms law.

The governor had told State Police Supt. Thomas Burbank: "If anyone makes any treasonous or seditious statements, arrest them on the spot, handcuff them and take them to jail."

McKeithen also issued orders to shoot quickly if a riot started.

National Farmers To Hold Products

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While much of America's attention has been fixed on the great and explosive problems of the cities, something very important has been happening down on the farm.

Meeting in Des Moines, Iowa, some 35,000 farmers and their wives last week roared approval of proposals to withhold farm products so as to force up prices. It seemed that just as the noise of the cities began to subside the commotion on the farms grew louder.

At Odds With Bureau

The Des Moines meeting was sponsored by the National Farmers Organization, which is often at odds with the larger National Farm Bureau.

This price predicament of the farmers disturbs or affects almost everyone, but perhaps none more painfully than those in Washington who must shape up the nation's finances or else face economic and political consequences. Inevitably it seems, the focus of complaints is on Washington today, and frequently the suggested solutions involve the spending of many billions of dollars.

As a result of urban problems the administration is now forced to talk about a costly plan of financial aid to cities. And from the farmers comes pressure for the government to artificially support farm prices.

To satisfy these demands would require all the agility of a genie, for federal expenses already are so disturbingly high that the country has been assured that further spending must be curtailed.

So involved are these situations that they cannot be treated to everyone's satisfaction. Demands and promises are being hurled in every direction but the money to pay for them is not. Promises, without the money to accomplish them, merely fertilize more discontent.

The farmer's discontent has been developing for many months now, particularly as he reads figures that show he is not sharing in this year's economic prosperity.

Personal incomes for the nation as a whole are higher this year, for example, primarily because of higher wages and salaries. But personal income of farmers is down from $16 billion last year to a $15 billion rate now.

More mixed news may be on the way also, because some record crops are scheduled to be harvested later this year. If these crops reach the market all together then farm prices may become even weaker than they are now.

Want Higher Prices

In fear of just such an event the farmer is now howling for higher prices, and his ire may yet rank with the housewives' revolt last year against high food prices at the supermarkets.

All these discontents of the consumer, the farmer, the urban dweller, the Vietnam critic cannot be solved by spending or saving alone, although that is the area in which solutions are being sought.

As it is, the administration has conceded that expenses, even with a tax increase, have far exceeded the nation's ability to pay. And if the taxes aren't forthcoming, we are warned, inflation will roar.

Then the entire nation may be united in discontent over the one issue of inflation, for it is almost everyone's enemy. It is the meanest, sneakiest tax of all, "a pickpocket," as President Johnson terms it. But with all the demands for spending, how can it be avoided?

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced early Monday in active trading.

Gains outnumbered losses by about 5 to 3. The ticker tape lagged.

Weakness in some key blue chips dampened the Dow Jones industrial average.

Steels were moderately higher, with Jones & Laughlin up about a point. Electronics posted a point. Electronics posted a string of fractional gains.

Shamrock Oil spurted 3 points or more and Diamond Alkali lost a fraction. Diamond Alkali was reported to have reached an agreement to acquire Shamrock.

Kayser Roth also was ahead about 3 while U.S. smelting dropped nearly 3 and Russ Togs dropped about a point. Fractional losses were taken by such blue chips as Goodyear, International Harvester, International Nickel and Du Pont.

The market resumed the full 5 1/2-hour sessions after almost two weeks of four-hour sessions, abbreviated so that brokerage houses could catch up with a big accumulation of paper work.

Opening blocks included: American Telephone, unchanged at 51 1/2 on 20,000 shares; Westinghouse Electric, up 1/4 at 66 on 6,000; Pan American World Airways, unchanged at 28 1/2 on 5,000; and International Paper, off 1/4 at 29 on 4,300.

Broadening price increases among basic products tended to give the market a more inflationary background. This was countered somewhat by an easing in durable goods orders in July.

On Friday The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped .3 to 337.3.

PROMOTING PROSPERITY

Consumer spending is a vital force in America's prosperity. Today, with gross national product (the value of all goods and services) at an all-time high of about $785,000,000,000 yearly, one can see how deeply rooted our well-being is.

I interviewed five people—all in their thirties—who are in the very center of this prosperity.

One is a junior officer of a leading New York City bank who, by diligence and hard work, got a $5,000-a-year increase in his salary recently. He lives in the suburbs and owns a two-car garage.

With some of this increase in salary, he bought a new Chevrolet for his wife. Thus, in a small way, he promoted the prosperity of a great corporation.

A second, age 32, with a growing family of five, is moving into a Westchester County suburb where he has bought a new house which can be soundly financed by a first mortgage maturing in 20 years.

A third young man, approaching 35, has moved into a new luxury apartment in New York City. On his own, he has bought thousands of dollars worth of new furniture and household equipment. Two corporations that I could mention will rejoice that his talents, which have led to a much higher salary, will engender their prosperity.

The fourth and fifth are sales executives, enjoying a substantial yearly salary with bonus arrangements for high production. One is in finance, the other in manufacturing. Both are in their late thirties and by the time they are fifty, their financial fortunes should be high. In each of these cases, resourcefulness, application and hard work have combined to put them where they are. In my opinion, indolence and sloth are entirely too rampant in economic America. And the socialization of the national economy tends to promote these ills.

Education is a key force in prosperity. A score of my former students at Columbia University, whose names are in Who's Who in America, came from poor families. By dint of good planning and hard work, they worked their way through colleges and universities.

One of them was born on a Southern Idaho fruit farm, worked his way through the University of Washington in Seattle, and the Law School at Columbia University. At age 48, he became the president of a $20,000,000-asset insurance company at a salary of $250,000 a year. He would be a great President of the United States.

To earn money to go to college, he worked for $3 a day in the big copper mines at Butte, Montana. And when he had saved $1,000, he went to Seattle where he was graduated Phi Beta Kappa.

Soft life does not appeal to him. I wish a million young men in their twenties could miraculously inherit some of his gumption.

Getting 'Married' to Stock Is Investment Error

Q) "I have been 'married' to a blue chip which has done little in recent years. Hess Oil & Chemical has acted well during this period and I wonder if you would recommend selling some of our blue chip stock to buy Hess Oil?" P. C.

A) Getting married to a stock is one of the most common of all investment faults. Admitting your mistake and planning to do something about it is most unusual and deserves my warmest commendation. You apparently hold a fading blue chip and you have probably held it long enough.

Hess Oil & Chemical is a refiner and marketer in the southeast and along the east coast. It specializes in low-crude which is in considerable demand in areas of highly polluted air such as New York City. The company owns a ten per cent interest in Amerasia which I consider a candidate for a takeover. Any such development should return a big profit to Hess on its investment and a merger between the two companies themselves is not inconceivable. Earnings are in a strong uptrend which seems likely to continue. I advise you to make the switch.

Shamrock Oil spurted 3 points or more and Diamond Alkali lost a fraction. Diamond Alkali was reported to have reached an agreement to acquire Shamrock.

Kaiser Roth also was ahead about 3 while U.S. smelting dropped nearly 3 and Texas Togs dropped about a point. Fractional losses were taken by such blue chips as Goodyear, International Harvester, International Nickel and Du Pont.

The market resumed the full 5 1/2-hour sessions after almost two weeks of four-hour sessions, abbreviated so that brokerage houses could catch up with a big accumulation of paper work.

Opening blocks included:

American Telephone, unchanged at 51 1/2 on 20,000 shares; Westinghouse Electric, up 1/4 at 66 on 6,000; Pan American World Airways, unchanged at 28 1/2 on 5,000; and International Paper, off 1/4 at 28 on 4,300.

Broadening price increases among basic products tended to give the market a more inflationary background. This was countered somewhat by an easing in durable goods orders in July.

On Friday The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped .3 to 337.3.

PROMOTING PROSPERITY

Consumer spending is a vital force in America's prosperity. Today, with gross national product (the value of all goods and services) at an all-time high of about $785,000,000,000 yearly, one can see how deeply rooted our well-being is.

I interviewed five people—all in their thirties—who are in the very center of this prosperity.

One is a junior officer of a leading New York City bank who, by diligence and hard work, got a $5,000-a-year increase in his salary recently. He lives in the suburbs and owns a two-car garage.

With some of this increase in salary, he bought a new Chevrolet for his wife. Thus, in a small way, he promoted the prosperity of a great corporation.

A second, age 32, with a growing family of five, is moving into a Westchester County suburb where he has bought a new house which can be soundly financed by a first mortgage maturing in 20 years.

A third young man, approaching 35, has moved into a new luxury apartment in New York City. On his own, he has bought thousands of dollars worth of new furniture and household equipment. Two corporations that I could mention will rejoice that his talents, which have led to a much higher salary, will engender their prosperity.

The fourth and fifth are executives; enjoying a substantial yearly salary with bonus arrangements for high production. One is in finance, the other in manufacturing. Both are in their late thirties and by the time they are fifty, their financial fortunes should be high.

In each of these cases, resourcefulness, application and hard work have combined to put them where they are. In my opinion, indolence and sloth are entirely too rampant in economic America. And the socialization of the national economy tends to promote these ills.

Education is a key force in prosperity. A score of my former students at Columbia University, whose names are in Who's Who in America, came from poor families. By dint of good planning and hard work, they worked their way through colleges and universities.

One of them was born on a Southern Idaho fruit farm, worked his way through the University of Washington in Seattle, and the Law School at Columbia University. At age 48, he became the president of a $20,000,000-asset insurance company at a salary of $250,000 a year. He would be a great President of the United States.

To earn money to go to college, he worked for $3 a day in the big copper mines at Butte, Montana. And when he had saved $1,000, he went to Seattle where he was graduated Phi Beta Kappa.

Soft life does not appeal to him. I wish a million young men in their twenties could miraculously inherit some of his gumption.

Getting 'Married' to Stock Is Investment Error

Q: "I have been 'married' to a blue chip which has done little in recent years. Hess Oil & Chemical has acted well during this period and I wonder if you would recommend selling some of our blue chip stock to buy Hess Oil?" P. C.

A: Getting married to a stock is one of the most common of all investment faults. Admitting your mistake and planning to do something about it is most unusual and deserves my warmest commendation. You apparently hold a fading blue chip and you have probably held it long enough.

Hess Oil & Chemical is a refiner and marketer in the southeast and along the east coast. It specializes in low-grade which is in considerable demand in areas of highly polluted air such as New York City. The company owns a ten per cent interest in Amerasia which I consider a candidate for a takeover. Any such development should return a big profit to Hess on its investment and a merger between the two companies themselves is not inconceivable. Earnings are in a strong upturn which seems likely to continue. I advise you to make the switch.

Q: "Dad is 71 and still working. He has $20,000 in A.T. & T.; Northern Illinois Gas; Commonwealth Edison; Marshall Field. He has another $10,000 in T. Rowe Price Growth Fund on a systematic withdrawal plan. In the last two years the Fund has been in every way better for him. He is considering selling some stocks and adding to the Fund. What do you suggest?" H.W.

A: Your dad has a fine list of common stocks which I would not normally like to disturb. For particular reasons applicable to each, there has been little price progress over the past two years, though the long-term outlook is very favorable. If more income is required, I believe he might well build up his withdrawal plan but you should remember that such a plan may restrict future growth in capital.

Editor's note: The Kingston Daily Freeman is privileged to publish letters written to the Ulster County Vietnam Servicemen's Committee of Ulster Hose Co. No. 5 by Kingston area men serving with the armed forces in Vietnam. We hope in this way we can better let our readers know how our boys in service feel.

Donald Hasbrouck writes: "This is to let you know how much I appreciate the packages and newspapers (The Freeman) you have been sending to me. The edible things are good and the other things are very useful over here. The papers are very much appreciated as they keep me informed of all the things going on back there. I would like to thank you and all the people participating in this great thing. It lets us know that everyone back there is thinking of us and are willing to do things to help us.

"Since you started sending these packages, I have advanced a grade. I am now a specialist 5th class. I work in the maintenance section as a mechanic. The work can get hard and long but never too hard.

"I would rather not say anything about Vietnam as it is really not worth talking about. But I wish some of the people back there protesting could see how these people live—live like natives in a jungle—and work most of the time just to keep themselves and their families alive.

"They don't know what real food is. I think if some of those protesters back there could be here and see it they would see why the GI feels the way he does and wants to help the people win their freedom.

"In closing I again want to thank you for all you have done and will do for me and all the other Ulster boys over here."

'Grizzly' Policy Erratic: Profs

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — The policy of the National Park Service in the management of grizzly bears has been criticized as "erratic" by two professors, one from the State University of New York at Albany.

Follows Tragedy
Their report was released Saturday, six days after two grizzly bears fatally mauled two girls in Glacier National Park, 400 miles north of Yellowstone National Park where the professors did their research. One bear also seriously injured the male companion of one of the girls. Park rangers subsequently shot four bears.

The report was the product of eight years of research by Dr. John J. Craighead and Frank C. Craighead Jr.

John Craighead, a professor at the University of Montana, heads the Montana Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit. Frank Craighead represents the environmental research institute and is a professor at the State University of New York at Albany. The report said that park management of grizzlies prior to 1960 "consisted essentially of warning the visiting public and of capturing and disposing of 'nuisance' bears." Guidelines were set up for black bears but "policy for managing grizzlies has not been as clearly defined

"High incidence of personal injury and property damage has been the catalyst initiating bear control," the Craigheads said.

"This type of control, based on direct response to public pressure, is too erratic to constitute a management program."

The report noted that the meat-eating animal "is a large predator that under certain conditions does not hesitate to attack man or his livestock. As such it must be controlled."

"It is an endangered species and in addition a trophy animal of high value," the Craigheads said. "Thus the very nature of the grizzly has imposed restriction on the extent to which it can be protected but... it must receive sufficient protection to insure its survival."

Favor Trapping

The professors argued that marauding grizzly bears should be trapped alive, instead of being shot on the first offense.

Their report also recommended that Wyoming, Montana and Idaho—the three states on Yellowstone National Park's boundaries—declare the grizzly bear a trophy animal that could be hunted on a limited permit basis during special seasons coinciding with the regular big game season.

Nine Men Are Indicted For Planned Robberies

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — 56, and Frederick G. Randaccio, 66, all of Buffalo, and Louis F. Sorgi, 46, of Sherman Oaks, Calif. Mentioned as co-conspirators but not defendants in the original and new indictments involving the planned bank robbery were Pasquale Calabrese, 28, now serving a five-year sentence for the 1964 Buffalo City Hall robbery, Alfred Magrini, a Curran said Smith and Thompson were not from Buffalo, but declined to give their addresses. All nine defendants were expected to be arraigned Monday in U.S. District Court here.

Police said Randaccio, Natarrelli and Pieri were linked to the Cosa Nostra in a 1963 report to a Senate Crime Committee.

In the separate indictments handed down Friday, four men were charged with being involved in an alleged 1964 plot to rob the Fillmore-Glenwood branch bank of the Marine Midland Trust Co., and five others were accused of conspiring to transport in interstate commerce more than $5,000 in jewelry that was to be stolen from Mrs. Carol McCune of Los Angeles. Named in the bank conspiracy indictment were Thomas J. Carrella, 39, Joseph C. Erhart, 40, and Salvatore J. Pieri, 56, all of Buffalo, and Daniel J. Domino, 49, of nearby Tonawanda.

Pieri and Domino were indicted previously on the charge, but were re-indicted Friday. The second indictment named Charles Caci, 30, Stephen A. Cino, 30, Pasquale A. Natarrelli,

Resnick Outlines Charges on Bureau

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick has charged that the American Farm Bureau Federation employs "political, social, and economic coercion in order to maintain its stranglehold over all aspects of life in rural America."

Speaking at a meeting of the Copeake Grange, the Congressman outlined seven specific areas with which his charges against the Farm Bureau are concerned.

'Gestapo-Like Tactics'
He cited examples of what he called "gestapo" like tactics on the part of the Farm Bureau, including one instance in which the entire county chapter was ousted from membership, and in which the officers had their Farm Bureau Insurance canceled because they openly opposed a Farm Bureau policy.

Resnick mentioned instances in which rural ministers who spoke out against the Farm Bureau become the target of a "neutralization" campaign, and men who became active in other farm organizations suddenly found their Farm Bureau Insurance canceled.

Following are the seven areas of concern cited by Congressman Resnick:
Membership—Approximately 50 per cent of all Farm Bureau members are not working farmers. This directly contradicts the Farm Bureau statement to the Internal Revenue Service and seriously brings into question the Farm Bureau's tax-exempt status.

Going to Dogs

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — The Humane Society's dog catchers are going to leave the cat catching to dogs.

The dog catchers, asked to add rescuing stray or stranded cats to their duties, said they had all they could do to be dog catchers.

PERSON TO PERSON

Paul Johnson

Talking about the earliest known records of man's use of an alphabet in his writings, a teacher said the Egyptians were putting alphabetic characters on papyrus with reed and ink more than 4500 years ago. The reed (rush stem) was used as a writing instrument for more than 3000 years, with black ink made from soot. In the 6th century A.D. the quill supplanted the reed, and remained man's writing tool until the 19th century. As civilization advanced, the need for written records kept pace, to the point where now all human activity is based upon a maze of records. In business we must keep all kinds of complex records, but we want you to know we do not allow them to make us an impersonal business. We operate on a person to person basis, always trying to serve you the way we would hope you would serve us, with really top value.

The dog catchers, asked to add rescuing stray or stranded cats to their duties, said they had all they could do to be dog catchers.

Business Activities — The Farm Bureau has abused its tax-exempt status by building and empire while not paying taxes on the income they receive from business activities. The organization's primary purpose is business.

Economic and social coercion — The Farm Bureau uses its tremendous economic powers in local areas to force businessmen, towns, counties, school boards to join the organization. Internal totalitarianism — The Farm Bureau leadership does not allow policy to be formed at the grass root level although it goes through the motions. The organization does not tolerate criticism. Political activity — The Farm Bureau is involved with politics both directly and indirectly. They have undertaken direct mailing to Farm Bureau members in Congressional Districts to support particular candidates. They also spend vast sums of money to disseminate right wing propaganda.

Others Cited Farming the farmer — The Farm Bureau does not represent the American Farmer although it claims to be its representative in Washington. They have come out in favor of prices which are 50 per cent of parity and have started their support of the 27 1/2 per cent oil depletion allowance. Subversion of free press — The Farm Bureau buys several pages of local small daily newspapers on a regular basis. This plus their purchase of considerable advertising space also gives them control over the editorial page. Congressman Resnick indicated that he plans to hold further hearings in Washington to continue his investigation of the nation's major farm organization. He said that the American Farm Bureau Federation has already informed him that they will not testify.

The reed (rush stem) was used as a writing instrument for more than 3000 years, with black ink made from soot. In the 6th century A.D. the quill supplanted the reed, and remained man's writing tool until the 19th century. As civilization advanced, the need for written records kept pace, to the point where now all human activity is based upon a maze of records. In business we must keep all kinds of complex records, but we want you to know we do not allow them to make us an impersonal business. We operate on a person to person basis, always trying to serve you the way we would hope you would serve us, with really top value.

Nine Men Are Indicted For Planned Robberies

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted nine men, including three allegedly linked to the Cosa Nostra, on charges of conspiracy involving the planned robbery of an armored-car messenger, a bank and a woman of her jewelry.

None of the robberies was committed, U.S. Atty. John T. Curtin said. In the separate indictments handed down Friday, four men were charged with being involved in an alleged 1964 plot to rob the Fillmore-Glenwood branch bank of the Marine Midland Trust Co., and five others were accused of conspiring to transport in interstate commerce more than $5,000 in jewelry that was to be stolen from Mrs. Carol McCune of Los Angeles.

Named in the bank conspiracy indictment were Thomas J. Carrella, 39, Joseph C. Erhart, 40, and Salvatore J. Pieri, 56, all of Buffalo, and Daniel J. Domino, 49, of nearby Tonawanda. Pieri and Domino were indicted previously on the charge, but were re-indicted Friday.

The second indictment named Charles Caci, 30, Stephen A. Cino, 30, Pasquale A. Natarrelli, 56, and Frederick G. Randaccio, 66, all of Buffalo, and Louis F. Sorgi, 46, of Sherman Oaks, Calif.

Mentioned as co-conspirators but not defendants in the original and new indictments involving the planned bank robbery were Pasquale Calabrese, 28, now serving a five-year sentence for the 1964 Buffalo City Hall robbery, Alfred Magrini, and Arthur Thompson.

Curtin said Smith and Thompson were not from Buffalo, but declined to give their addresses.

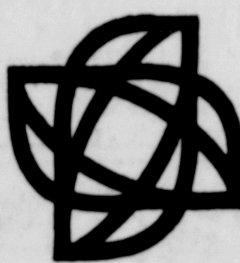

All nine defendants were expected to be arraigned Monday in U.S. District Court here.

Police said Randaccio, Natarrelli and Pieri were linked to the Cosa Nostra in a 1963 report to a Senate Crime Committee.

All Ends Happily For Movie Producer

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

ATHENS (AP) — The filming of Sophocles' "Oedipus the King" almost became a personal Greek tragedy for producer Michael Luke. But by sheer doggedness he managed a happy ending.

The production recently finished shooting in the third century B.C. amphitheater at Dodoni and in the bleak surrounding countryside. It was no small achievement for Luke, who had to overcome revolution, war, earthquake and the fickle nature of American movie companies.

British-born Luke, a youthful 42, is a veteran of the European movie-television world. His brother Peter produced the much-acclaimed "Hamlet at Elsinore," filmed in the actual locale of the Shakespeare play. Michael Luke became intrigued with doing "Oedipus" in an actual Greek theater with the same star and director, Christopher Plummer and Philip Saville.

One can imagine the reaction of the movie bigwig as he learns the plot: "You mean it's about some guy who kills his father and marries his mother? Forget it, kid."

Yet Luke was able to stir interest, and CBS agreed to back the project, reserving the television rights after it had played in theaters.

"Then CBS backed out in January," the producer related. "Fortunately Paramount came in on the deal and pumped more money into the picture. We had Irene Pappas set and the promise of Peter Finch. We already had five or six British technicians in Athens. Then came the Revolution."

With the takeover of Greece by a military government, Paramount's interest waned. Irene Pappas backed out of the film, declaring she would be shot if she returned to her native Greece.

Only eight days away from when production had to begin, Luke decided to go where the film companies wheel and deal: the Cannes Film Festival. Within three days, he had three offers. He accepted one from Jay Kanter of Universal.

Just before the film makers left London, they read of severe earthquakes in the region of Greece where they were to shoot. They departed anyway.

After such beginnings, the actual filming proceeded with amazing ease. The only hazard was Orson Welles' arrival—10 days late. Said Luke: "He gave no reason, and I wasn't bold enough to ask."

"Oedipus the King," adapted from a new translation by British poet Paul Rcohe, was shot in six weeks at a cost of $525,000. The cast also included Lilli Palmer and Richard Johnson. Luke is not concerned about the chances of such a classic in the film marketplace.

"There is a huge educated population nowadays," he reasoned, "and I believe 'Oedipus' can be enjoyed by the non-intellectual audience, though not the uneducated one. In the United States alone there are film outlets at 2,000 colleges and universities. That provides a ready audience for classic drama."

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Faced with the prospect of wigs on their heads, Pittsburgh Jurists responded Friday with tongues in their cheeks.

The jurists spoke up after state Assemblyman Bernard M. Gross of Philadelphia circulated a letter outlining a proposal to have Pennsylvania's judges wear wigs on the bench.

"The purpose is to raise the level of respect for our courts and add greater dignity to courtroom proceedings," wrote Gross.

Commented Judge David Olburn:

"I would feel very silly wearing a wig. I lost most of my hair several years ago and am quite used to having my skin up there exposed."

Hong Kong Papers To Remain Closed

HONG KONG (AP) — Hong Kong officials expect the British government to ignore an ultimatum from the Red Chinese government demanding resumption of publication of three pro-Communist newspapers and freeing of the paper's arrested employees by Tuesday night.

Reports from London said Britain's diplomatic representative in Peking had rejected the Chinese demands. A government source said the Chinese government apparently (1) was trying to make propaganda, (2) was misinformed on what had happened, or (3) was ignorant of British legal procedures.

Hong Kong newspapers and local residents showed little or no concern with the Chinese ultimatum. Newspapers printed reports of it on inside pages, and 17 of more than 30 British and Chinese residents questioned about the Chinese note had not heard about it.

The pressure from Peking came as the local Communist, anti-British terror campaign killed an 8-year-old Chinese girl and her 2-year-old brother Sunday. The girl was playing with a bomb she found in an alley known as "the children's playground."

Colonial authorities offered a $4,500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the terrorists who planted the bomb. Police found 11 more bombs planted throughout the colony today, two of them at a playground.

The demand that the Hong Kong Evening News, Tin Fung

Daily News and the Afternoon News be allowed to resume publishing was handed to D. C. Hopson, Britain's charge d'affaires in Peking, the New China News Agency said Sunday.

"Otherwise the British government must be held responsible for all the consequences," the note said.

Red China also demanded the release of 19 Chinese newsmen and 34 newspaper staff members.

The three papers were ordered Thursday to suspend publication pending trial of five of their executives on charges of sedition and printing false and inflammatory reports.

The newspapers put out a one-page joint edition Friday from their shared office and police raided the building. They said they arrested a number of persons who were setting type.

A cleftstroy is that part of a building rising above the roof which contains windows for lighting the interior.

Politicos Are Same All Over

By EDWIN Q. WHITE
SAIGON (AP) — Like politicians everywhere, South Vietnam's candidates have adopted symbols that uphold the highest ideals and promise something for everyone.

Posters calling for the election of Nguyen Van Thieu and Nguyen Cao Ky, heads of the present military government and favorites in the Sept. 3 balloting, bear an outline map of South Vietnam and the national flag. Put together, this is supposed to symbolize nation-building, democracy and social improvement.

The symbol of the leading civilian ticket, made up of Tran Van Huong and Mai Tho Truyen, is a sower of rice seed. This is said to represent a call for restoration of national order, efforts to bring peace and build an "equal and bright society."

Other election symbols include a white dove for unity, prosperity and peace; a torch for democracy and respect of national laws; a white lotus and a black incense burner, meaning "pity and justice, the country pacified and happiness for everyone."

Selection of the buffalo as an election symbol by two slates precipitated charges from one side of unfair campaign tactics. The squabble died out when it was decided that the animals were of different types. The symbols themselves play an important role in the voting, especially in rural areas where many people can't read.

Posters with the ticket symbols started going up when the campaign period began Aug. 3. In Saigon almost every available inch of wall, fence and doorway display space is plastered with them.

The Cubs of Pack 9, sponsored by the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, met at the parking lot for the trip to Tri-Mount to attend the Cub-o-Ree.

Approximately 30 from Pack 9 arrived at Tri-Mount in time for lunch and later toured the campsite, including the waterfront, first aid station, nature lodge, outdoor chapel, trading post and also the rifle and archery range. STEWART AFB ANNIVERSARY—Early morning rollcall was one of the first orders of the day for these West Point cadets in 1942 before manning their planes at Stewart Field. As their BT-13s await them in the background, this squadron maintains its Academy rigidity as they respond to rollcall and listen to orders of the day. From Friday through Sunday, Aug. 25-27, Stewart Air Force Base celebrates its Silver Anniversary. The public is invited to visit Stewart.

Clarifying Mechanism of Cancer Told

Dr. Renato Dulbecco, resident fellow of the Salk Institute for Biological Studies, in an article published in the Scientific American, summarized his recent work on the mechanism of cancer production.

Dr. Dulbecco has been using small viruses containing DNA to cause cancer changes in animal cells. He has shown that by means of genetic analysis it will be possible to determine what products are made by a virus in an infected cell, and then to prove which of these products are necessary to induce cancer.

Study Changes

In a research program extending over the past several years, Dr. Dulbecco and other workers at the Salk Institute and elsewhere have been studying the changes which take place when animal cells become malignant. As a tool in study, they have used viruses to induce these tumor changes. Recently they have investigated tumor virus mutants which act normally at low temperatures but whose action is defective at higher temperatures. By observing how the absence of the viral function at high temperatures affects the ability of the virus to transform a normal cell to a state of malignancy, it is impossible to tell which viral functions (carried by genes of the virus) are necessary for the malignant change to occur. This might be compared to finding which of several wall switches controls a light by flipping each switch in turn until the proper one is found.

These small DNA-containing viruses (papovaviruses) have fewer than ten genes. Because of this small number, it will be possible, as in the example of the light switches, to test each gene individually to ascertain its role in producing malignancy, and so to pinpoint the basic causes of cancer, it is reported.

The existence of one virus gene that is necessary for the malignant change to occur has already been demonstrated. It probably acts by producing a specific enzyme, and the nature of this enzyme is under investigation in several laboratories. In addition, the role of five other viral functions in promoting the malignant transformations is being studied.

More Rapid Advances

In discussing where his work may ultimately lead, Dr. Dulbecco wrote, "a certain understanding of the molecular aspects of cancer has been reached, and, furthermore, conditions have been set for further rapid advances in the foreseeable future."

Funds raised in Ulster County by the local chapter of the March of Dimes are contributed in part toward the support of the Salk Institute and help with the various research programs carried on there.

Six-Day Event

Dutchess Fair Opens Tuesday

The 122nd annual Dutchess County Fair will open Tuesday amid excitement, more than a hundred exhibits and continuous entertainment on the 90-acre fairground tract bordering Rhinebeck.

Doors open at 10 a. m. The fair is slated to run through Sunday, Aug. 27.

S. Richard Lloyd, manager and secretary of the fair, has termed this year's production "the biggest ever." Last year's record-breaking attendance figure of 115,000, Lloyd said, should be broken.

Totaled there will be more than 141 exhibitors and concessions. Included among this throng will be fireman's displays, livestock showings, refreshment stands, odd-end shops and artistic creations.

Highlighting events will be Lawrence Welk's featured performer, Jo Ann Castle, several auto-thrill shows, horse

One Out of Ten May Be Dropped From Medicaid

NEW YORK (AP) — One of every 10 New Yorkers now eligible for Medicaid would lose their benefits if Congress enacts some proposed changes in the Social Security law, says Dr. George K. Wyman, state commissioner of social services.

Wyman, speaking Sunday on the "WMCA Reports" radio program, said the alternative would be for the state to pick up the multimillion-dollar bill if the Federal government refused to pay.

Last week, Congress proposed a series of amendments to the Social Security Act. The amendments would bar Medicaid eligibility to anyone earning more than 150 per cent of the state standard to qualify for cash welfare, starting July 1, 1968. The figure would drop to 140 per cent the next year and to 133 per cent in 1970.

Wyman said the proposed changes would cut off at least 600,000 persons of the state's estimated six million presently eligible for Medicaid.

4 Teeners Missing

NORTH HERO, Vt. (AP) — A 13-state alarm has been broadcast for four teen-agers who are missing from the Grand Isle County Jail.

State police said the youths escaped from the jail early Sunday morning and apparently fled in a car stolen from the area at about the same time.

The missing youths were identified as Robert Wilcox and David Wells, both 18-years-old and both from Peru, N.Y., and Carl Sibley, 18, and Eugene Smith, 16, both of Burlington.

Foreign Aid Heads For More Lumps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration's foreign aid program, fresh from a drubbing in the Senate last week, appears headed for more lumps in the House.

Despite 27-7 support from the House Foreign Affairs Committee for a $3.1 billion aid measure close to what the administration sought, opponents were confident they could push through cuts in most of the economic assistance categories.

But military aid programs, cut sharply in the Senate, may survive reasonably intact.

"There's a feeling we ought to have some belt tightening," said Rep. E. Ross Adair of Indiana, who heads a group of committee Republicans seeking cuts.

Chances Excellent

"I think the chances are excellent for some substantial reductions," he told a reporter, adding he is unsure whether attempts also will be made to cut the military assistance program.

Supporters of the aid measure conceded privately that many members, probably faced with a later vote on President Johnson's income tax surcharge, will vote to trim the bill. Chairman Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., predicts "a very difficult time" for it.

Adair said an effort also will be made to limit the program to one year.

In a surprise move, the Foreign Affairs Committee voted to authorize the program for the current fiscal year and fiscal 1969. Debate was scheduled to start today but voting on amendments was not expected until Wednesday, with final action likely Thursday.

Starting with an administration request of nearly $3.4 billion, the House committee cut $219 million. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, however, whacked off $737 million, and the full Senate trimmed an additional $100 million before passing the bill last Thursday.

Clarifying Mechanism of Cancer Told

Dr. Renato Dulbecco, resident fellow of the Salk Institute for Biological Studies, in an article published in the Scientific American, summarized his recent work on the mechanism of cancer production.

Dr. Dulbecco has been using small viruses containing DNA to cause cancer changes in animal cells. He has shown that by means of genetic analysis it will be possible to determine what products are made by a virus in an infected cell, and then to prove which of these products are necessary to induce cancer.

Study Changes
In a research program extending over the past several years, Dr. Dulbecco and other workers at the Salk Institute and elsewhere have been studying the changes which take place when animal cells become malignant. As a tool in study, they have used viruses to induce these tumor changes. Recently they have investigated tumor virus mutants which act normally at low temperatures but whose action is defective at higher temperatures. By observing how the absence of the viral function at high temperatures affects the ability of the virus to transform a normal cell to a state of malignancy, it is impossible to tell which viral functions (carried by genes of the virus) are necessary for the malignant change to occur. This might be compared to finding which of several wall switches controls a light by flipping each switch in turn until the proper one is found.

These small DNA-containing viruses (papovaviruses) have fewer than ten genes. Because of this small number, it will be possible, as in the example of the light switches, to test each gene individually to ascertain its role in producing malignancy, and so to pinpoint the basic causes of cancer, it is reported.

The existence of one virus gene that is necessary for the malignant change to occur has already been demonstrated. It probably acts by producing a specific enzyme, and the nature of this enzyme is under investigation in several laboratories. In addition, the role of five other viral functions in promoting the malignant transformation is being studied.

More Rapid Advances
In discussing where his work may ultimately lead, Dr. Dulbecco wrote, "a certain understanding of the molecular aspects of cancer has been reached, and, furthermore, conditions have been set for further rapid advances in the foreseeable future."

Funds raised in Ulster County by the local chapter of the March of Dimes are contributing in part toward the support of the Salk Institute and help with the various research programs carried on there.

Newspapers Aid Matchmaking in India

NEW DELHI (AP) — Marriages may be made in heaven, but in India newspapers often do the matchmaking.

Every Sunday hundreds of parents seek suitable matches for their children in the classified advertisement sections. And they're just as fussy about the qualifications as any businessman using the "help wanted" ads.

Take this matrimonial advertisement, for instance. "Wanted, Well-settled groom 30-35 for fair, handsome Brahmin (high-caste) girl, 26, 5', expert in tailoring and household work. Decent early marriage. Reply giving family background, copies of horoscope and employment."

The Indian constitution no longer recognizes the caste system that divides the population into social groupings from the highly Brahmin or priestly, class to the lowly untouchable. In practice, however, families seldom permit marriage between castes.

But efforts are being made to break this barrier. The Madras state government, for example, plans to award gold medals every year "to commend couples who contract inter-caste marriages."

Some ads openly seek virgins for brides, while modest parents occasionally use the phrase "decent early marriage."

The use of the word "decent" also can connote a desire to pay or receive a dowry or a preference for an elaborate wedding ceremony, complete with a large feast where gifts are presented.

The long list of qualifications caused one local newspaper pundit to remark: "It appears from the ads as though the young men and women do NOT want a mate but a situation. As a rule, nearly all mar-

Anderson-Harsch Nuptials; Bride Wears Heirloom Gown

MRS. PAUL A. HARSCH III
(Photo Workshop)

Miss Merry Mildred Anderson, daughter of Mrs. Andrew J. Anderson, Kerhonkson, and the late Andrew J. Anderson, was married Saturday, Aug. 12, to Paul Arthur Harsch III, Jamestown, R. I., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Harsch, Jamestown, R. I., and Washington, D. C., and formerly of Regent's Park, London.

The Rev. Lorenz A. Prolli, pastor of Reformed Church of North Plainfield, N. J., officiated at the double ring ceremony at the Federated Church of Kerhonkson. Fredric Misner provided traditional wedding selections. White delphinium, gladiolus and white iceberg pompon chrysanthemums decorated the church.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. Frank E. Holmberg Sr., Long Island, the bride wore a satin and silk maltese lace gown which was first worn in 1895 by the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Spencer Shephard Wood. She carried a bouquet of white miniature carnations and stephanotis with ivy strands.

Miss Ellen Pausen, Malden, Mass., was maid of honor. She wore a yellow and pink empire style dress and carried a bouquet of yellow snowdrift pompons and iceberg pompon chrysanthemums.

Cynthia Pritchard, Utica, was flower girl for her cousin. She wore a white lace and net gown and carried a basket of assorted colored rose petals in a circlet of yellow pompon chrysanthemums.

Peter Saman, Bristol, Conn., was best man. Ushers were William Harsch, Washington, D. C.; Jonathan Harsch, Dublin, Ireland, brothers of the bridegroom, and Spencer Dickinson, Jamestown, R. I.

After the wedding a reception was held at Wildmere House, Lake Minnewaska, for the immediate family.

For her wedding trip to Rowe, Mass., the bride selected a lemon yellow dress trimmed with navy blue.

Mrs. Harsch, a graduate of Oakwood School, Poughkeepsie, studied at the University of Grenoble, and is now attending Goddard College, Plainfield, Vt. Her husband, an alumnus of Pomfret School, Pomfret, Conn., studied at the Faculty of Letters of the University of Paris, attended Goddard College, and is now attending Williams College, Williamstown, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Harsch will reside at Williamstown, Mass.

(Tom Reynolds Photo)

Miss Mary Elizabeth O'Reilly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Joseph O'Reilly, 55 West Chestnut Street, Kingston, was married Saturday, Aug. 19, to William Russell Troy, son of Dr. and Mrs. William D. Troy, Stamford, Conn.

The Rev. Edward Farrelly of St. Mary's Church, this city, celebrated the 12 o'clock nuptial Mass and officiated at the double ring ceremony. The Papal Blessing was bestowed upon the couple. Organist, Nan Goldrick, provided traditional wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length, ivory silk Alpaca gown, fashioned with a bateau neckline and elbow length sleeves. The skirt was styled in the A-line fashion and a detachable train was attached at the waist. Her headpiece was a three-quarter length mantilla of imported Brussels lace which had been worn previously by her two sisters. She carried a bouquet of roses.

Miss Marree O'Reilly, Kingston, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a floor length line A-line gown with an empire waistline and accented with a band of small flowers. Her headpiece was a wreath of miniature carnations in colors matching the waistband of the gown. She carried a nosegay of miniature carnations.

Attendants were Mrs. John O'Reilly, Kingston, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Sara Troy, Stamford, Conn., sister of the bridegroom. Their gowns, headpieces and flowers were identical to that worn by the maid of honor.

John Troy, brother of the bridegroom, Stamford, Conn., was best man. Ushers were John and Timothy O'Reilly, Kingston, brothers of the bride, Wynne Hanahan, Stamford, Conn., and Kirk Weikel, Pittsburgh, Pa. After the wedding a reception was held at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

For her wedding trip to Vermont, the bride selected a floral print silk dress with matching coat of pink Irish linen.

The bride is a graduate of the Academy of St. Ursula and Trinity College where she earned an AB degree in English. She is a member of the Junior League of Kingston.

Her husband, an alumnus of Fairfield College Preparatory School, Fairfield, Conn., received an AB degree in biology from St. Michael's College, Winoski, Vt., and a Master of Science degree in biology from St. John's University, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Troy will reside in Norwalk, Conn.

Newspapers Aid Matchmaking in India

NEW DELHI (AP) — Marriages may be made in heaven, but in India newspapers often do the matchmaking.

Every Sunday hundreds of parents seek suitable matches for their children in the classified advertisement sections. And they're just as fussy about the qualifications as any businessman using the "help wanted" ads.

Take this matrimonial advertisement, for instance. "Wanted, Well-settled groom, 30-35 for fair, handsome Brahmin (high-caste) girl, 26, 5', expert in tailoring and household work. Decent early marriage. Reply giving family background, copies of horoscope and employment."

The Indian constitution no longer recognizes the caste system that divides the population into social groupings from the highly Brahmin, or priestly, class to the lowly untouchable. In practice, however, families seldom permit marriage between castes.

But efforts are being made to break this barrier. The Madras state government, for example, plans to award gold medals every year "to commend couples who contract inter-caste marriages."

Some ads openly seek virgins for brides, while modest parents occasionally use the phrase "decent early marriage."

The use of the word "decent" also can connote a desire to pay or receive a dowry or a preference for an elaborate wedding ceremony, complete with a large feast where gifts are presented.

The long list of qualifications caused one local newspaper pundit to remark: "It appears from the ads as though the young men and women do NOT want a mate but a situation."

As a rule, nearly all marriages are arranged by the parents, even when their children are in their late 20s or early 30s. In fact, most of the ads are for persons in this category, indicating they haven't had success with the so-called professional matchmakers.

No statistics are available on the success of the matrimonial ads, but the advertising manager of a major Sunday paper says each receives about 10 letters of response.

Of all the qualifications, the most important appears to revolve around astrology, a key tenet of the Hindu religion. Having horoscopes that conflict can be as disastrous as having blood types that do not agree, according to orthodox Hindus.

Doing the Right Thing

A WAITRESS GIVES HER
SIDE OF THE STORY ON TIPPING

Here is one waitress' comment on the letters I have printed about tipping.

Dear Mrs. Post: As an answer to the non-tipper's letter, I would like to point out the waitresses' side of the story. At the restaurant where I work it is seldom the waitress who is "poor," but fairly often it's the customer. The other day I had two adorable ladies leave me a dollar and a quarter, and a table of five hard-to-please individuals who came in an air-conditioned Cadillac left me thirty cents. What is so surprising is the ladies were so sweet and the others had me get them everything but the kitchen sink by the time I finished serving them satisfactorily.

I'm not sure if this explains my point thoroughly enough or not, but I will conclude by saying I hardly feel "undignified" picking up a tip that I worked hard for—especially when the money I hope to earn this summer is going to enable me to become a nurse. By the way, my hourly earnings are one half the minimum wage for any other occupation.—A humble waitress

Offering to Help With the Dishes

Dear Mrs. Post: As a child I was taught that when visiting it was proper to offer to help the hostess with the dishes, if no hired help is present. I do this when I visit, but I find only a very few of my guests ever offer.—Loretta K.

Hold Reunion In Kingston

The third annual reunion of the direct descendants of Martin and Leah (Markle) VanDemar was held on Sunday, Aug. 13, 1967 in Kingston at Hutton Park.

Martin VanDemar, born in Krumville, April 23, 1822 was the great-great-grandson of the first VanDemar in America. Thomas VanDemar, the progenitor of the VanDemar family in America, was born in Holland in 1643. He settled at Esopus (now Kingston) about 1665. Soon thereafter he removed to the new settlement of Marlborough nearby, where he was a farmer until he died in 1724. Thomas and his wife, Jacomyntje Jacobs, had 10 children, seven sons and three daughters, and from the first two and last two sons descended all the VanDemars. Thomas and Jacomyntje Vandemark rest in the North Marlborough Cemetery.

Attending the reunion picnic from this area were: James H. Vandemark of High Falls; Frank E. Markle, Accord; Mrs. Benjamin Frazier, Hyde Park; Mrs. Luella Marshall, Port Jervis; Mrs. John O'Brien and Miss Anna O'Brien from Highland; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Markle, Mrs. Barbara Otis and Miss Betty Jean Otis, Rhinecliff; and from Milton, Mr. and Mrs. Odell Vandemark; from Sidney, N. Y. were Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Brailsland.

Also attending from Kingston were Mrs. Opta Gaudette, Mr. and Mrs. Myron DePuy, Miss Edith DePuy, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Reis Jr., Frank A. Reis Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Ford and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Ford, Mrs. Alexander Brailsland from Walton, Miss Lavinia Brailsland from Walton, Mrs. Fred Latham and Mrs. Milton Close, also from Milton.

Descendants also attended from the Long Island and Poughkeepsie area.

Men Must Stand When Women Stop to Talk

Dear Mrs. Post: I stopped at a table in a restaurant to talk to a girl I knew who was having dinner with two gentlemen. The two men arose and kept standing until I told them to please sit down and finish their dinner before it got cold. Was it proper for these men to stand up and keep standing until I told them to sit down?—Nancy

Dear Nancy: Yes, the men were correct in standing until you asked them to sit down.

Who do you tip? When, and how much? You will find answers to these questions in Elizabeth Post's new booklet "The Etiquette of Tipping." To get a copy, send twenty-five cents in coin to cover booklet and mailing expenses, to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this paper.

The Bonus Years--Part 7 New Progress in Disease Prevention

A sizeable percentage of the people alive today owe their existence to Edward Jenner, the man who 200 years ago injected live pox into humans to prevent the spread of death-dealing smallpox.

Since Jenner's time, the immunologists have conquered other diseases, which once took the lives of millions. The progress continues.

The most recent outbreak of German measles a little more than three years ago left a legacy of broken hearts among mothers who gave birth to deformed babies. One of every two women infected with German measles during the first three months of pregnancy produces a malformed child.

Now the end of this maternal nightmare is in sight. A new vaccine against rubella infection is being tested that shows every sign of success. When available for general use, the live, attenuated vaccine will be given to girls so they will be immune when they reach child-bearing age and to boys who could infect their mothers.

The big question is whether the new vaccine will be ready for the next pandemic of rubella, which is expected in the early 1970's. Leading physicians and virologists believe that if all goes well, the vaccine will be ready for widespread use within two to five years.

Until the vaccine is perfected, the best insurance against an epidemic of birth defects is probably a massive family planning campaign in case of a rubella outbreak. Many doctors concerned with birth defects point out that contraceptive pills and other methods are now so effective that pregnancies could easily be postponed until the danger is over.

Medical researchers at the National Institute of Health, where the vaccine is being perfected, have developed another weapon against rubella—a simple blood test which can reveal whether or not a woman has a natural immunity. The new quick test could be used for the mass screening of all women, whether pregnant or not. The test detects both recently acquired immunity and antibodies that remain as a result of infectious contracted many years earlier. The breakthrough on the rubella vaccine is indicative of the medical advances being made against the virus. In the past few years, medical researchers have accumulated knowledge about the various viral agents, and it is expected that the decade ahead should be a period of medical harvest marked by the development of new vaccines against many diseases.

One such vaccine could eradicate Rh disease of the newborn.

After eight years of research, the new vaccine, which has proved both effective and safe, is almost ready. It will be the first therapeutic drug given to one generation to protect the new generation from an anemia in the unborn known medically as erythroblastosis fetalis.

A highly refined anti-Rh Gamma globulin, the vaccine is given to the Rh-negative mother whose husband is Rh-positive immediately after the birth of the first baby. It then protects the child of the next pregnancy against the disease.

There are estimates from medical experts that as many as one out of ten women will need the vaccine each time she delivers an infant.

The leading researchers say the vaccine is 100 per cent effective. In a study of 900 women, half of them injected with the vaccine and half serving as controls, the results were unequivocal. Every vaccinated woman is protected against sensitization.

Another new vaccine that is expected to be available to the public late this year prevents mumps. A large field trial of the new mumps vaccine will be completed shortly. It follows an earlier trial on 3,000 children in Pennsylvania, 98 per cent of whom gained protection.

Progress has also been reported in the development of a vaccine to prevent streptococcus infections. These infections are implicated in rheumatic fever, which leaves many children and adults crippled with heart ailments.

The new vaccine, according to Eugene N. Fox of the LaRabida-University of Chicago Institute, has been found safe and effective in extensive animal tests. In trials on 50 adults conducted recently, the vaccine led to no serious reactions and greatly increased the level of antibodies against streptococcus organisms.

The investigator noted that only further testing, particularly on infants, will show the effectiveness of the new vaccines under ordinary conditions.

With these new advances, many people ask, why can't someone make a vaccine that will protect us from the viruses that cause common colds?

The answer is that there is no single agent that causes "the common cold." It can be produced by as many as seventy viruses, and some researchers feel there may be more than one hundred. It is unfortunately impossible at this time to make a vaccine that offers protection against so many strains.

Nonetheless, literally thousands of researchers are conducting tests to find a vaccine for at least certain types of colds. Some success has been reported here as well as in the search for vaccines against pneumonia and influenza.

The ideal vaccine—the ultimate vaccine—would be a single agent that would fight a wide range of viral diseases, possibly all of them. Interferon, a protein that humans and animals produce naturally in reaction to disease, may prove to be the agent.

When a cell has been invaded by a virus, it produces interferon, which then penetrates neighboring cells. These neighboring cells are then resistant to the marauding virus.

Interferon is the agent that stops a common cold from spreading, and in experiments in this country and abroad, interferon injections have actually inhibited certain leukemias and cancers in mice.

Dr. Monte Ho of the University of Pittsburgh Graduate School of Public Health says: "We have to find out how this protein is distributed, which tissues it protects, and where in the world it goes."

But the biggest challenge facing the researchers is to find a way to synthesize interferon in the laboratories, so that it can eventually be produced in commercial quantities.

Meanwhile both children and adults need full and up-to-date protection against diseases that are preventable.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Aunt Heloise:

Have you heard of the latest fad sweeping the country? We wear unmat socks.

Teen-agers have gone Gung Ho on exchanging socks—just one with friends and even with pen pals. Girls and boys can exchange also.

It's really a run way of dressing and letting others know just who your extra special friends are.

Besides, Mother says it's a great way to utilize our own unmat socks.

Teenster

Dear Heloise:

I have found the empty roll-on deodorant bottles very good containers for baby oil or baby lotion.

You can just roll a small amount on baby and smooth it with the fingers.

So much easier than pouring it from the bottle and there's no waste at all.

Mrs. L. Roberts

And when you start to bathe that precious baby, turn the bottle upside down and you won't have to wait for the oil to run down to the cap. It will be ready to roll on.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Does everyone already know this trick?

To keep a paper bag open for convenience in filling it, open the bag and turn down the top edge an inch or so, all the way around.

M. E.

Dear Heloise:

To save some packing when preparing for that camping trip, place the cereals your children especially like in those little margarine tubs.

Then mark on the lid what kind of cereal it is. This eliminates taking cereal bowls and boxes of cereal with you.

When you're finished with the tubs, don't throw them away...they come in so handy for many other things.

Mother of Four

Dear Heloise:

Each month I buy at least one gift for a bride, a baby or a graduate, and put it in my "gift drawer."

And when I finish something for my house that I like, I make an extra one and add to these.

It's a nice place, too, to put those socks and ties your husband got for Christmas that didn't go with anything he had! Or that little "what-not" you bought that really didn't look right when you got it home.

It really gives me a thrill and a spirit of giving that I never had when rushing to the store five minutes before they closed to snatch up a gift for that shower I forgot.

And now I wonder who will get those pretty aprons I made this morning from those scraps I had left over from my dusters?

Mrs. T. N. W.

Dear Heloise:

Here is a hint for everyone. Save all those popsicle sticks and make little houses, fences, etc. If you soak them in water they turn all white.

I made a trellis for my potted plants by gluing them together, as the plastic store ones are never high enough.

A WAITRESS GIVES HER
TIPPING

Here is one waitress' comment on the letters I have printed about tipping.

Dear Mrs. Post: As an answer to the non-tipper's letter, I would like to point out the waitresses' side of the story. At the restaurant where I work it is seldom the waitress who is "poor," but fairly often it's the customer. The other day I had two adorable ladies leave me a dollar and a quarter, and a table of five hard-to-please individuals who came in an air-conditioned Cadillac left me thirty cents. What is so surprising is the ladies were so sweet and the others had me get them everything but the kitchen sink by the time I finished serving them satisfactorily.

I'm not sure if this explains my point thoroughly enough or not, but I will conclude by saying I hardly feel "undignified" picking up a tip that I worked hard for—especially when the money I hope to earn this summer is going to enable me to become a nurse. By the way, my hourly earnings are one half the minimum wage for any other occupation.—A humble waitress

Offering to Help With the Dishes

Dear Mrs. Post: As a child I was taught that when visiting it was proper to offer to help the hostess with the dishes, if no hired help is present. I do this when I visit, but I find only a very few of my guests ever offer. Loretta K.

Dear Loretta: In the house of a good friend or relative, it is thoughtful to offer to help with the dishes. Don't however,

Hold Reunion In Kingston

The third annual reunion of the direct descendants of Martin and Leah (Markle) Van Demark was held on Sunday, Aug. 13, 1967 in Kingston at Hutton Park.

Martin VanDemark, born in Krumville, April 23, 1822 was the great-great-grandson of the first VanDemark in America. Thomas VanDemark, the progenitor of the VanDemark family in America, was born in Holland in 1643. He settled at Esopus (now Kingston) about 1665. Soon thereafter he removed to the new settlement of Marbletown nearby, where he was a farmer until he died in 1724. Thomas and his wife, Jacobynthe Jacobs, had 10 children, seven sons and three daughters, and from the first two and last two sons descended all the VanDemarks. Thomas and Jacobynthe Vandemark rest in the North Marbletown Cemetery.

Attending the reunion picnic from this area were: James H. Vandemark of High Falls; Frank E. Markle, Accord; Mrs. Benjamin Frazier, Hyde Park; Mrs. Luella Marshall, Port Ewen; Mrs. John O'Brien of Highland; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Markle, Mrs. Barbara Otis, Rhinecliff; and from Milton, Mr. and Mrs. Odell Vandemark; from Sidney, N. Y. were Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Brailand.

Also attending from Kingston were Mrs. Opta Gaudette, Mr. and Mrs. Myron DePuy, Miss Edith DePuy, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Reis Jr., Frank A. Reis Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Reis, Mr. and Mrs. Alan E. Ford and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Ford, Mrs. Alexander Brailand from Walton, Miss Lavinia Brailand from Walton, Mrs. Fred Latham and Mrs. Milton Close, also from Milton.

Descendants also attended from the Long Island and Poughkeepsie area.

Men Must Stand When Women Stop to Talk

Dear Mrs. Post: I stopped at a table in a restaurant to talk to a girl I knew who was having dinner with two gentlemen. The two men arose and kept standing until I told them to please sit down and finish their dinner before it got cold. Was it proper for these men to stand up and keep standing until I told them to sit down?—Nancy

Dear Nancy: Yes, the men were correct in standing until you asked them to sit down.

Who do you tip? When, and how much? You will find answers to these questions in Elizabeth Post's new booklet "The Etiquette of Tipping." To get a copy, send twenty-five cents in coin to cover booklet and mailing expenses, to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this paper.

The Bonus Years--Part 7 New Progress in Disease Prevention

A sizeable percentage of the people alive today owe their existence to Edward Jenner, the man who 200 years ago injected live pox into humans to prevent the spread of death-dealing smallpox.

Since Jenner's time, the immunologists have conquered other diseases, which once took the lives of millions. The progress continues.

The most recent outbreak of German measles a little more than three years ago left a legacy of broken hearts among mothers who gave birth to deformed babies. One of every two women infected with German measles during the first three months of pregnancy produces a malformed child.

Now the end of this maternal nightmare is in sight. A new vaccine against rubella infection is being tested that shows every sign of success. When available for general use, the live, attenuated vaccine will be given to girls so they will be immune when they reach child-bearing age and to boys who could infect their mothers.

The big question is whether the new vaccine will be ready for the next pandemic of rubella, which is expected in the early 1970's. Leading physicians and virologists believe that if all goes well, the vaccine will be ready for widespread use within two to five years.

Until the vaccine is perfected, the best insurance against an epidemic of birth defects is probably a massive family planning campaign in case of a rubella outbreak. Many doctors concerned with birth defects point out that contraceptive pills and other methods are now so effective that pregnancies could easily be postponed until the danger is over.

Medical researchers at the National Institute of Health, where the vaccine is being perfected, have developed another weapon against rubella—a simple blood test which can reveal whether or not a woman has a natural immunity. The new quick test could be used for the mass screening of all women, whether pregnant or not. The test detects both recently acquired immunity and antibodies that remain as a result of infectious contracted many years earlier.

The breakthrough on the rubella vaccine is indicative of the medical advances being made against the virus. In the past few years, medical researchers have accumulated knowledge about the various viral agents, and it is expected that the decade ahead should be a period of medical harvest marked by the development of new vaccines against many diseases.

One such vaccine could eradicate Rh disease of the newborn.

After eight years of research, the new vaccine, which has proved both effective and safe, is almost ready. It will be the first therapeutic drug given to one generation to protect the new generation from an anemia in the unborn known medically as erythroblastosis fetalis. A highly refined anti-Rh Gamma globulin, the vaccine is given to the Rh-negative mother whose husband is Rh-positive immediately after the birth of the first baby. It then protects the child of the next pregnancy against the disease.

There are estimates from medical experts that as many as one out of ten women will need the vaccine each time she delivers an infant.

The leading researchers say the vaccine is 100 per cent effective. In a study of 900 women, half of them injected with the vaccine and half serving as controls, the results were unequivocal. Every vaccinated woman is protected against sensitization.

Another new vaccine that is expected to be available to the public late this year prevents mumps. A large field trial of the new mumps vaccine will be completed shortly. It follows an earlier trial on 3,000 children in Pennsylvania, 98 per cent of whom gained protection.

Progress has also been reported in the development of a vaccine to prevent streptococcus infections. These infections are implicated in rheumatic fever, which leaves many children and adults crippled with heart ailments.

The new vaccine, according to Eugene N. Fox of the LaRabida-University of Chicago Institute, has been found safe and effective in extensive animal tests. In trials on 50 adults conducted recently, the vaccine led to no serious reactions and greatly increased the level of antibodies against streptococcus organisms.

The investigator noted that only further testing, particularly on infants, will show the effectiveness of the new vaccines under ordinary conditions.

With these new advances, many people ask, why can't someone make a vaccine that will protect us from the viruses that cause common colds?

The answer is that there is no single agent that causes "the common cold." It can be produced by as many as seventy viruses, and some researchers feel there may be more than one hundred. It is unfortunately impossible at this time to make a vaccine that offers protection against so many strains.

Nonetheless, literally thousands of researchers are conducting tests to find a vaccine for at least certain types of colds. Some success has been reported here as well as in the search for vaccines against pneumonia and influenza.

The ideal vaccine—the ultimate vaccine—would be a single agent that would fight a wide range of viral diseases, possibly all of them. Interferon, a protein that humans and animals produce naturally in reaction to disease, may prove to be the agent.

When a cell has been invaded by a virus, it produces interferon, which then penetrates neighboring cells. These neighboring cells are then resistant to the invading virus.

Interferon is the agent that stops a common cold from spreading, and in experiments in this country and abroad, interferon injections have actually inhibited certain leukemias and cancers in mice.

Dr. Monte Ho of the University of Pittsburgh Graduate School of Public Health says: "We have to find out how this protein is distributed, which tissues it protects, and where in the world it goes."

But the biggest challenge facing the researchers is to find a way to synthesize interferon in the laboratories, so that it can eventually be produced in commercial quantities.

Meanwhile both children and adults need full and up-to-date protection against diseases that are preventable.

HAPPY ENDING — Veteran pro Charlie Sifford wipes the tears away as he broke down during the cup presentation after he won the Greater Hartford Open Sunday. It was Sifford's first victory in 14 years on the PGA Tour. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Sifford Hits Jackpot After Fourteen Years On PGA Tourney Trail

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Charles Sifford, 44-year-old Negro golfer from Los Angeles, won the $20,000 first prize at the Greater Hartford Open golf tournament Sunday when he closed with a 7-under-par 64 for a 72-hole total of 272.

Charging past several young professionals who had handled the tournament lead like a hot potato, Sifford put the cap on a 20-year career with a final nine holes of 31—five under par—to edge 25-year-old Steve Opperman of San Francisco by one stroke.

It was the first victory in a regular PGA tournament for Sifford after 14 years of trying. Sifford's victories in non-PGA competition include six Negro Open championships.

Sparked by Eagle
Sifford sank a 25-yard wedge shot on the 14th to get an eagle 3 and a tie for the lead. They stayed tied until the par-3 17th, a problem hole for Sifford in the three earlier rounds. But he put his tee shot on the green 215 yards away and made a decisive par. Opperman came along minutes later and missed the green carding a bogey.

Two strokes behind Sifford, tied for third, were Gary Player of South Africa, Dan Sikes Jr., Doug Ford and Ray Floyd. Third round leader Terry Dill finished with a one over par 72 to fall into a tie with Frank Beard and Kel Nagle of Australia at 275, three strokes back.

Kelly Pitches Four-Hitter Against Locals

BY CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

The Kingston Braves have one game remaining in the regular schedule of the 1967 Interstate Baseball League. And they're going to have to win it to qualify for the post-season playoffs.

Amenia hung a disastrous 12-4 setback on the locals Sunday at Amelia to tie the Braves in the loss column for the fourth spot in the playoffs. The home tossers collected 14 hits off three Kingston pitchers and the absence of Chick Boice and Pete Watzka didn't help the Braves' chances any.

Boice is away on vacation and Watzka was competing in the American Legion tournament at Beacon.

Kingston's remaining game will be played against the last place Torrington Red Sox. Amenias has two games left. A tie for the fourth spot is a distinct possibility.

Four Hits for Bates

Veteran Carl Bates acted like a real cleanup hitter with "4 for 4", including two doubles and two singles to pace the Amenias attack.

Dan Heppner started and worked 2 1/3 innings for the Braves. He was followed by Gary Van Etten (4 2/3 innings), with Jerry Hawkins, the centerfielder pitching the last two innings. Ron Thomas, still nursing a sore elbow, played third base.

Fred Secreto, the sub outfielder, collected two of the four Kingston hits off John Kelly, who fanned six. A scratch single by Secreto in the second inning was the only safety permitted by Kelly until the ninth when the Braves put together three hits for two runs.

Joe Schabot singled, Rick Broberg was safe on a fielder's choice and Secreto and Van Etten singled for the two markers.

Boice Leads League

The Pine Plains at Millerton game was rained out.

HAPPY ENDING — Veteran pro Charlie Sifford wipes the tears away as he broke down during the cup presentation after he won the Greater Hartford Open Sunday. It was Sifford's first victory in 14 years on the PGA Tour. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Sifford Hits Jackpot After Fourteen Years On PGA Tour Trail

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Charlie Sifford, 44-year-old Negro golfer from Los Angeles, won the $20,000 first prize at the Greater Hartford Open golf tournament Sunday when he closed with a 7-under-par 64 for a 72-hole total of 272.

Charging past several young professionals who had handled the tournament lead like a hot potato, Sifford put the cap on a 20-year career with a final nine holes of 31—five under par—to edge 25-year-old Steve Oppermann of San Francisco by one stroke.

It was the first victory in a regular PGA tournament for Sifford after 14 years of trying. Sifford's victories in non-PGA competition include six Negro Open championships.

Sparked by Eagle
Sifford sank a 25-yard wedge shot on the 14th to get an eagle 3 and a tie for the lead. They stayed tied until the par-3 17th, a problem hole for Sifford in the three earlier rounds. But he put his tee shot on the green 215 yards away and made a decisive par. Oppermann came along minutes later and missed the green carding a bogey.

Two strokes behind Sifford, tied for third, were Gary Player of South Africa, Dan Sikes Jr., Doug Ford and Ray Floyd. Third round leader Terry Dill finished with a one over par 72 to fall into the tie with Frank Beard and Kel Nagle of Australia at 275, three strokes back.

Bench Sitter Adair Sparks Bosox Surge

By RON RAPOPMRT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sitting is not Jerry Adair's idea of fun, a fact that cost him a cool $12,000 last season. But having fun may prove to be far more profitable this year.

Adair drove in the tying and winning runs in Boston's not-to-be believed nine-run comeback in the second game of a double-header with California Sunday. The Red Sox finally won 9-8 after taking the first game 12-2 and moved to within 1 1/2 games of American League leading Minnesota.

In the sixth inning, Adair dropped a single through a drawn-in Angels' infield, driving in the tying run. In the eighth, he hit his second homer of the season to win the game.

Adair was traded from Baltimore to Chicago last season after complaining because he was benched in favor of Dave Johnson. That cost him a winning World Series share. This season he went to the Red Sox where he has been playing and hitting, almost constantly.

In other American League games, New York beat Minnesota 7-3, Chicago swept a double header from Baltimore 4-2 and 2-1 and Detroit took a pair from Cleveland 4-2 and 4-0. Kansas City and Washington were rained out.

"I had no idea I'd be playing this much," said Adair, who has been all over the Red Sox infield and hitting .301 since the trade. "But it's no fun sitting. It cost me $12,000 not to sit last year."

Reggie Smith—who hit three homers during the afternoon and Carl Yastrzemski—who hit two—led the remarkable Boston comeback with long balls.

Nobody on the Boston club could remember coming from that far behind before and all Manager Dick Williams could say was "fabulous."

Tony Oliva hit two homers for the Twins and Zoilo Versalles contributed another one, but the Yankees got three runs in the fifth and sixth innings to tighten up the American League pennant race considerably.

He received his BS degree in physical education from East Stroudsburg (Pa.) and his MS from Springfield (Mass.) College, where he was a graduate teaching assistant in physical education. He is now working on his doctorate in research in psychology and physical education at Michigan State University.

While he was at Springfield in 1957, Durkin's squad won the NCAA national championship in soccer.

Unbeaten in Soccer
At East Stroudsburg, he was a three-year member of both the varsity soccer and tennis teams, and played on the undefeated 1953 soccer squad.

Before entering the collegiate teaching level, he was instructor-coach in physical education and chairman of the eight-member staff at North Point High School, Maryland. In 1964-65, Durkin was tournament director of the Hudson Valley Open Tennis tournament, held at New Paltz.

Kingston Post in Semi-Finals of Beacon Tournament

Janes Is 5-0 Winner In Semis

Blending a strong two-hitter by Charlie Janes with an errorless defense and some clutch hitting, Kingston Post No. 150 advanced to the semi-finals of the Legion Jr. Beacon Invitational Baseball tournament with a 5-0 decision Sunday over Yorktown Sommers Post at Memorial Field in the Southern Dutchess city.

Janes allowed a pair of singles and he walked two batters while fanning 13. His mates scored twice in each of the first and third innings and allied another run in the sixth.

In the opening session, Ron Valle singled and was bunted to second by Mike Derrenbach. Hot hitting Pete Watzka singled to drive in Valle and Pete advanced to second on the throw-in and to third on a passed ball. He tallied as Greg Rios was grounding out.

A walk to Watzka, Mike Weishaup's booming triple and a wild pitch increased the margin to 4-0 in the third inning.

Watzka's second single scored Valle, who had reached third on an error and fielders choice in the sixth.

The local nine will oppose the host Beacon club in a semi-final game at 1 o'clock Saturday. The winner will play in the finals at 2 a. m. Sunday against the winner of the Wappingers Falls-Ossining contest.

Miss Whitworth Western Winner

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN Associated Press Sports Writer PEKIN, Ill. (AP) — Mike McGrew is one of those kind of caddies who can make you look good. Kathy Whitworth is the first to admit it.

She hugged him Sunday after winning the Women's Western Golf Open—one of the few titles that had eluded her.

The slender, 27-year-old, hazel-eyed Texan captured the championship with a closing 71 for 289-11 under par for the Pekin Country Club Course whipped by rain and wind during most of the 38th annual meet.

It was a western Open record score, bettering the 290 by Mary Lena Faulk set in Nashville in 1961 and matched by Susie Maxwell in Chicago in 1965.

The sub-par figure was the best 72-hole effort on the Ladies Professional Golfers Association circuit this year.

Second-place Sandra Haynie, who scored to a 40 on the last nine for a 74, finished three strokes behind.

Shirley Englehorn was third with 75 for 298, followed by Carol Mann at 300; Mary Mills, 302; Clifford Ann Creed, 304, and Marilyn Smith, 306.

The winning award of $1,500 boosted Kathy's leading purse of the season to $21,067, and gave her six tournament victories—a record she will carry into the $12,500 Amarillo Open.

"I couldn't have done it without Mike," said Kathy. "Every morning he was out stepping off the yardage for new pin placements on the green. He had a notebook filled with yardage and knew just what club I should use."

Bill's Coach Moaning

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — "Right now I would say we are just about good enough to finish third in our division," Coach Joel Collier of the Buffalo Bills said Sunday after a discouraging 60 minutes of football.

The cause of Collier's pessimism was the Bills' 10-10 loss to the Boston Patriots, an American Football League rival not noted for concentrating on victory in pre-season games.

The setback, viewed by 15,500 in Aquinas Stadium here, was the third in as many exhibitions for the defending champions of the AFL's Eastern Division.

The Patriots got their margin of victory in the waning moments of the game as Gino Capelletti booted a 33-yard field goal.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Bills tallied at 9:12 of the second period on a 32-yard pass from Jack Kemp to Ed Rutkowski. Booth Lusteg's conversion made it 7-0.

AAU RECORD — Toni Hewitt, of the Corona del Mar, Calif. SC is almost in tears as she looks up at the official time of 2:23.6 she set to break the existing world record in the 200-meter butterfly event at the National AAU Women's Swim championships in Philadelphia. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

15-Year-Old Girl Snaps Barrier in 1500-Meters

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The pending mark of 18:11.1, set July 9. When it was over, and she heard the time, Miss Meyer said she missed what she wanted by two-tenths of a second. "I figured out my splits and figured 17:50 was possible. I'll get it the next time."

There were two other double world record breakers in the meet. Claudia Kolb and Katie Ball, Miss Kolb, of the Santa Clara, Calif., Swim Club, powered the 200-meter individual medley with a 2:25.0, and the 400-meter individual medley in 5:08.2.

Miss Ball, a cute 15-year-old blonde from Jacksonville, Fla., the first U.S. swimmer ever to establish a world record for the breaststroke, recorded a 1:14.6 in the 100-meter breaststroke and 2:39.5 in the 200 breaststroke.

Pennsy Drivers Win Glen "500" Car Race

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — A Pennsylvania duo that spurned rain tires despite showery conditions won Sunday's death-marred, fourth annual running of the Glen 500 sports car race.

Ed Lowther of McMurray, Pa., and Dr. M. R. J. Wyllie of Allison Park, Pa., drove an A-Production Cobra 427 135 laps around the 2.3-mile Glen track in three hours, 14 minutes and 44.8 seconds for the victory. They average 95.66 miles per hour.

Of the 22 entries, only 10 could finish the major part of the 310.5-mile endurance run, and the winners were alone in completing the full distance.

Lowther and Wyllie's closest rivals were another Pennsylvania pair, Oscar Koveleski of Clarks Summit and Joseph F. Welch of Dalton. They traveled 130 laps in a Sting Ray for the second-place trophy, averaging 91.58 mph for a trip that took three hours, 15 minutes and 53.2 seconds.

Don Yenko of Cannonsburg, Pa. finished third, also in a Sting Ray.

Tragedy struck on the 32nd lap when Martin Krinner of Boonton Township, N.J., was killed by a speeding car as he stood next to his disabled Shelby near the edge of the track.

Krinner, 36, was hurled 50 feet after he was struck by a Cobra driven by George Taylor of Ottsville, Pa. His wife Clara was among an estimated 15,000 spectators at the race.

With showers in the air before the race, most of the drivers switched to rain tires while the Lowther-Wyllie team stuck to conventional, and faster, wheels.

The light rain tapered off during the afternoon. "If we had a downpour we would not have won," Lowther said.

The winners, who earned the pole position in Saturday's time trials, never were farther back than third. They took the lead permanently in the 28th lap and in the 106th, set a lap record for the course with a 1:19.45 timing at 104.22 mph.

The old mark was established last year by Bob Grossman of West Nyack, N.Y. when he was clocked in 1:19.8 at 103.76 mph.

Current Champion Lowther, a 40-year-old home builder, won the first running of the "500" in 1964 and is the current champion of the Sports Car Club of America. The prize given to the winner of the race provided an incentive Sunday, he said.

"We were out of booze. We know that at Watkins Glen they give away a bottle of champagne, so I decided to win," he joked.

The fourth through 10th finishers were: John Kelly, Washington, D.C., Porsche; Alex Davidson, Rome, N.Y., Sting Ray; Anthony J. DeLorenzo, Bloomfield Hills, Mich., and Gerald D. Thompson, Clawson, Mich., Corvette; Robert Leubbe, Sherrill, N.Y., Corvette; James Harrell, Ann Arbor, Mich., and Richard Sterbins, Cape Charles, La., AFB, Mustang; John Orr, Sherrill, N.Y., Corvette; and Art Riley and Arthur L. Mollin, Franklin Square, N.Y., Volvo.

Wilson and Holtzman Good Sunday Hurlers

By DICK COUCH Associated Press Sports Writer The long season is becoming a downhill drag for the Houston Astros and Chicago Cubs.

But never on Sunday. That's the day when Don Wilson is unbeatable in the Astros' dome and Ken Holtzman is available to the Cubs.

Wilson, Houston's rookie pitching flash, snapped St. Louis' eight-game winning streak Sunday with a six-hit 2-1 triumph over the National League leaders. It was the fireballing right-hander's fifth start—and fourth straight victory—in the Astros' nine Sunday home games this season.

Holtzman, Chicago's unbeaten second-year southpaw, made the most of his second weekend pass from the Army and beat Philadelphia 6-1, completing a three-game series sweep for the struggling Cubs. A week ago, Holtzman tamed the Phillies 6-2 in his first appearance since May 20.

Elsewhere, Pittsburgh topped the New York Mets 4-2; San Francisco shaded Cincinnati 3-2 and Los Angeles whipped Atlanta 6-1.

Pass the Mets Wilson, bringing his season mark to 9-8, blanked the Cardinals on four hits until the eighth inning, then worked out of a serious jam before nailing the victory, which lifted the Astros past New York into ninth place. They had dropped 15 of their previous 17 games this month.

Bob Aspromonte stroked a run-scoring double in the second inning and continued around the bases on a pair of throwing errors, giving Wilson the margin of victory over St. Louis' Larry Jaster.

Holtzman, backed by Ernie Banks' three-run homer, checked the Phils on five hits before giving way to reliever Bill Stoneman in the ninth. The Chicago ace, now 7-0, worked only 5 1-3 innings in last Sunday's victory over Philadelphia.

The Pirates stretched their winning string to four games longest for the club since the first week in May—as Bill Mazeroski drilled a tie-breaking single in the sixth inning and Manny Mota knocked in an insurance run with a sacrifice fly in the seventh.

Jim Davenport's pinch hit single after two walks in the ninth lifted the Giants past the Reds. Willie McCovey accounted for the other San Francisco runs with a double in the first and his 21st homer in the seventh.

Gaylord Perry went the route for his 10th victory in 24 decisions, yielding six hits including a two-run homer by Pete Rose.

Don Sutton, another Army reservist on weekend leave, scattered nine hits as the Dodgers won their third in a row from Atlanta. A five-run flurry in the sixth inning, with Al Ferrara's two-run single the big blow, enabled Sutton to breeze to his ninth victory against 12 setbacks.

Charlie O. Makes Dark 7th Victim By GORDON BEARD Associated Press Sports Writer BALTIMORE (AP) — Insurance man Charles O. Finley has an unwavering policy when it comes to hiring and firing baseball managers. He believes in short-term life.

The owner of the Kansas City Athletics maintained his image Sunday, knocking Alvin Dark right out of his white kangaroo baseball spikes with a sudden dismissal notice.

Veteran coach Luke Appling was named to replace Dark. But Old Aches-And-Pains will merely be the seventh Finley manager in seven seasons, since the A's owner made it clear Appling will serve on an interim basis.

Dark apparently was on the verge of upsetting Finley's managerial actuary tables when an open feud between the Kansas City players and Finley changed the picture overnight. Instead of signing a new two-year contract, Dark found himself without a job.

Turn of Events The aboutface came swiftly: Finley suspended pitcher Lew Krause Friday, on what he described as conduct unbecoming a major league player, banned alcoholic drinks from being served on future airplane flights, and said "shenanigans" of a few A's had been deplorable.

At a clubhouse meeting in Washington Saturday, the players unanimously adopted a statement which accused Finley of undermining the team's morale by using informers to spy on the players.

The A's said several players had been subjected to an "unjust amount of pressure" despite having no part in the "so-called incident on a recent plane trip from Boston to Kansas City."

But the explosive portion of the statement said: "We players feel Mr. Finley would give his fine coaching staff and excellent manager the authority they deserve. These problems would not exist."

Shown a copy of the statement Saturday night in Washington, Finley said, "This compels me to withhold the announcement of a two-year Dark contract until further consideration."

An all-night meeting ensued, extending from 7 p. m. Saturday until 4:30 a. m. Sunday. An hour after leaving the meeting, Dark was notified by telephone that he had been fired.

Marathon Swimmer Nearing Expo '67

CAPE VINCENT, N.Y. (AP) — Long-distance swimmer Russell Chaffee stepped up his pace Sunday in the hopes of swimming the St. Lawrence River to Montreal and Expo 67 before the end of the week.

Chaffee, who started the swim Aug. 7 at Watkins Glen at the foot of Seneca Lake, said he had passed the half-way point in the 370 nautical-mile journey.

The 42-year-old high school teacher from Sayre, Pa., headed for Fishers Landing about 20 miles north of here Sunday after attending church services in this village at the head of the St. Lawrence River.

The chunky swimmer said he encountered seven-foot waves on Lake Ontario Saturday in his 12-mile swim from Point Peninsula, on Lake Ontario west of Watertown, to Cape Vincent.

In addition, he said, he was harassed by fumes from the boats of the curious.

Chaffee said his original course would have covered 352 nautical miles. He swam along the shore of Lake Ontario from Oswego, however, instead of across the eastern end of the lake.

Miss Whitworth Western Winner

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN Associated Press Sports Writer
PEKIN, Ill. (AP) — Mike McGrew is one of those kind of caddies who can make you look good. Kathy Whitworth is the first to admit it.

She hugged him Sunday after winning the Women's Western Golf Open—one of the few titles that had eluded her.

The slender, 27-year-old, hazel-eyed Texan captured the championship with a closing 71 for 289—11 under par for the Pekin Country Club Course whipped by rain and wind during most of the 38th annual meet.

It was a western Open record score, bettering the 290 by Mary Lena Faulk set in Nashville in 1961 and matched by Susie Maxwell in Chicago in 1965.

The sub-par figure was the best 72-hole score on the Ladies Professional Golfers Association circuit this year.

Second-place Sandra Haynie, who scored to a 40 on the last nine for a 74, finished three strokes behind.

Shirley Englehorn was third with 75 for 298, followed by Carl of Mann at 300; Mary Mills, 302; Clifford Ann Creed, 304, and Marilyn Smith, 306.

The winning award of $1,500 boosted Kathy's leading purse of the season to $21,067, and gave her six tournament victories—a record she will carry into the $12,500 Amarillo Open.

"I couldn't have done it without Mike," said old caddy with a morning he was out stepping off the yardage for new pin placements on the green. He had a notebook filled with yardage and knew just what club I should use."

BATTING — Reggie Smith, Red Sox, hit three home runs, good for six RBI, in a 12-2, 9-8 doubleheader sweep over California.

PITCHING — John Hiller, Tigers, fired a four-hitter for his second victory in two major league decisions as Detroit blanked Cleveland 4-0 and completed a doubleheader sweep.

Bill's Coach Moaning

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — "Right now I would say we are just about good enough to finish third in our division."

Coach Joel Collier of the Buffalo Bills said Sunday after a discouraging 60 minutes of football.

The cause of Collier's pessimism was the Bills 13-10 loss to the Boston Patriots, an American Football League rival not noted for concentrating on victory in pre-season games.

The setback, viewed by 15,500 in Aquinas Stadium here, was the third in as many exhibitions for the defending champions of the AFL's Eastern Division.

Asked where he could salvage anything encouraging from the loss, Collier replied bluntly: "Can't think of a thing."

The Patriots got their margin of victory in the waning moments of the game as Gino Capelletti booted a 33-yard field goal.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Bills tallied at 9:12 of the second period on a 32-yard pass from Jack Kemp to Ed Rutkowski. Booth Lusteg's conversion made it 7-0.

Midway in the third period, Boston rookie Ed Philpott blocked Paul Maguire's punt at the five, where another freshman, Mel Witt, snatched the ball and scooted into the end zone. Capelletti made the conversion to end the score, then connected on a 47-yard field goal.

Mike Mercer's 13-yard three-pointer in the fourth quarter ended the Buffalo scoring.

Kemp moved in as quarter-back with the game 11 minutes old when Tom Flores, the starter, was knocked out by a tackle by Jim Hunt. He spent the rest of the game on the sidelines.

The bills completed 17 of 41 passes for 156 yards, but receivers bobbled the key throws. Four field goals attempts in the first half also were missed. Fifty yards were gained on the ground.

The Patriots, led by 14-year veteran Babe Parilli in the first quarter and rookie John Huarte the rest of the way, could amass only 67 yards on the ground and 75 in the air, but it carried them through.

"It boils down to poor execution," Collier said of the Bills' tepid offense. And execution, he said, will be the emphasis when the team returns to training camp Tuesday.

Seeded Stars Move Up On Easy Wins

Top seeded Dick Smith, the defending champion, and Dave Streibel advanced to the semi-final round in the men's singles division of the Ulster County Tennis Tournament over the weekend at Forsyth Park.

Smith swept past Chip Grover in a second round match, 6-0, 6-1, then eliminated Paul Johnson in a hard fought quarter final duel, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2.

Streibel showed tremendous power in eliminating Bill Zeeh and Dick Little with the loss of only two games. He defeated each by identical margins of 6-1, 6-0.

Bill Zeeh, young Kingston High school player, scored one of the major upsets of the weekend with a 6-4, 6-4 decision over veteran Marshall Lipton.

See Lucky Cops Raceway Feature

MONTICELLO, New York—See Lucky, a four-year-old chestnut horse by Lucky Eden won the featured $5,000 race at Monticello Raceway Saturday night in 2:03.3—extending his record to an undefeated five starts this year and seven in a row over two years.

Going to the front quickly before they hit the first turn, See Lucky paced the half in 1:02.4 and the last quarter in :30.1 to outdistance Black Sire, the runnerup, and Rendezvous Truder, third. The winner returned $2.80 for $2.00.

See Lucky, owned by David Handle of Flushing, New York, was bred almost across the street from Monticello Raceway. The winners share of the purse put the four-year-olds earnings just over the $50,000 mark.

Pepper Tiger, driven by Charley Norris, won his second in a row in the opener

Easy Winner

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
WESBURY, N. Y. (AP) — The boss was right.

That means that when Henri Levesque of France decided to change his luck and drive his 6-year-old mare, Roquepine, in the $100,000 Roosevelt International Trot, he was right.

Roquepine went off the odds-on favorite and led all the way in the 1 1/4 mile harness racing classic at Roosevelt Raceway Saturday night.

The mare beat Fresh Yankee of Canada by three-quarters of a length and Governor Armbr, another Canadian trotter, by 1 1/2 lengths. Real Speed of the United States was fourth.

Levesque decided to take Jean-Rene Gougeon out of Roquepine's sulky and substitute himself after Roquepine had lost the United Nations Trot at Yonkers Raceway last June and the International last year with Gougeon handling the reins.

Pre-Race Plan?
Gougeon drove another French trotter, Oscar R.L., who eventually finished fifth. Oscar R.L. is owned by Levesque's son-in-law, Maurice de Folleville, and this led to assertions that Levesque and Gougeon might have had a pre-race plan to run interference for each other.

For much of the race until the mile mark, Roquepine, on the inside, and Oscar R.L., on the outside, did indeed race alongside of each other at the head of the field.

Levesque denied after the race that there was any such pre-race plan. "I don't need to do such a thing. I don't need this money. This is an international race and the glory is everything."

Roquepine picked up $50,000 after trotting the distance in a slow 2:43 4-5 over a sloppy track.

Upstate, Saratoga Raceway has the New York Sire Stakes on tap again this week. Two-year-old trotters race tonight and Tuesday, with fillies competing tonight for $11,134 and colts and geldings Tuesday night for $10,940.

In the $12,850 Sire Stake for 3-year-old pacing colts last Saturday night at Saratoga Bobby Ed sped to a 1/4 length victory over Bi Lika Me. Featherstep was third. Bobby Ed covered the mile over the heavy track in 2:05 and paid $3.40.

In other feature races in New York State last Saturday night: The Broke's Choice ($6) trotted the mile in 2:08 over a muddy track. Vernon Downs' track and won the $11,000 third leg of the Melvin C. Eaton series. Fearless Doc was second and Argo Duke third.

Whiteley Jr., trainer of Damascus, was sounded out on the subject even before the Kentucky-bred son of Sword Dancer-Kerala on the 98th running of the 1 1/4 miles by 22 lengths over a sloppy track with a time of 2:01 3-5 that matched the Saratoga race track standard. He was acceptable to the idea.

Whiteley, who has declined to run Damascus in the Sept. 2 renewal of the $250,000-added New Hampshire Sweepstakes Classic at Rockingham Park because his horse would have to give Dr. Fager eight pounds, indicated he would like to hook up with the Jonny Nerud-trained Dr. Fager at scale weights of 126 pounds and at 1 1/4 miles.

Nerud, watching Damascus trap Tumiga and Gala Performance by as much as 15 lengths after one-half mile, didn't comment on the match race but said:

"Just wait until the last week in September. Then we'll see which is the better horse."

May Race in Woodward
Nerud was referring to the 1 1/4 miles of the $100,000-added Woodward at Aqueduct on Sept. 30.

It is a weight-for-age event, which would call for 3-year-olds to carry 120 pounds and older horses 126. And one of the older horses with eyes on the Woodward is Buckpasser, 1966 horse of the year.

Patriots Nip Bills, 13-10
By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
They can't accuse Mike Holovak of running up the score.

On the threshold of one of their rare exhibition victories, Holovak's Boston Patriots avoided the temptation of that extra touchdown and contented themselves with a 13-10 American Football League squeaker over Buffalo Sunday.

After the frustrations Holovak's Patriots have endured for six preseason campaigns, he could have been forgiven for going after the extra TD. The Pats had managed just three exhibition victories under Holovak until Sunday.

But with only moments left to play and Boston threatening after Jay Cunningham's 47-yard punt return, Holovak had quarterback John Huarte run out the clock.

He could afford the gracious move because of Gino Cappelletti's educated toe. Cappelletti booted a 33-yard field goal with less than three minutes remaining, breaking a 10-10 tie. It was the veteran end's second field goal of the game and enough for the victory.

In Sunday's other exhibition football, the National League's Detroit Lions spoiled the opening of San Diego's new $28 million stadium by ripping the AFL Charges, 38-17, and Dallas topped San Francisco 30-24.

In Saturday's inter-league action, Philadelphia of the NFL trimmed the AFL's New York Jets 34-19, and the NFL Atlanta Falcons downed Miami of the AFL 27-17.

In intra-league play, New Orleans' fledgling NFL club topped Pittsburgh 20-17, Washington pounded the New York Giants 31-13, Los Angeles took Cleveland 24-17 and Kansas City walloped Oakland 48-0.

GENERAL COMMENT—Bills are perennial "have" of AFL's eastern division. And on paper soph coach Joel Collier has more than ever with the acquisition of three big stars—Powell, Lincoln, Flores. No one sees how they can lose.

OFFENSE
PASSING—Jack Kemp, the Elbow, can't afford to rest on his senior citizenship. Ex-Raider Tom Flores is more accurate passer (records prove it, too) and has almost as much experience. Rating—B+.

RECEIVING—If Art Powell still has all his finesse, and no reason he shouldn't have, the long bomb becomes a double threat, since Elbert Dubenion is still around. If Duby slows up, there's Bobby Crockett, last year's bright neophyte. And Paul Costa looms big at tight end. Rating—A.

RUSHING—Like the Powell bit—if Keith Lincoln's everything he used to be (and he's only 28) they'll bruise a few people. Keith's biggest problem might be cracking starting combine of Bobby Burnett (rookie of year) and Wray Carlton, an underrated fullback. Rating—B+.

LINE—The knee injury to Capt. Billy Shaw forced some juggling, with tackle Stew Barber moving to guard and rookie Gary Bugenhagen taking Barber's old spot. Shaw should be back in mid-season. His kind of class is vital. Absence changes whole complexion of Bill's blocking. Rating—B.

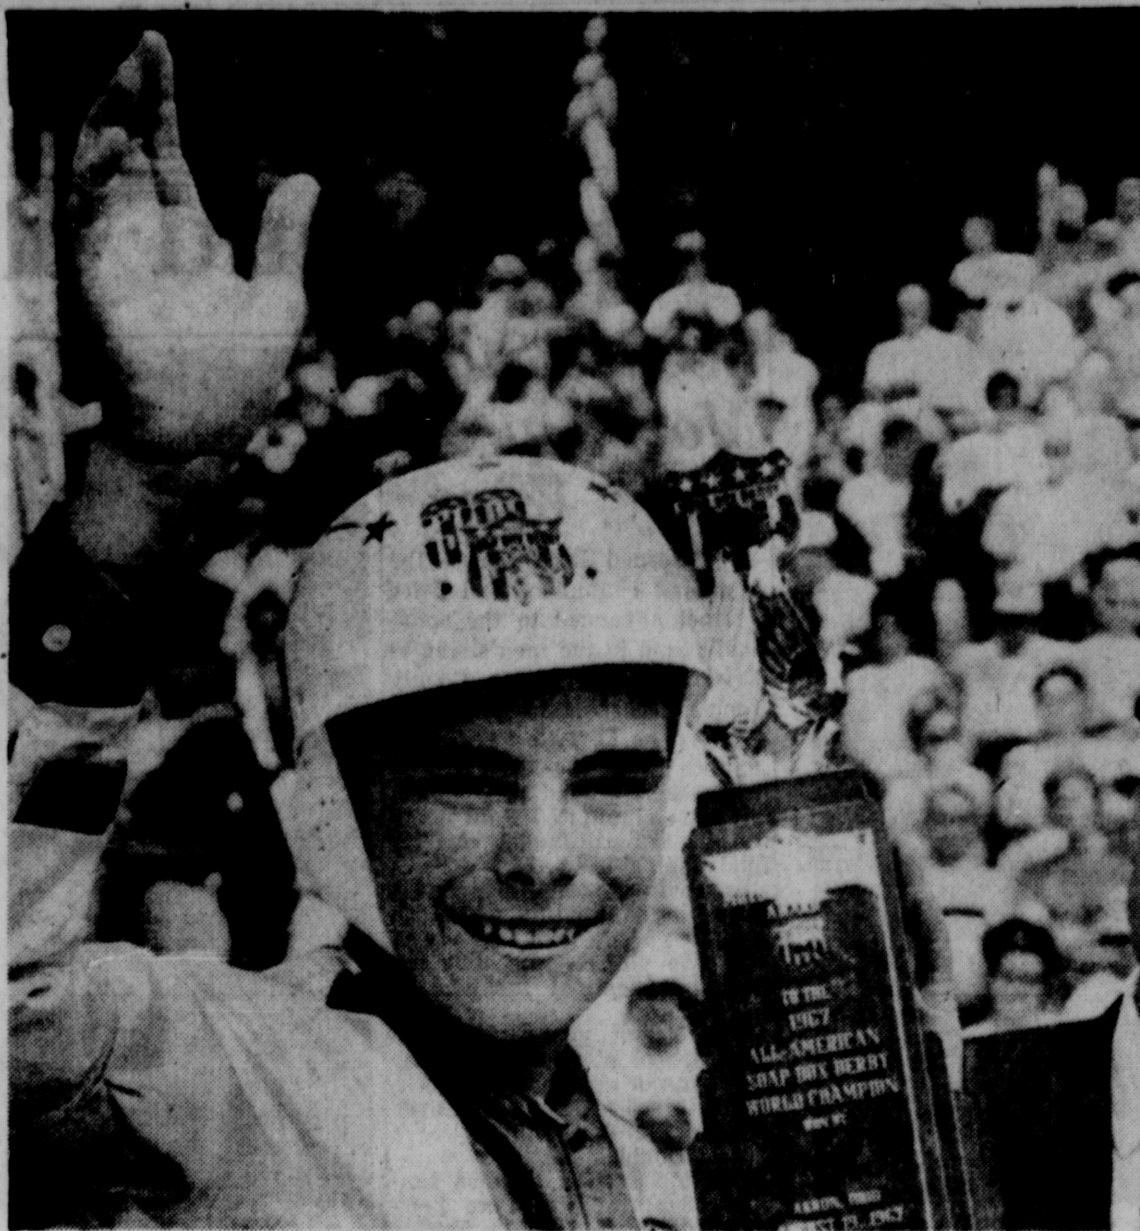

KICKING—Booth Lusteg, Mike Mercer vie for place-kicking. Neither is a Lou Groza. Punting is competent as always with Paul Maguire. Rating—B.

DEFENSE
LINE—The big gamble was trading away end Tom Day in Lincoln deal. The big hope is Remi Prudhomme will fill the gap. Best tackle set in AFL with Tom Sestak, Jim Dunaway at top of their games. Ron McDole set again at flank. But behind them everybody's untested. Rating—B.

LINEBACKERS—Mike Stratton, Harry Jacobs, John Tracey set record for longevity as unit every time they step on field. But time is catching up with latter two, and someone like Marty Schottenheimer's ready to take over. Among rookies, Notre Dame's Tom Roads shows promise, too. Rating—B+.

SECONDARY—The solid fellows are Butch Byrd at one corner and George Saines at free safety. Pending development of Charley King or couple of rookies, the faces at other posts will be same: Tommy Janik at corner, Hagood Clarke at strong safety. Old hand Booker Edgerson pushes Janik. Rating—B.

SUMMARY: This is a solid club that has helped itself with off-season trades but didn't pick up much rookie class and may have left itself vulnerable on defensive line. If everything goes normal—meaning injuries don't decimate them—Bills should be heavily favored to dominate the East again. PREDICTION—1st in East.

THE CHAMPION — Kenneth D. Cline of Lincoln, Neb., waves and holds his trophy after winning the 1967 All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron, Ohio. Young Cline defeated 243 other boys to earn his title. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Damascus-Dr. Fager Match Race Likely?

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — A match race between Damascus, a romping winner of last Saturday's $80,100 Travers, and Dr. Fager, a fleet runner whose staying powers are untested, to decide the championship of the turf's 3-year-old division. Sounds intriguing, doesn't it?

Frank Whiteley Jr., trainer of Damascus, was sounded out on the subject even before the Kentucky-bred son of Sword Dancer-Kerala on the 98th running of the 1 1/4 miles by 22 lengths over a sloppy track with a time of 2:01 3-5 that matched the Saratoga race track standard. He was acceptable to the idea.

Whiteley, who has declined to run Damascus in the Sept. 2 renewal of the $250,000-added New Hampshire Sweepstakes Classic at Rockingham Park because his horse would have to give Dr. Fager eight pounds, indicated he would like to hook up with the Jonny Nerud-trained Dr. Fager at scale weights of 126 pounds and at 1 1/4 miles.

Nerud, watching Damascus trap Tumiga and Gala Performance by as much as 15 lengths after one-half mile, didn't comment on the match race but said:

"Just wait until the last week in September. Then we'll see which is the better horse."

May Race in Woodward
Nerud was referring to the 1 1/4 miles of the $100,000-added Woodward at Aqueduct on Sept. 30.

It is a weight-for-age event, which would call for 3-year-olds to carry 120 pounds and older horses 126. And one of the older horses with eyes on the Woodward is Buckpasser, 1966 horse of the year.

Buckpasser, who hasn't raced since losing the Brooklyn handicap under 138 pounds July 23, is slated to return to competition in the 1 1/4 miles of the Aqueduct, Labor Day, in which he'll carry 134 pounds.

Meantime, Dr. Fager is heading for the New Hampshire Classic. Dr. Fager was withdrawn from the Travers because a virus interrupted his training, but he worked five furlongs in 58 3-5 seconds last Friday and looked as sharp as ever.

Of the two contenders for the 3-year-old crown, Damascus has by far the most imposing record. In fact, there wouldn't be any argument over the merits of the pair had it not been for the Gotham at Aqueduct last spring. Dr. Fager beat Damascus, but jockey Bill Shoemaker has claimed he, not the horse, lost the race because he made an error in rushing his mount into contention too soon.

In 12 starts this year, Damascus has chalked up nine victories, two seconds and one third place for earnings of $584,161.

Two-Year Old Title Still Up for Grabs

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

While the argument still rages over the merits of the two top 3-year-olds and the voters take another look at Handsome Boy in rating the handicap division, the 2-year-olds attempt this week to do something about their own muddled championship picture.

Saturday at Saratoga, the top juveniles, minus only Monmouth Park's Sapling winner Subpet, hook up in the 6 1/2 furlongs of the $75,000-added Hopeful as four weeks of thoroughbred racing at the upstate New York resort ends.

Heading the prospective field are two powerful entries—Vieltriole and What a Pleasure from the Eddie Nelyo-trained string and Exclusive Native and unbeaten Bold Native farm Lou Wolfson's Harbor View Farm. Add to them Potomac, Pappa Steve and Forward Pass and you have a right fair mixture for an exciting horse race. All either have won stakes or have been right up there.

Meantime, Damascus strengthened his claim to the 3-year-old title by winning last Saturday's $80,100 Travers by 22 lengths with a clocking of 2:01 3-5 to match the track record. Convincing, however, as was the victory, there are some who say that the title will not be decided until Frank Whiteley Jr.'s sharply trained son of Sword Dancer hooks up with the fleet Dr. Fager.

Met Only Once
The pair have met only once. That was in the one-mile of the Gotham at Aqueduct last spring and Dr. Fager won by one-half length. Since then Damascus has boosted his bank account to $584,161 on nine victories, eight of them stakes, in 12 starts. Whiteley would be acceptable to a match race at level weights of 126 pounds over 1 1/4 miles. However, the pair could well meet in the 1 1/4 miles of the $100,000-added Woodward at Aqueduct Sept. 30.

Both Whiteley and Johnny Nerud, trainer of Dr. Fager, are thinking in terms of the Woodward. Should they start in the Woodward, they likely would hook up with the great Buckpasser, who is scheduled to return to competition in the Aqueduct feature Labor Day.

Under the weight-for-age conditions of the Woodward, Buckpasser, a 4-year-old, would carry 126 pounds and Dr. Fager and Damascus 120 each.

Posted Third Straight
The swift cunning son of Bear Gar posted his third straight victory in a $100,000-added race in taking last Saturday's $113,000 Washington Park Handicap at Arlington Park.

He carried 122 pounds to a one-length victory over the highly regarded Pretense, weighted at 128 off his victories in the Santa Anita and Gulfstream park handicaps.

Earlier Handsome Boy had won the Haskell Handicap at Monmouth Park and beat Buckpasser in the Brooklyn at Aqueduct.

Elsewhere last Saturday the results of the feature races were: Quite an Accent and Canal in the two divisions of the Philadelphia Turf Handicap at Atlantic City; Estreno II in the Buckeye Handicap at Randall Park; Skookum in the Grand State Stakes at Rockingham Park and Kissin' George in the Bing Crosby Handicap at Del Mar.

See Lucky Cops Raceway Feature

MONTICELLO, New York—See Lucky, a four-year-old chestnut horse by Lucky Eden won the featured $5,000 race at Monticello Raceway Saturday night in 2:03.3 — extending his record to an undefeated five starts this year and seven in a row over two years.

Going to the front quickly before they hit the first turn, See Lucky paced the half in 1:02.4 and the last quarter in :30.1 to outdistance Black Sire, the runnerup, and Rendezvous Truder, third. The winner returned $2.80 to $2.00.

Paper Tiger, driven by Charley Norris, won his second in a row in the opener.

Ed Palladino At Monticello

Scores in Feature

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (AP) — Is Ruler scored a four-length victory over the fast-closing Foxy Sultan in the $1,700 feature Saturday at Finger Lakes Race Track.

London Wise held on for the show spot.

The winner toured the six furlongs on a sloppy track in 1:14.3 and returned $7.80, $3.80 and $3.40.

The attendance was 7,856 and the handle $449,941.

Semi-Pro Leaders

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Defending champion Boulder Colo., and Honolulu, with 3-0 records, are on top of the standings in the double elimination national semipro baseball tournament.

Eureka, Calif., seeded No. 1, can join them only by beating Little Chute, Wis., tonight.

Honolulu defeated Mexico, Mo., 7-2 Sunday night with Terry Thompson pitching his second tourney victory. He also hit a single and three-run double.

Second-seeded Fairbanks, Alaska, beat Sloan, N.Y., 11-5 in eight innings and also has a 2-0 mark in the tourney.

Pro Charts BY MURRAY OLDERMAN

Joel Collier Tom Sestak

GENERAL COMMENT—Bills are perennial "have" of AFL's eastern division. And on paper soph coach Joel Collier has more than ever with the acquisition of three big stars—Powell, Lincoln, Flores. No one sees how they can lose.

OFFENSE

PASSING—Jack Kemp, the Elbow, can't afford to rest on his senior citizenship. Ex-Raider Tom Flores is more accurate passer (records prove it, too) and has almost as much experience. Rating—B+.

RECEIVING—If Art Powell still has all his finesse, and no reason he shouldn't have, the long bomb becomes a double threat, since Elbert Dubenion is still around. If Duby slows up, there's Bobby Crockett, last year's bright neophyte. And Paul Costa looms big at tight end. Rating—A.

RUSHING — Like the Powell bit—if Keith Lincoln's everything he used to be (and he's only 28) they'll bruise a few people. Keith's biggest problem might be cracking starting combine of Bobby Burnett (rookie of year) and Wray Carlton, an underrated fullback.—Rating—B+.

LINE—The knee injury to Capt. Billy Shaw forced some juggling, with tackle Stew Barber moving to guard and rookie Gary Egenhagen taking Barber's old spot. Shaw should be back in mid-season. His kind of class is vital. Absence changes whole complexion of Bill's blocking. Rating—B+.

KICKING—Booth Lusteg, Mike Mercer vie for placekicking. Neither is a Lou Groza. Punting is competent as always with Paul Maguire. Rating—B.

DEFENSE

LINE—The big gamble was trading away end Tom Day in Lincoln deal. The big hope is Remi Prudhomme will fill the gap. Best tackle set in AFL with Tom Sestak, Jim Dunaway at top of their games. Ron McDole set again at flank. But behind them everybody's untested. Rating—B.

LINEBACKERS—Mike Stratton, Harry Jacobs, John Tracey set record for longevity as unit every time they step on field. But time is catching up with latter two, and someone like Marty Schottenheimer's ready to take over. Among rookies, Notre Dame's Tom Roads shows promise, too. Rating—B+.

SECONDARY—The solid fellows are Butch Byrd at one corner and George Saines at free safety. Pending development of Charley King or couple of rookies, the faces at other posts will be same: Tommy Janik at corner, Hagood Clarke at strong safety. Old hand Booker Edgerson pushes Janik. Rating—B+.

SUMMARY—This is a solid club that has helped itself with off-season trades but didn't pick up much rookie class and may have left itself vulnerable on defensive line. If everything goes normal—meaning injuries don't decimate them—Bills should be heavily favored to dominate the East again. PREDICTION—1st in East.

Roquepine Easy Winner

By TED MEIER Associated Press Sports Writer WESBURY, N. Y. (AP) —

The boss was right. That means that when Henri Levesque of France decided to change his luck and drive his 6-year-old mare, Roquepine, in the $100,000 Roosevelt International Trot, he was right.

Roquepine went off the odds-on favorite and led all the way in the 1 1/4 mile harness racing classic at Roosevelt Raceway Saturday night.

The mare beat Fresh Yankee of Canada by three-quarters of a length and Governor Armbrro, another Canadian trotter, by 1 1/4 lengths. Real Speed of the United States was fourth.

Levesque decided to take Jean-Rene Gougeon out of Roquepine's sulky and substitute himself after Roquepine had lost the United Nations Trot at Yonkers Raceway last June and the International last year with Gougeon handling the reins.

Pre-Pace Plan?

Gougeon drove another French trotter, Oscar R.L., who eventually finished fifth. Oscar R.L. is owned by Levesque's son-in-law, Maurice de Folleville, and this led to assertions that Levesque and Gougeon might have had a pre-race plan to run interference for each other.

For much of the race until the mile mark, Roquepine, on the inside, and Oscar R.L., on the outside, did indeed race alongside of each other at the head of the field.

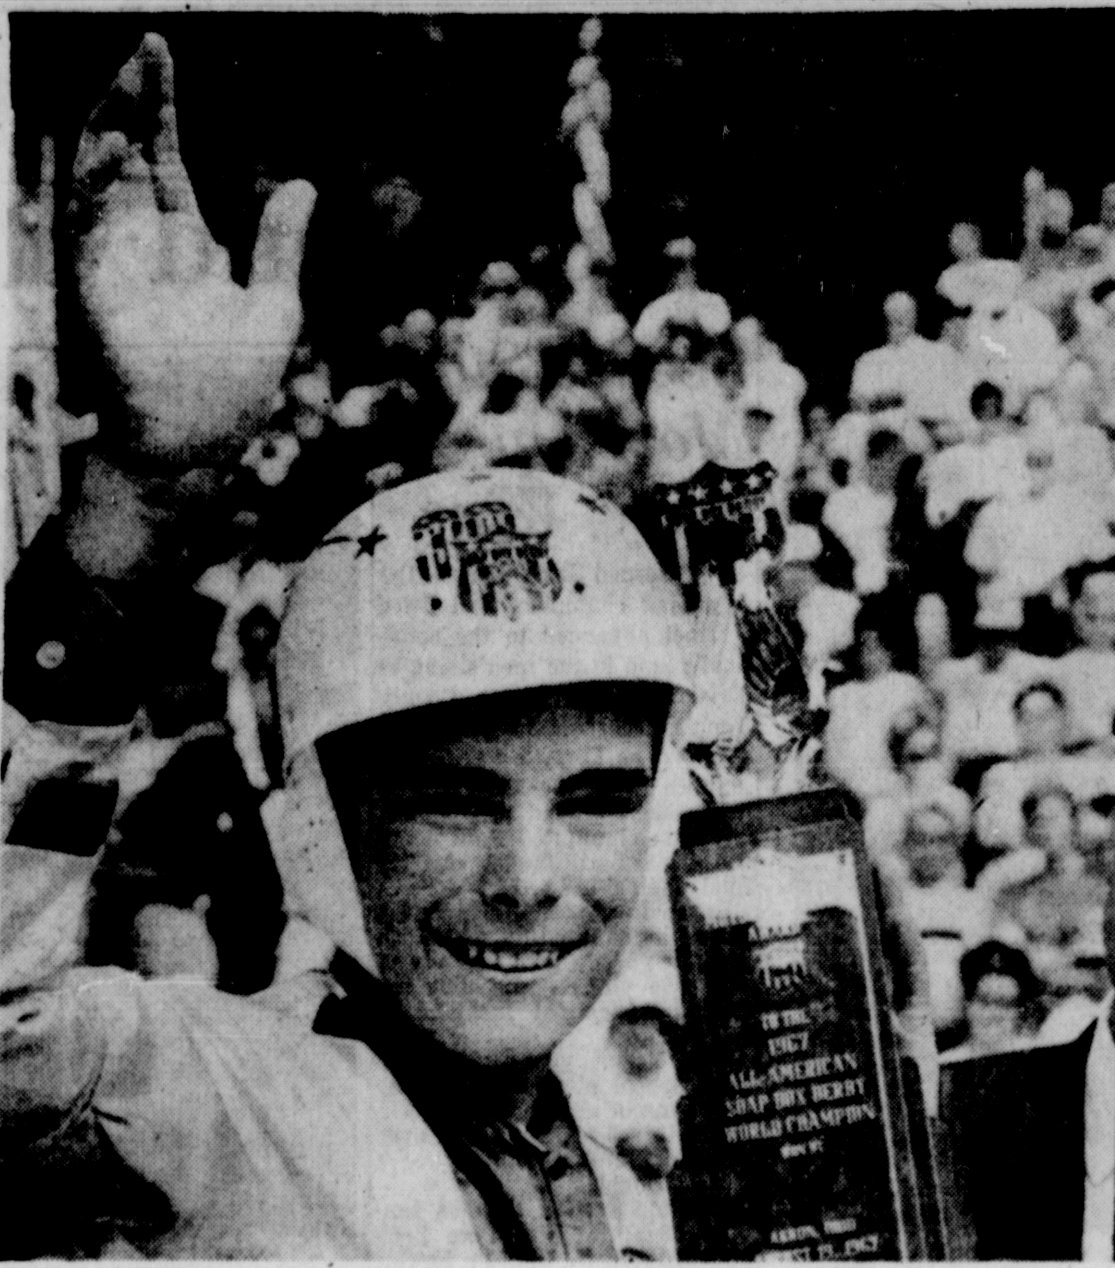

Levesque denied after the race that there was any such pre-race plan. "I would never do such a thing. I don't need this money. This is an international race and the glory is everything."

Roquepine picked up $50,000 after trotting the distance in a slow 2:43 4/5 over a sloppy track.

Upstate, Saratoga Raceway has the New York Sire Stakes on tap again this week. Two-year-old trotters race tonight and Tuesday, with fillies competing tonight for $11,134 and colts and geldings Tuesday night for $10,940.

In the $12,850 Sire Stakes for 3-year-old pacing colts last Saturday night at Saratoga Bobby Ed sped to a 1/4 length victory over Bi Lika Me. Featherstep was third. Bobby Ed covered the mile over the heavy track in 2:05 and paid $3.40.

In other feature races in New York State last Saturday night: —Broker's Choice ($6) trotted the mile in 2:08 over a muddy track. Vernon Downs' track and won the $11,000 third leg of the Melvin C. Eaton series. Fearless Doc was second and Argo Duke third.

THE CHAMPION — Kenneth D. Cline of Lincoln, Neb., waves and holds his trophy after winning the 1967 All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron, Ohio. Young Cline defeated 243 other boys to earn his title. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Damascus-Dr. Fager Match Race Likely?

By ORLO ROBERTSON Associated Press Sports Writer SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) —

A match race between Damascus, a romping winner of last Saturday's $80,100 Travers, and Dr. Fager, a fleet runner whose staying powers are untested, to decide the championship of the turf's 3-year-old division. Sounds intriguing, doesn't it?

Frank Whiteley Jr., trainer of Damascus, was sounded out on the subject even before the Kentucky-bred son of Sword Dancer-Kerala on the 98th running of the 1 1/4 miles by 22 lengths over a sloppy track with a time of 2:01 3/5 that matched the Saratoga race track standard. He was acceptable to the idea.

Whiteley, who has declined to run Damascus in the Sept. 2 renewal of the $250,000-added New Hampshire Sweepstakes Classic at Rockingham Park because his horse would have to give Dr. Fager eight pounds, indicated he would like to hook up with the Jonny Nerud-trained Dr. Fager at scale weights of 126 pounds and at 1 1/4 miles.

Nerud, watching Damascus trap Tumiga and Gala Performance by as much as 15 lengths after one-half mile, didn't comment on the match race but said:

"Just wait until the last week in September. Then we'll see which is the better horse."

May Race in Woodward

Nerud was referring to the 1 1/4 miles of the $300,000-added Woodward at Aqueduct on Sept. 30.

It is a weight-for-age event, which would call for 3-year-olds to carry 120 pounds and older horses 126. And one of the older horses with eyes on the Woodward is Buckpasser, 1966 horse of the year.

Patriots Nip Bills, 13-10

By HAL BOCK Associated Press Sports Writer

They can't accuse Mike Holovak of running up the score. On the threshold of one of their rare exhibition victories, Holovak's Boston Patriots avoided the temptation of that extra touchdown and contented themselves with a 13-10 American Football League squeaker over Buffalo Sunday.

After the frustrations Holovak's Patriots have endured for six preseason campaigns, he could have been forgiven for going after the extra TD. The Pats had managed just three exhibition victories under Holovak until Sunday.

But with only moments left to play and Boston threatening after Jay Cunningham's 47-yard punt return, Holovak had quarterback John Huarte run out the clock.

He could afford the gracious move because of Gino Cappelletti's educated toe. Cappelletti booted a 33-yard field goal with less than three minutes remaining, breaking a 10-10 tie. It was the veteran end's second field goal of the game and enough for the victory.

In Sunday's other exhibition football, the National League's Detroit Lions spoiled the opening of San Diego's new $28 million stadium by ripping the AFL Charges, 38-17, and Dallas topped San Francisco 30-24.

In Saturday's inter-league action, Philadelphia of the NFL trimmed the AFL's New York Jets 34-19, and the NFL Atlanta Falcons downed Miami of the AFL 27-17.

In intra-league play, New Orleans fledgling NFL club topped Pittsburgh 20-17. Washington pounded the New York Giants 31-13. Los Angeles took Cleveland 24-17 and Kansas City walloped Oakland 48-0.

Two-Year Old Title Still Up for Grabs

By ORLO ROBERTSON Associated Press Sports Writer

While the argument still rages over the merits of the two top 3-year-olds and the voters take another look at Handsome Boy in rating the handicap division, the 2-year-olds attempt this week to do something about their own muddled championship picture.

Saturday at Saratoga, the top juveniles, minus only Monmouth Park's Sapling winner Subpet, hook up in the 6 1/2 furlongs of the $75,000-added Hopeful as four weeks of thoroughbred racing at the upstate New York resort ends.

Heading the prospective field are two powerful entries—Vittorio and What a Pleasure from the Eddie Neloy-trained string and Exclusive Native and unbeaten Bold Native farm Lou Wolfson's Harbor View Farm. Add to them Potomac, Pappa Steve and Forward Pass and you have a right fair mixture for an exciting horse race. All either have won stakes or have been right up there.

Meantime, Damascus strengthened his claim to the 3-year-old title by winning last Saturday's $80,100 Travers by 22 lengths with a clocking of 2:01 3/5 to match the track record. Compelling, however, as was the victory, there are some who say that the title will not be decided until Frank Whiteley Jr.'s sharply trained son of Sword Dancer hooks up with the fleet Dr. Fager.

Met Only Once The pair have met only once. That was in the one-mile of the Gotham at Aqueduct last spring and Dr. Fager won by one-half length.

Since then Damascus has boosted his bank account to $384,161 on nine victories, eight of them stakes, in 12 starts.

Whiteley would be acceptable to a match race at level weights of 126 pounds over 1 1/4 miles. However, the pair could well meet in the 1 1/4 miles of the $100,000-added Woodward at Aqueduct Sept. 30.

Both Whiteley and Johnny Nerud, trainer of Dr. Fager, are thinking in terms of the Woodward. Should they start in the Woodward they likely would hook up with the great Buckpasser, who is scheduled to return to competition in the Aqueduct feature Labor Day.

Under the weight-for-age conditions of the Woodward, Buckpasser, a 4-year-old, would carry 126 pounds and Dr. Fager and Damascus 120 each.

Rapidly emerging as a threat to Buckpasser's bid for the handicap title and possible renege as Horse of the Year, is Handsome Boy. A 4-year-old from Jack Dreyfus' Hobeau Farm.

Posted Third Straight The swift cunning son of Bea Gar posted his third straight victory in a $100,000-added race in taking last Saturday's $113,000 Washington Park Handicap at Arlington Park.

He carried 122 pounds to a one-length victory over the highly regarded Pretense, weighted at 128 off his victories in the Santa Anita and Gulfstream park handicaps.

Earlier Handsome Boy had won the Haskell Handicap at Monmouth Park and beat Buckpasser in the Brooklyn at Aqueduct.

Elsewhere last Saturday the results of the feature races were: Quite an Accent and Can in the two divisions of the Philadelphia Turf Handicap at Atlantic City; Estreno 11 in the Buckeye Handicap at Randall Park; Skookum in the Granit State Stakes at Rockingham Park and Kissin' George in the Bing Crosby Handicap at Del Mar.

Dear Abby

On Separate Bedrooms

DEAR ABBY: After 15 years of living in a two-room apartment, my husband and I finally bought a three-bedroom home. Of course I am delighted, but now my darling husband has informed me that he would like separate bedrooms! I think this is asking for trouble. I gave in a few years ago when he asked for twin beds because he wakes up three and four times during the night to smoke a cigarette, which disturbs me. I have to get up at 5:30 to get to work, so the twin beds did solve the problem of my being disturbed. But separate bedrooms! Won't that be the beginning of the end of our married life? RSVP

DEAR RSVP: You will be healthier, happier and better humored if you get your rest at night. And your husband will be easier to live with if he doesn't feel guilty for having disturbed you.
And by the way, a man who gets up three and four times a night to smoke a cigarette may not be around to many more years to worry about.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I asked the 16-year-old daughter of a neighbor of ours down the block to babysit for us for an evening while my husband and I went out. This was the first time we ever had her sit for us.
After we came home we found a note she had left for us, saying, "CLEAN YOUR FILTHY HOUSE, PLEASE." Abby, I know I am not the world's greatest housekeeper, but my house is NOT filthy, either.

We live in a newly developed area (none of the houses is even a year old yet) and we have never met this girl's parents. In a way I think they ought to know about this rude and uncalled for note, but I don't want to become acquainted with my neighbors under these circumstances. What do you suggest I do?
HURT IN EUGENE
DEAR HURT: Let the matter drop, and the next time you need a babysitter, ask someone with better manners.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a man who insists on taking his nap on the living room couch, from one to two hours each day, yells at the kids if they aren't extra quiet, and makes the whole family miserable with no place to sit down? This man has a comfortable bedroom he could go to.
He sleeps at night same as the rest of the family. If he needs more sleep, shouldn't he go to his own room and not upset the whole family? I think he's selfish and stubborn. What do you think?
THE MAN'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: I agree with you. But worse yet is the example he is setting for the children. If they are going to learn respect and consideration for other people, you will have to do double duty, because unless you can get your man to change his ways, your children will never learn them from their father.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.
For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1.00 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

temerity (te-MER-i-tea)
a form of boldness or recklessness

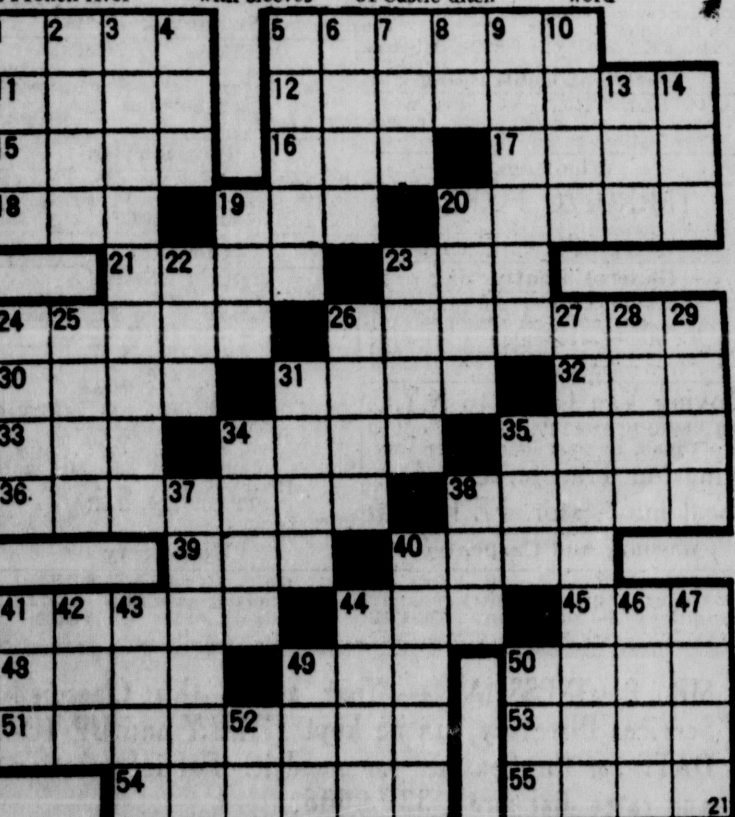

After he had publicly insulted the patron, the parking-lot attendant had the temerity to ask for a tip. Sometimes the young policeman does not fully understand the temerity of his actions. The young banker's temerity was quite perplexing; first, he angered the manager and later he returned to demand a raise.

temerity (te-MER-i-tea)
a form of boldness or recklessness

After he had publicly insulted the patron, the parking-lot attendant had the temerity to ask for a tip. Sometimes the young policeman does not fully understand the temerity of his actions. The young banker's temerity was quite perplexing; first, he angered the manager and later he returned to demand a raise.

Basic Westerns Returning

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When television's last thundering herd of westerns gallops onto home screens in the next few weeks, the name of the game will be action—fights, chases, rescues, damsels in distress, black-hearted villains, brave heroes. The minds that dream up series ideas are back to basic ingredients of the classic western. It is easy to see why last season's variations of the familiar format will be missing: Not one of the innovators survived.

Another Marshal
Another U.S. marshal will be riding onto the CBS range in the 90-minute "Cimarron Strip" to police territory south of "Gunsmoke's" Dodge City and Marshal Dillon. And the outside western has proved itself over the past five successful seasons of NBC's "The Virginian."

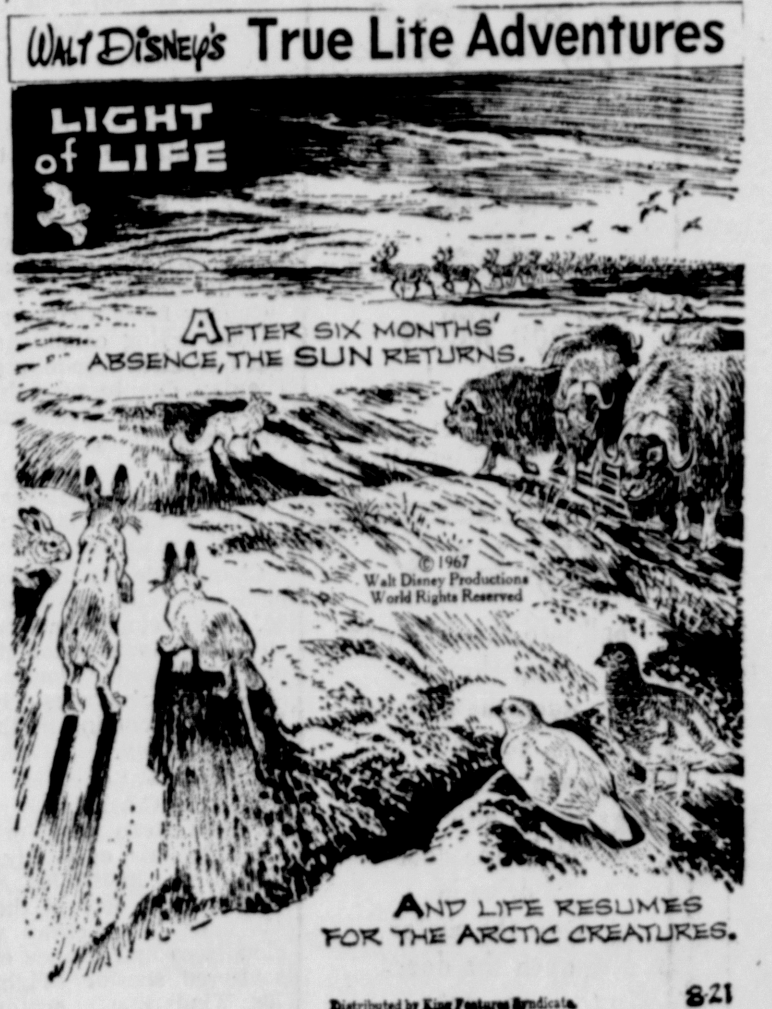

"Hondo," an ABC effort, is based on an successful John Wayne horse opera. Its star, Ralph Taeger, a man in the Wayne mold, plays a loner who is quick on the draw but trying, of course, to bring peace to the Arizona territory.

No one will make the mistake of last season's "Shane," a watered-down adaptation of an exciting movie about a retired gun-fighter. The trouble with that series was that he stayed retired, and the series soon was too. No one, this time out, is attempting to make heroes out of the sodbusters, respectable and worthy as those agriculturally minded pioneers were. Both "The Road West" and "The Monroes" bit the dust like an Indian raiding party last season because they were long on sentiment and seccery but lacked action.

New Family Group
David Dortort, who created "Bonanza," is coming in with another of his patented western creations, this called "High Chaparral," on NBC. His specialty is the family group around whom he constructs all the familiar western makings. This time it will be two brothers and the son of one of them. Instead of the Ponderosa of the Cartwrights in Nevada, the action will be around post-Civil War Tucson. The problem will be Mexican bandits and Apache Indians. The Apaches, it should be noted will also be one of "Hondo's" standard adversaries. "Dundee and the Culhane" on CBS seems to have its inspiration in both old "Gun-Will Travel" and "The Defenders." There will be a pair of lawyers — one mature and wise, one young and quick with fist and gun—who wander the Old West and wind up with a trial of some sort in each episode. But not before some bad guys make trouble.

No Funny Bones
"The Legend of Custer" on ABC will move into that glamorous territory on the side of the cavalry, with the controversial victim of Little Big Horn played in dashing, heroic style, and any relationship to the original is coincidental. No one this season is going to get funny with the Old West. Humor proved disastrous in the case of "Laredo," on NBC which lasted but barely for two seasons, and ABC's "The Rounders" and "Rango," neither of which survived beyond 13 weeks each. That leaves CBS' "Wild, Wild West" as the only light-hearted treatment, but the actors play their mad adventures straight and the humor is in the mind of the beholder. Of course, no one connected with a stock western ever will admit that the ingredients are as traditional and formulaized as a prescription for aspirin. And no one ever talks about violence.

If you believe the pre-season sales talks, every last one of the new westerns is primarily concerned with developing a character or a family "with heart, understanding—and situations with which the audience can empathize." Okay, so how come all those brave heroes have stunt men for doubles?

Flood Victims Return Home; Known Toll 74

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—(AP)—Residents of this flood-scarred city moved back to their homes in increasing numbers today, hoping that the receding waters of the Chena River would uncover no further dead.

Two more victims of the waters that swirled through Fairbanks and downstream Nenana, on the Tenana River into which the Chena flows, were found Sunday, bringing the total known death toll to seven—four in Fairbanks, one in Nenana and two at Tok.

One of the new victims, Bill Wardzella, 54, was found in the back room of a business house in downtown Fairbanks. The other, an unidentified woman, was discovered floating in the flood-covered streets at Nenana.

Six Injured In 2 Crashes

A two-car head-on collision in Rifton Saturday and a three-car accident on the Thruway Sunday near Saugerties, sent six persons to the hospital with injuries over the weekend.

Herbert Schraver, 49, of Vineyard Avenue, Highland, suffered contusions of the head and legs after his car was in collision on the Albany Post Road, 4:45 p. m. Saturday, it was reported.

Schraver was traveling west and a car driven by George J. Kaippel, 41, of Rifton, was traveling east when on approaching a curve, both vehicles swung too wide and hit each other in the left front end, according to State Police.

Schraver was taken to Kingston Hospital in Doctors Ambulance.

Trooper J. F. Zaplicki investigated.

Five persons were injured in a three-car accident Sunday about 6 p. m. at Milepost 101 on the Thruway's southbound lane.

Taken to Kingston Hospital by Saugerties Ambulance were Charles and Robert Major, both of 5024 24th Avenue, SE, Washington, D. C.; Lindsay and Philip Hofnagle, both of 1 Beck Place, Poughkeepsie and Harry Hofnagle of 388 Church Street, Poughkeepsie.

Hold Young Mental Patient In Killing 9

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (AP)—A 21-year-old mental patient is being held for the murder of nine members of a farm family who were shot in their home on the edge of Canada's northern wilderness.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police arrested Victor Ernest Hoffman Saturday night, four days after the massacre of Mr. and Mrs. James Peterson and seven of their children at their home in Shell Lake. The Petersons' 4-year-old daughter hid between the bodies of two of her sisters and escaped.

The police said Hoffman would be arraigned on a murder charge and then probably would be given a mental examination.

Sept. 7 Launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The National Aeronautics and Space Administration today announced it has set Sept. 7 as the launching date for its second biological research satellite, Biosatellite 2.

The satellite will carry 13 experiments to determine the effect of the space environment on various life processes during three days in orbit.

The young man's mother, Mrs. Robert Hoffman, said in an interview that her son was released July 23 from a mental institution in North Battleford.

She said he was still under treatment and was to have been readmitted to the institution.

He is one of seven children and had worked on his father's farm 60 miles southeast of Shell Lake after quitting school in 1961.

Inspector Brian Sawyer said no motive had been established for the slaying. He said Hoffman was picked up without a struggle at home and had behaved normally since his arrest.

11-Section Hurley Zoning Will Be Discussed September 6

A 60-page zoning ordinance prepared by the Town of Hurley Planning Board and Zoning Commission at the request of the Town Board will be discussed at a public hearing scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 6 at 7 p. m. at the Hurley School.

Arrangements have been made with Robert Krein of Brown & Anthony City Planners to attend the hearing. On Sept. 8 the Town Board will attend an executive meeting which will be followed by a meeting open to the public on Sept. 12 at the West Hurley Firehouse.

The proposed ordinance contains 11 sections that explain in detail the new law which will regulate zoning in the Town of Hurley.

Requirements Noted

The planning firm of Brown & Anthony, Inc., has informed the Town Board that law requires that the Board have the proposed ordinance printed in a local newspaper, that the Board hold a public hearing on the matter, and after the hearing the ordinance in its final form can be enacted into law by vote of the members of the Town Board.

The zoning ordinance recommended by the Hurley Zoning Commission and the Planning Board would regulate and restrict the location, construction, alteration, occupancy and use of buildings and structures and the use of land in the Town of Hurley for purposes of dividing the town into zoning districts.

The purpose of the zoning ordinance would be to protect and promote public health, safety, morals, comfort, convenience, economy, town esthetics and the general welfare and for the following purposes:

To promote and effectuate the orderly physical development of the Town of Hurley;

To encourage the most appropriate use of land in the community in order to conserve and enhance the value of property.

To prevent the spread of strip business development and provide for more adequate and suitably - located commercial facilities.

To create a suitable system of open spaces and recreation areas, and to protect and enhance existing wooded areas, scenic areas and waterways.

To regulate building densities in order to assure access of light and circulation of air, in order to facilitate the prevention and fighting of fires, in order to prevent undue concentration of population, and in order to lessen congestion on streets and highways and in order to provide efficient municipal utility service.

To improve transportation facilities and traffic circulation, and to provide adequate off-street parking and loading facilities.

To realize a development plan property designed to conserve the use of land and the cost of municipal services.

To assure privacy for residences and freedom from nuisance and things harmful to the senses.

To protect the community against unsightly, obstructive, and noisome land uses and operations.

To enhance the esthetic aspects throughout the entire community and maintain its present character and natural beauty.

Calls for 8 Zones

If the zoning ordinance is approved later, the town would be divided into eight zoning districts as follows: A—open residence, one family per one acre average; B-1-general business; B-2-highway business; I-1-light industrial; F—flood plain; H—historical.

The Town Board in October 1966 entered into contract with Brown and Anthony Inc., for $3,000 to prepare a zoning ordinance and zoning land use map. The zoning commission comprises W. R. Peters, chairman; James Cuniff, Joseph P. Fallon, Lewis Hall, E. C. O'Connor, William Schiff and Peter Weider. Members of the planning board are, William Schiff, chairman; John F. Burlingham, E. Dunn, R. W. Fuldner, W. R. Peters, H. VanWyck Darrow and W. Wood.
